BOYS KILL MAN FOR $3.75

Light Muffled :-: Thugs Crack Safe :-: In Liberty Avenue

WHERE THEY ENTERED

Professional cracksmen early today obtained $300 and checks of undetermined value by blowing a safe on the second floor, 433 Liberty avenue, owned by Burke Bros., plumbing supply dealers. A cash drawer also was rifled of $25. They entered through the cellar door, then bored a door to enter the first floor.

SPOTLIGHT MUFFLED

A spotlight, arranged to play constantly upon the safe, so that passersby could not fail to notice anything amiss, was covered and the men worked in darkness. Detectives believe they expected to find a large sum, the day's receipts of an amusement place operated by the proprietors. Brace, bits, saws and other tools were left behind.

BATTERED SAFE

The robbers knocked off the combination knob on the safe and then used nitroglycerin as their explosive, detectives believe. Towels and part of a woman's skirt were used to deaden the explosion and were left behind when the escape was made. The battered safe, as it was left by the crackers, is shown above.

YOU read "reporter kills himself" and it occurs to you that you haven't seen that before. Actors, doctors, bankers, idlers kill themselves. Reporters write about it; they don't commit suicide. Reporters don't kill themselves, first, because life to them is interesting. They study and REPORT it. Every reporter having reported more than one suicide knows that suicide is foolish, it means failure and it is futile. There is always another chance.

"ITALIAN ambition worries the French." So reads a dispatch from Paris.

Mussolini is starting flying machine routes leading from Rome in all directions, especially to Turkey and the East, so interesting to the French.

Mussolini says "go" and everything in Italy moves forward.

In France it is not so. You have seen foxhounds coupled together, before the hunt. One pulls one way, the other another. They make little progress.

In France different parties and different minds pull against each other, in different directions.

In Italy, one mind runs everything. That gives results, while that mind rules.

THE rest of the world will watch Mussolini and Italy, and wonder how much one man can do.

France need not worry; her power is as great as ever. Her task is to prove that French intelligence can manage France on a democratic basis, without calling in some weak-faced pretender from the dregs of a royal race, or some strong jawed dictator, a modern superman, to rule the others.

BECAUSE of excessive railroad charges, newspapers are using motor trucks for long distance delivery.

Excessive postoffice rates will also stimulate independent delivery by newspaper publishers. One newspaper sends 13,700 pounds of newspapers 60 miles by truck at a cost of $70. Sent by mail the shipment would cost $232.90.

Even Uncle Sam will find that Ford was right when he cut prices. Postal cards at two cents earned less profit for the government than they did at one cent.

A GENTLEMAN, occasionally posing as a nobleman, was arrested recently accused of marrying fifty women and getting a million dollars in money and jewelry from them. There is nothing to be said about that except that it is the nature of a woman to trust men, unfortunately for women.

"CURLS are coming back," says a professor of physiology; even "puff curls" and the "shingle" will pass. Common sense is with the bob. Romance with the puffed curl. You could not imagine Martha Washington with a bob.

WHITE men have decided that they want a bridge across the north end of the Grand Canyon, which would be very convenient for automobiles and tourists generally. The bridge would cost $200,000. The typical "white man" plan is to make the Navajo Indians pay half the amount. The bridge wouldn't do them any good. It doesn't connect any separated sections of their reservation. It is purely a white man's improvement for the benefit of white men. But after the white men had given the Navajo, Osage and some other Indians about the worst land they could pick out for their reservation, fate decided that oil should be struck on the land of the Navajos and of the Osages also.

The Osage Indians are looked after by enterprising white men that sell them whisky for large sums, and get away with the rest of the money when they are drunk, or insure their lives, and then kill them to collect the insurance.

Uncle Sam is apparently taking a hand in the game with the Navajos. He has arranged to build the bridge, take half the cost, $100,000, from the oil profits of the Navajo Indians, about all they would get in a year.

This will not surprise the poor Navajos. HONEST TREATMENT WOULD SURPRISE THEM.

WHEN President Coolidge assured the nation that "our air service is being perfected, and our whole military establishment is being made worthy of the power and dignity of this great nation," he made good news.

But how does our air service compare with that of England, France or Japan? Does it equal one-tenth of the air power of any one of those nations? Just what would be worthy of "the power and dignity of this great nation?" Our power and dignity would be badly shaken if any great foreign air power should decide to attack our cities.

CARDS FACE ACE

A full game in front and with the club showing the best brand of team-play in many weeks, the Pirates were in a confident mood today as they made ready to stage their last contest of the season with the Cardinals. The clash in the Oakland orchard will begin at 3 o'clock.

Manager Donie Bush of the home team announced this morning that Carmen Hill, leading ace of the crack staff of sharpshooters, would face the Redbirds in the farewell meeting of the two flag contenders. Hill, by the way, will be out to land his twentieth triumph of the season. He ran up his nineteenth success while the team was in Philadelphia.

Manager Bob O'Farrell was expected to counter with Jess Haines, who has been a Nemesis to Pittsburgh clubs for quite some time. But the Buccos are not playing any favorites. Up to yesterday it had been a long time since the Bush-

CRACKSMEN GET CASH, CHECKS

Taking care to cover a spotlight designated to protect against operation of burglars, cracksmen early today blew open a safe on the second floor of Burke Brothers, plumbing supplies, 433 Liberty avenue, obtaining $300 cash and checks of undetermined value. They also rifled a cash register on the first floor of $25.

The robbers knocked off the combination knob on the safe, then used nitroglycerin, detectives believe. Towels and part of a woman's shirt were used to deaden the sound of the explosion. A brace and bit, saws, hammer and other burglar tools were left behind.

A spotlight played constantly on the safe, which was near a front window, so that persons on the street could see if anything was amiss. The yeggs slipped a typewriter cover over the light.

Entrance was gained through a rear cellar door, then by boring through a door leading to the first floor.

Detectives believe the cracksmen expected to find a large sum, receipts of an amusement place operated by the proprietors.

TOBACCO STOLEN

Climbing fire escapes to the roofs of buildings in Grant street, between Strawberry way and Seventh avenue thieves last night broke into the Federal Tobacco Company store at 644 Grant street, and escaped with cigarets and tobacco, believed to be worth $1,000 or more. A. Goldbloom, manager of the concern, refused to estimate his loss and also declined to say whether anything else of value had been taken.

The thieves used the elevator to carry the loot to the roof, moving the stolen goods to an elevator shaft under construction at 634 Grant

Youngest Murder Suspects

ROBERT STEVENS ALVIN HESS

These boys, both of West Homestead, have confessed, police say, to murdering with a club and a heavy rock an unidentified man who was ambushed along the Monongahela River bank near Homestead. After being felled the man was robbed of $3.75 and a street car token. The boys, police say, told of the killing last night and then unconcernedly rolled into police station cell bunks and fell asleep. They are the youngest murder suspects ever arrested here.

Plunge At Niagara Kills 3

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 3.—Three persons, believed to be Prof. Roy Desmond Huxley, his wife and their 6-year-old daughter, Ruth, were killed when their automobile toppled 175 feet into the "Rapids" Gorge at Niagara Falls, Ontario, late yesterday.

The Huxley family left their home at Cleveland Heights Thursday for a tour which was to have ended at Midland, Ontario.

BROCK OFF TO PERSIA

Bagdad, Irak., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—The American round-the-world aviators, William S. Brock and Edward F. Schlee, left for Bunder Abbas, Persia, 485 miles from Bagdad, at 7 o'clock this morning.

Before their departure they announced their intention of staying at Bunder Abbas over night and then continuing on to Karachi, British India, Sunday. The distance from Bunder Abbas to Karachi is 710 miles.

The American airmen arrived at

New Court Plea Hits Woodside

Action was begun this morning in Common Pleas Court permanently to restrain the County Commissioners from placing the name of Robert G. Woodside on the Republican ballot as a candidate for county controller.

Attorney Frank C. McGirr, on behalf of Lulu Mosby and others, appeared before Judge Joseph M. Swearingen and filed an amended petition asking that the preliminary restraining order in the case be made permanent.

AIR 'WHALE' HEADS TO AMERICA

PLYMOUTH, England, Sept. 3.—With a mysterious millionaire Canadian as a passenger, Capt. Frank J. Courtney hopped off from here at 6:23 o'clock this morning in his Dornier-Napier biplane while in a new attempt to conquer the Atlantic ocean by air.

Besides the mysterious passenger, whose identity was not disclosed and who was reported to have paid $7,500 for the privilege of making the flight, Courtney was accompanied by R. J. Little, engineer, and F. W. Downer, navigator.

It was reported here that Courtney's mysterious passenger is E. B. Hosmer, of the Bank of Montreal.

The amphibian plane, heavily loaded with [illegible] gallons of gasoline, made a perfect take-off. In less than two minutes after the motors of the giant land and water plane had begun to roar, the three intrepid aviators and their wealthy passenger were out of sight.

Before starting, Courtney was undecided as to his route. He anticipated, however, that after passing Ireland he would take the southern route, possibly stopping at the Azores to refuel his plane, and then proceeding to St. Johns, Newfoundland, for another stop before starting the final lap to New York.

Capt. Courtney brought his plane here yesterday from the Calshot airdrome, where his start had been deferred six times by adverse weather conditions or trouble with his plane.

WIFE BIDS FAREWELL

Only a few persons besides army mechanics witnessed the start of the hazardous adventure. Mrs. Courtney accompanied her husband in a launch to the spot where the Whale was moored, and kissed him good-bye as he stepped into the cockpit.

Courtney's early start came as a

LADS 14 AND 16 HELD IN DEATH

The youngest persons ever arrested here for murder, Alvin Hess, 16, of 247 Hazel way, and Robert Stevens, 14, of 212 Hazel way, West Homestead, slept soundly in Central Police Station last night after confessing, detectives say, to fatally slugging and robbing an unidentified man on the Monongahela River bank near Homestead.

Without regaining consciousness, the victim died in the Homestead Hospital last night from a fracture of the skull.

The boys, detectives say, before turning in for a night's undisturbed sleep in a cell, told how on Thursday evening the murder victim was stalked along the river bank and felled with a club. As he lay in the sand his head was crushed with a 25-pound stone.

From the victim's pockets $3.75 and a street car token were taken, and he was tossed into the bushes to die.

The boys were arrested at their homes yesterday on information obtained from persons who, from a distance, had witnessed the attack on the man as he walked along the river bank. Taken to the scene, the boys are said to have described the slaying in detail.

FELLED BY ONE BLOW

The man was walking along the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks toward Pittsburgh. He stopped the boys to inquire the distance to this city and then tramped on. A whisky bottle is said to have dropped from his pocket.

"Let's knock him off," a suggestion which Stevens is said to have admitted he made to Hess, prompted the attack.

Hess, according to the story obtained by detectives, picked up an old wheelbarrow handle. One blow felled the man, but he regained his feet, staggered a short distance, sat down and then fell face forward in the sand.

The boys are said to have admitted that Hess used a 25-pound stone to crush the victim's head. After that his pockets were rifled. The $3.75 was divided and the boys went home, according to the police story.

$2 FOR MOTHER

Hess is said to have told detectives that he gave his $2 share to his widowed mother, saying he had earned it. The car check was thrown away.

Walter Zogran, 11, of 222 East Third street, Homestead, found the unconscious man in the bushes and notified Barney Zubkies of the Chippewa camp, not far from the scene of the attack. Bertha Sable and Helen Rollins, visitors at the camp, say they saw the boys dividing the money in a clump of bushes.

Homestead and West Homestead police and city detectives questioned Zubkies and others at the camp. Several said they had seen the man slugged, but believed the thugs were men.

Chief of Police P. L. Tierney of West Homestead and Homicide Detectives Robert Burke, Clarence Raeder and John Capps and Plainclothesman John McGovern of Homestead worked on the case. After the boys are said to have repeated their story at the City Detective Bureau last night they were held for the coroner.

RAPS BAR POLL AS DISCREDIT

Appearing on the same platform as Judge Richard W. Martin, who led the poll conducted by the Allegheny County Bar Association, Charles A. Lewis, independent candidate for judge, assailed that poll as one that "has thrown discredit on the bar and bench."

Judge Martin and Lewis were among the independent candidates who spoke at a mass meeting in Knights of Malta Hall, Wilkinsburg, last night. Other speakers were George B. Shields, candidate for clerk of courts; Controller C. C. McGovern, Judges Frank I. Gollmar and James H. Gray. Former Burgess John D. Miles presided.

MORE AMERICAN CARS ASSEMBLED ABROAD

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—The number of American automobiles assembled abroad is playing an increasingly important part in the nation's foreign trade, the Commerce Department announced. Of 207,000 American cars sold abroad during the first half of this year, about 120,000 or 29 per cent were foreign assembled. This was an increase of 25 per cent over the last six months of 1926.

HOPE FOR PRINCESS SLIGHT -:- NO WORD FROM "ST. RAPHAEL"

TOGETHER

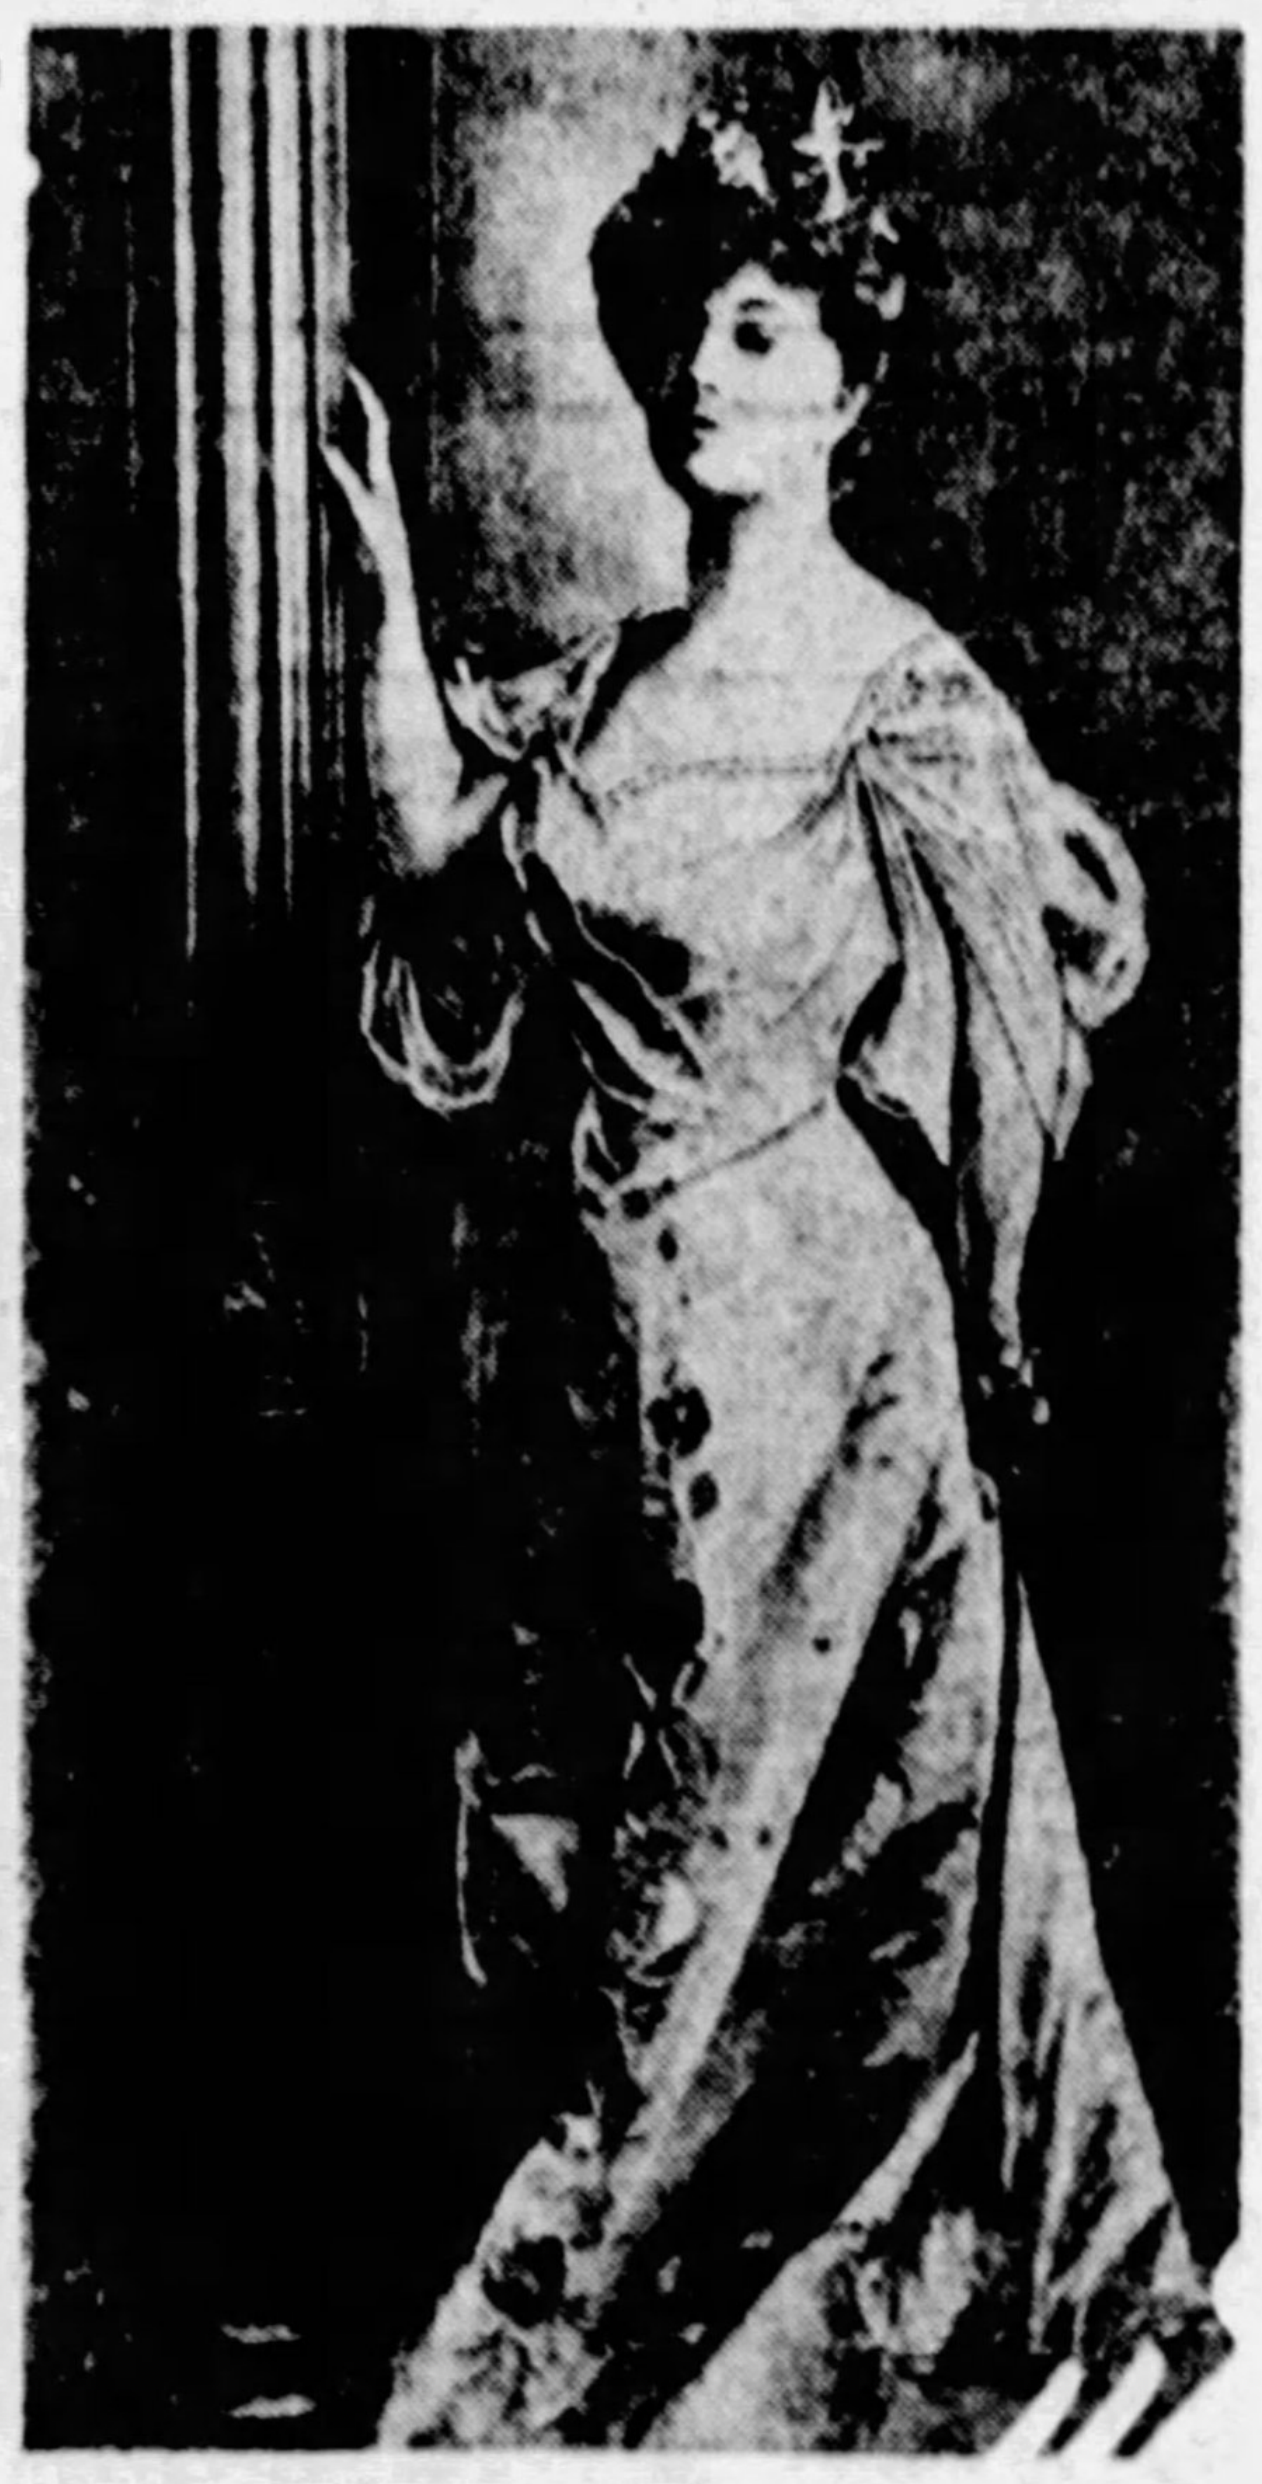
The fate of Capt. Leslie Hamilton (above) is probably the same as that of Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim and Col. F. F. Minchin, with whom he hopped off from England for a transatlantic flight.

PRINCESS

The princess years ago, before she became interested in airplanes in 1914. Friends and the English government now fear for the safety of the St. Raphael's dauntless crew, as the Atlantic Ocean keeps its silence and its secret.

THIRD

Col. Minchin is the third flier in the St. Raphael, a Fokker plane. The ship left London at 3:35 o'clock Wednesday morning and no word has been heard since it flew over the Irish coast and out over the sea.



PASSENGER

The princess is a passenger in the plane, but is also a pilot and said she would handle the controls during the flight. The plane had fuel for a flight of 44 hours and expected to land at Ottawa within 37 hours from its London hop-off.

N. Y. Twins Fail In Channel Swim

BOULOGNE, France, Sept. 3.—The 13-year-old Zitenfeld twins, Bernice and Phyllis, of New York, failed today to swim the English Channel.

They started at 11:42 p. m. yesterday in spite of a stiff northeast breeze and general bad weather forecasts. A large crowd followed in boats.

Eight minutes later Mrs. Marriott, known as Jane Darwin, entered the Channel and followed the twins.

By 2 a. m. the twins were two and a half miles northwest of Gris Nez and their position was considered good to obtain favorable tides to aid them reach the English shore.

Mrs. Marriott was half a mile behind them.

At 3 a. m. the three swimmers entered a heavy fog over the Channel, cutting them off from view of the crowds on shore.

An hour later the twins abandoned their attempt, and at 7 a. m. arrived at Boulogne.

Weather conditions had been too great a handicap.

After seven hours in the water, during which time she had covered about six miles, Mrs. Marriott was taken out of the water.

She was taken in a launch to Dover where she told newspapermen that the northerly wind when she began the swim changed to an easterly. "The Channel was very choppy," she said.

BROCK HOPS FROM BAGDAD

Bagdad from Constantinople in their plane, the Pride of Detroit, at 9:30 o'clock last night, having made the non-stop flight of 1,075 miles in 14 hours. They were the guests over night of the Royal Air Force, Fifty-fifth Squadron, having failed to locate the airdrome of the Imperial Airways because of darkness.

On landing they reported their machine was in first-class order, having required no adjustments since they left Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, a week ago today. From that time until they landed at Bagdad, they had covered in successive stages about 5,000 miles of their 22,967 mile circle round the globe.

street, from where it was taken through a rear door. Part of the loot was recovered this morning by workmen at 624 Grant street, who notified Goldbloom of their find.

A motor truck loaded with tobacco and cigarets valued at $2,000, owned by Benjamin Lipsitz, 1506 Center avenue, disappeared last night from a garage in the rear of 729 North Euclid avenue. When Alvin Hall, 25, of 226 Hale street, driver of the truck, was found in possession of a key that fitted the padlock on the garage door, he was arrested.

MOVIE DUEL TOO REAL GILBERT ROLAND HURT

RUBS SHOULDERS WITH DEATH IN TRAIN CRASH

John G. Lastrick, 29, painting contractor of Tarentum, narrowly escaped death when his truck was struck by the Blairsville express at Kier crossing of the Pennsylvania Railroad, Creighton, yesterday. The engine struck the rear wheels and knocked the truck into a ditch. Lastrick crawled from the wreckage and had his injuries dressed at Allegheny Valley Hospital.

dered him a final salute and a bugle played "taps."

Selection of next year's meeting place and the election of officers for the coming year were principal topics at the final session, after which the delegates were to attend a field day and picnic at West View Park, later to congregate at numerous unit dinners and reunions.

ENDS TOMORROW

A memorial mass on Flag Staff Hill, Schenley Park, tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock, or in St. Paul's Cathedral at noon, in the event of rain, with an undenominational memorial service in the Davis Theater at 4 p. m. tomorrow, will bring the reunion to a close.

Yesterday was a busy day for the veterans. At 10:30 o'clock they met in the Moose Temple Auditorium for the nomination of officers. In the afternoon hundreds went out to watch John Miljus and Joe Harris, former members of Headquarters Company, Three Hundred and Twentieth Infantry, Eightieth Division, help give the Pirates a safe margin as leaders in the pennant race by defeating the St. Louis Cardinals.

From 9 p. m. to midnight more than 2,000 veterans, their wives and sweethearts, jammed the ballroom of the William Penn Hotel at the official military ball, and later packed Moose Temple Roof Garden for special cabaret entertainment and dancing.

The election of Judge D. Paulson Foster, of the Allegheny County Court, as president of the association, seemed even more assured today, as no one could be found who was not enthusiastic over the way Pittsburghers generally handled the tenth "and greatest" reunion. Judge Foster is retiring president of the Western Pennsylvania division of the association and, with William L. Fleming, is largely responsible for the success of the reunion.

Today's Program At Eightieth Reunion

9:30 a. m.—Mass at St. Augustine's Church for Clarence A. Eichenlaub, killed in automobile accident Wednesday en route to reunion.

1 p. m.—Final business session Moose Temple.

2:30 p. m.—West View Park field day program.

6 p. m.—Individual unit reunions and dinners.

9:30 p. m.—Dancing and entertainment, Moose Temple.

GIRL CAPTURES PURSE THIEF

Mabel Stumpf, 16, of 7101 Stanton street, Swissvale, sitting in the Homewood station, discovered that her purse and a Negro woman had disappeared at the same time.

Mabel followed. At Lang and Penn avenues she caught up to the woman and called a policeman. In Morals Court today the woman, Esther Longona, 24, of 331 Lenora street, got 30 days, and Mabel got the purse.

MINISTER MACMURRAY TO REPORT ON CHINA

RAPID CITY, S. D., Sept. 3.—Despite disquieting reports of the imminence of further outbreaks of revolutionary war, President Coolidge feels confident that reasonably tranquil conditions exist in China. Minister MacMurray has been asked to return to report the situation to President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg, it was announced, but no alarming reports of an official character have been received recently.

Cronkhite's Presence Here Still Doubtful

William L. Fleming, general chairman of the Eightieth Division Veterans' Association reunion, awaited word today from Maj. Gen. Adelbert Cronkhite, who commanded the division during the war, as to whether he will attend memorial services of the reunion here tomorrow.

Gen. Cronkhite is suffering with an ulcerated tooth, but sent a night wire letter yesterday that he may be able to attend the memorial exercises on the final day of the reunion. His telegram, received by Mr. Fleming this morning, follows:

Many thanks for your wire received today. My warmest congratulations to you and all those with you, upon the crowning success of your supreme efforts to make of our tenth anniversary such a grand reunion. It made my temperature go up just thinking of what I missed by not being at the banquet. Glad to hear it was a knockout. Being already down and almost out, don't believe present state of duty could have stood another blow. Only wish could have made the grade to attend grand ball at William Penn this evening. Please convey to the division my expression of very sincere regret that my condition is still such as to have made it absolutely impossible to be present at meetings today and that it will likewise preclude my attendance at Saturday's election of officers. Will wire whether or not any possibility attending memorial services. Best wishes to all friends and comrades present.

AIR WHALE TO U. S.

surprise. It was expected he would wait until later in the day before taking off. The flier arrived at the naval air base at 6 o'clock, and finding the weather in every way favorable, decided to start immediately.

Courtney taxied his plane twice in a circle; then rose from the water as the plane circled the third time. The ship rose easily. It was estimated that the plane was making 100 miles an hour as it passed from sight.

The "Whale" is a flying boat of gigantic proportions. When Courtney first announced his intention, some weeks ago, of flying across the Atlantic, he was conceded to have an excellent chance, for the expedition was completely equipped and the plane apparently capable of long sustained flight.

PLANE LIKE AMUNDSEN'S

Courtney's start follows by 22 hours the apparently ill-fated attempt of Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim, Capt. Leslie Hamilton and Lieut. Col. F. F. Minchin.

Capt. Courtney, a member of the British Royal Air Force, is one of England's best known fliers. He served with distinction in the World War. He has been most emphatic, during his long weeks of preparation, in saying that his is not a "stunt" flight, but an attempt to pioneer in ocean transportation by means of the flying boat. His plane is the same type as that used by Roald Amundsen in his Arctic explorations last year. It is equipped with all known safety devices, including both sending and receiving wireless sets. Necessary adjustments to these devices were largely to blame for the many postponements of the flight.

The original plan had been to fly from Valentia, Ireland, to Newfoundland, but Courtney indicated before the start that although he would pass over Ireland, he might choose the southern route and head toward the Azores.

HILL FLEES TO HAVANA

STREATOR, Ill., Sept. 3.—(AP)—The country-wide search for Harry D. Hill as the fugitive killer of his mother today centered in Cuba.

The 21-year-old son of a Streator oculist yesterday was reported to have been seen by a friend in Key West, Fla., and later was believed to have taken a boat for Havana.

Young Hill has been missing for nearly two weeks since the body of his mother was found in a shallow grave in the basement of their home.

ATLANTIC CITY, Sept. 3.—A small safe, said by police to have been stolen recently from the home of Evelyn Nesbit, former wife of Harry K. Furs and jewelry also were taken in the robbery. No arrests have been made.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—Hopes that a clue still may be found indicating the fate of the transatlantic monoplane, St. Raphael, were raised today as the result of a report made to the British air ministry that the German-American oil tanker Josiah Macy had seen a white light in the mid-ocean sky late Wednesday night.

The report, in a wireless message picked up from the Irish Broadcasting Company, said the Josiah Macy had sighted the tail light of a plane speeding westward at 9:44 o'clock Wednesday night. If the plane had been the St. Raphael it would mean that the fliers, Capt. Leslie Hamilton, Lieut. Col. F. F. Minchin and the Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim had completed at least the first half of their ocean hop without mishap.

FEAR WORST

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 3.—(INS.)—The airplane St. Raphael and its three daring occupants, dropped today into the limbo of the missing.

Despite reports from two transatlantic vessels that the light of an airplane had been sighted overhead far out at sea Wednesday night, no further word came today which might definitely indicate the fate of Capt. Leslie Hamilton, Lieut. Col. F. F. Minchin and the Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim, who left Upavon, England, Wednesday morning in an attempt to fly across the ocean.

READY TO TRY AGAIN

ST. JOSEPH, Que., Sept. 3.—(INS.)—With the damage caused by a forced descent in a hayfield here entirely repaired, the monoplane Royal Windsor, piloted by C. A. (Duke) Schiller and Phil Wood, was prepared today for an instant take-off on its interrupted flight from Windsor, Ontario to Windsor, England.

Schiller and Wood said they would leave today unless there were sharp changes in weather conditions.

The fliers were confident they would succeed this time in their attempt to fly across the Atlantic Ocean, and said they would keep a sharp lookout for the St. Raphael, missing England-to-Canada plane.

WEATHER DELAYS

CARIBOU, Me., Sept. 3.—(INS.)—Unsettled weather conditions today threatened to delay the start of Capt. Terry Tully and Lieut. James Metcalf on their interrupted flight from London, Ontario, to London, England.

The transatlantic plane "Sir John Carling," which was damaged when the fliers were forced to land here after losing their way in the fog, has been repaired, and Tully and Metcalf are awaiting only favorable weather for their take-off.

HOLIDAY HOURS AT POSTOFFICE

PRINCETON, Ind, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Three persons were killed and another injured, probably fatally, when a westbound Southern Railway passenger train hit an open switch and swung head-on into a Big Four coal train at Francisco Mine No. 2, at 1:40 o'clock this morning.

Fourteen other persons, mostly passengers on the Southern train bound from Louisville to St. Louis, were injured.

The dead: Thomas Nelson, 62, New Albany, engineer on the Southern train; Leonard Wilson, 44, Princeton, Southern fireman, and W. E. Anderson, Petersburg, Big Four fireman. The brakeman on the coal train, partially identified as a man named Stanley, was said by other members of the crew to be missing.

George Fluher, 40, Petersburg, engineer on the coal train, was injured so seriously that he is expected to die.

THUGS ROB ROLLING STORE

A rolling grocery store owned by F. B. Brandon of 7627 Penn avenue was held up and robbed of $300 by three bandits last night in Chislett street. It was the first time in the history of the Pittsburgh Police Department that such a holdup was recorded.

A boy had just purchased a bottle of milk and as he turned to leave his path was blocked by the three holdup men. They too asked for milk. When Brandon turned to get the milk he was recalled by one of the bandits, who forced him, at the point of a pistol, to lie on the floor. The money was then taken from the cash register. The three escaped in an automobile.

NAB GIRL HERE WITH MAN

Police arrested Olin Newman, 21, of Little Hocking, O., and Miss Goldie Haselton, 18, of Parkersburg, W. Va., in a room at 76 Congress street early this morning.

Newman abandoned his wife and a child, police say. Miss Haselton's mother, police were informed, had believed her daughter was on a motor trip with Newman's mother until it was learned the man and girl were in Pittsburgh together.

In Morals Court today Newman was turned over to department of justice agents and the girl was placed in custody of relatives.

BLAST ROUTS 3 FAMILIES

Three families were driven out, a two-story building was destroyed and another damaged last night by fire which followed a gas explosion at 1202 Electric avenue, North Braddock. Firemen from East Pittsburgh and North Braddock fought the flames for several hours. The damage was estimated at $7,000.

Plane Afire, Cloud Puts It Out

EL PASO, Tex., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Two uses for water—unique under the circumstances—have been demonstrated by Lieut. Emilio Carranza, nephew of the late Venustiano Carranza, former president of Mexico, who yesterday made the first non-stop flight from Mexico City to Jaurez.

While flying over an isolated section after he had covered about half of the 1,200 miles from Mexico City, a wing of his plane in which 400 liters of gasoline was stored, caught fire. As Lieut. Carranza prepared to use his parachute, he noticed a black cloud indicating a rainstorm was in progress a short distance off his course. He headed for the cloud and the rain extinguished the fire.

Honored at a banquet in Juarez last night with the creation of a new drink named after Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and himself, Carranza called for ice water to drink a toast to the American flier.

"Lindbergh is not only America's hero, but mine also," said the Mexican aviator as he drank the ice water.

He then tested the new drink, so prepared as to retain the colors of the Mexican flag—red, white and green.

Rogers Finds Dempsey In Great Shape—On the Links

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 2.—Just spent the day at Dempsey's camp. Watched him train. He is in great shape. He went out in 55 and came back in 69. Leo Flynn, his sparring partner, went out in 41, come in in 42. It looks like from what I saw they will send Flynn in against Tunney instead of Dempsey.

Yours,

WILL ROGERS.

AUTO CRASHES CAUSE SUITS

Damages of $12,000 are asked of the Checker Cab Company in a suit filed yesterday by Alice Zaremba, 16, and her father, John Zaremba. It is alleged that the girl was injured when a cab of the defendant company crashed into a machine in which she was riding August 14.

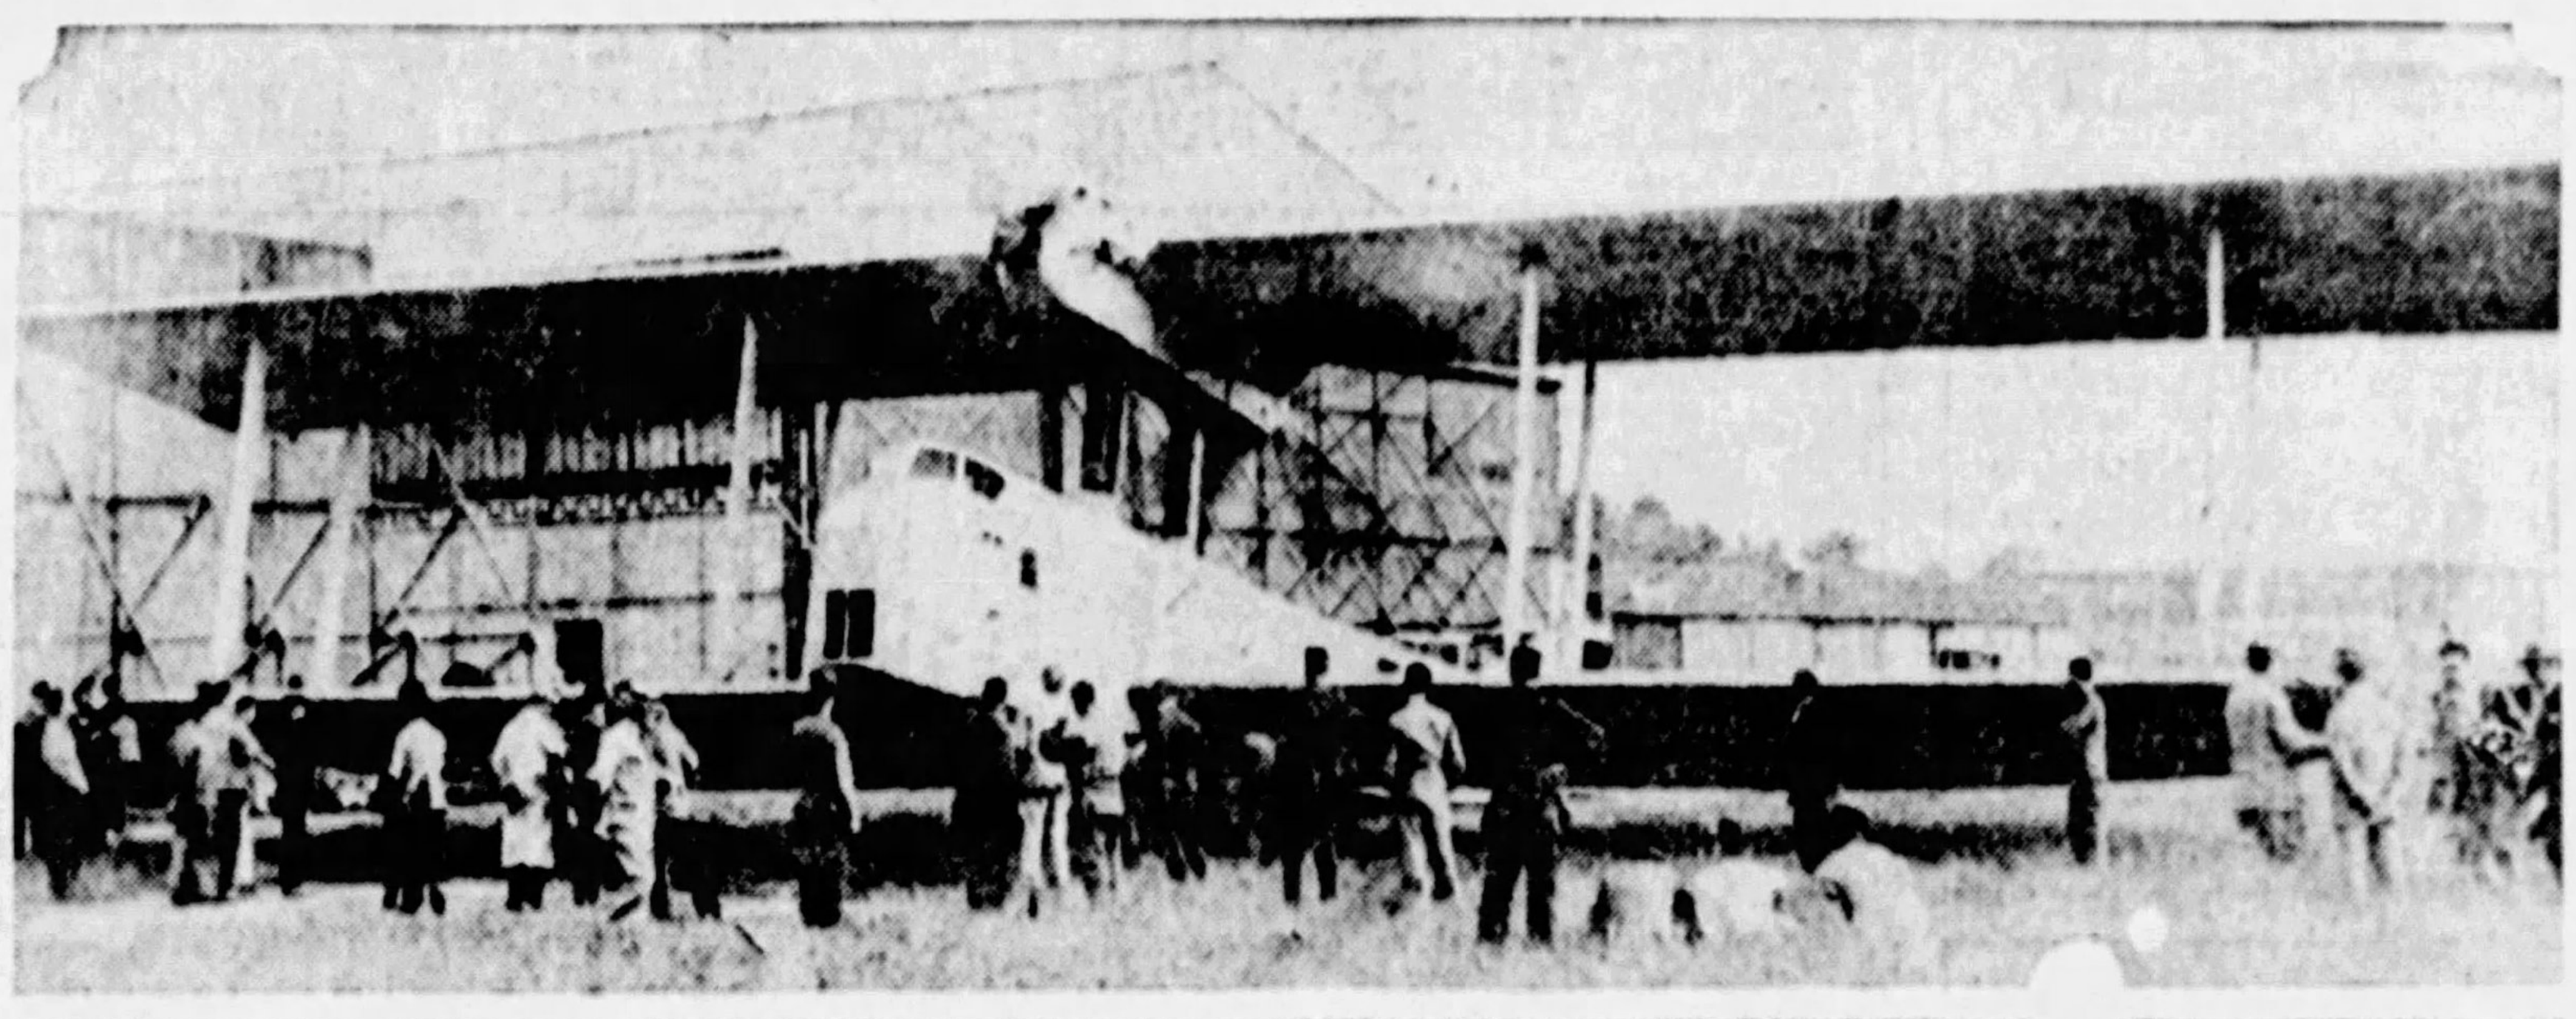
A suit for $20,000 damages was filed yesterday by Peter Dziak, father of Mildred Dziak, against Gebhard Beabe, on the claim that the girl was permanently disfigured when struck by the defendant's machine on September 4, 1925.

RUSH POLICE TO BODIES IN JAR

Police of Oakland Station this morning investigated a report that a double murder had been uncovered in a vacant house at 4615 Forbes street. The report, investigation disclosed, was circulated with the finding of two specimen jars evidently left in the house by medical students. The jars contained preserved parts of human bodies. They were removed to the coroner's office.

MRS. PHILLIP D. ARMOUR ESTATE LEFT TO J. OGDEN

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—Mrs. Philip D. Armour left the major part of her $800,000 estate to her son, J. Ogden Armour, it was revealed when her will was filed for probate. Her son died in London one month after her demise. The will further provides that on the death of her son, the estate is to go to his daughter, Mrs. John J. Mitchell. Approximately $100,000 was left to 30 friends and servants.



THROW AWAY WEIGHTY GASOLINE

At the take-off, the "Bluebird" (above) ran into a dense fog, above which it was unable to rise because of the weight of its gasoline, stored up for the long hop to America. Fearful of an accident, the pilot turned back to Le Bourget flying field, from which the plane had taken off. The weight prevented immediate landing and Givon circled for an hour and a half, while Corbu opened the valves and emptied most of the gasoline. The landing was made safely.

SHOW CARNEGIE TEACHERS HOW TO WIN PUPIL

Instructors at the Carnegie teachers' institute today arranged a model classroom, prepared it as exemplifying an inviting place for little folk to gather, and Dr. Percival W. Hutson of the University of Pittsburgh, told "How to Make the Classroom More Interesting to the Learner."

Seventy-five teachers and supervisors who compose the staff of the Carnegie schools attended the institute which opened Wednesday in the First Baptist Church, and closes today. When the borough schools open next week the pupils will be told something of the history of the beautiful Chartiers Valley as an additional means of making the classroom attractive.

N. L. Glasser, superintendent of the Carnegie schools, presided at the institute. The instructors were Mrs. Lois Owen, supervisor of school nursing, Pennsylvania State Department of Public Instruction; Miss I. Jewell Simpson, assistant state superintendent of public instruction of Maryland; Dr. W. D. Sones of the University of Pittsburgh; Mrs. Fadra Holmes Wilson of California (Pa.) Teachers' College; Dr. R. A. Waldron of Slippery Rock Teachers' College; Dr. Earl Barnes of New Hartford, Conn., and George A. Bryan, superintendent of music, Carnegie schools.

ACADEMY OF OUR LADY TO OPEN NEW BUILDINGS

Two large buildings, the new additions to Academy of Our Lady of Mercy, 3333 Fifth avenue, will be used for the first time Thursday, when the academy opens for the fall term. The buildings are McCauley Hall, a dormitory containing 100 rooms and a school building. The school building contains 12 class rooms, four laboratories, a domestic science room, a private dining room, a cafeteria and a lecture hall.

MASS MEETING HELD FOR DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATES

Democratic voters of the North Side held a mass meeting last night in old Allegheny City Hall, Ohio and Federal streets, in the interest of James Houlahen and P. F. Brennan, Democratic county commissioner candidates. Ralph E. Smith, former police magistrate, presided, and addresses were made by Attorney B. B. McGinnes, Candidates Houlahen and Brennan and others.

MURDER IN EAST LAID TO MAN

Antonio Politano, arrested as a suspect in the murder of Rocco Femia, the last gang war victim, has been identified as the man wanted in the murder of a Wilmington, Del., restaurant proprietor and will be returned to Wilmington. City Detective E. H. Wilson of Wilmington came here after local authorities obtained a confession to the Wilmington murder while grilling Politano.

PITT PLAYERS TO BE PRESS CLUB GUESTS

Members of the Pittsburgh Press Club will have as their guests tonight in their club quarters at 363 Wylie avenue the members of the stock company playing at the Pitt Theater. Thurston Hall, new leading man of the Sharp company, is a member of the club of long standing. Among those who will be present tonight will be Miss Ann Forrest.

Rancher Orders Meal And Waiters Sent By Airplane

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—The St. Francis Hotel here yesterday received an order for a 60-plate dinner to be delivered September 16 by airplane at the home of W. H. Moffitt, cattle rancher, near Reno, Nev.

Arrangements were made by telephone from the Moffitt ranch to forward the meal in an express airplane, with electric heaters to keep the food hot, a head waiter to superintend the serving and two aviators, properly attired, to serve.

COURT HEARS SUIT TO BAR WOODSIDE TUESDAY

The attempt of Controller C. C. McGovern to restrain the commissioners from printing the name of Robert G. Woodside, his only opponent, on the ballot, will be aired in court Tuesday. Former Attorney General George E. Alter has been retained to oppose the McGovern move.

G.O.P. COUNTERS 'SOUR GRAPES'

The Republican organization "is putting an end to petty politics and the strife which results from unrestrained ambition," County Commissioner E. V. Babcock told a mass meeting in the Homewood Carnegie Library, Thirteenth ward, last night.

Assistant United States District Attorney Ralph E. Smith, speaking in behalf of the organization judicial candidates, declared that most of the independent candidates for judge who are denouncing the slate "moved heaven and earth as far as they could to get on this ticket themselves."

"Not being able to get on themselves they are trying to belittle the ticket," he said. "They are of the type that is never satisfied to bow to the judgment and the will of the majority. Their efforts are but 'sour grapes'."

In addition to the candidates, the speakers were Ward Chairman Charles E. Hillegas and Registration Commissioner J. Scott Morgan.

ONE SLUGGED AS PICKETS CLASH WITH GUARDS

A clash between coal and iron police and union pickets at Van Essen Mine No. 3, Tom's Run road, has resulted in the arrest of E. C. Figart and S. C. Schwitzer, police officers employed by the Pittsburgh Coal Company, on charges of assault and battery, and Henry Bierman, union picket.

Bierman was talking to non-union miners outside of the coal company property when Figart is said to have felled him with a blackjack. While Schwitzer held Bierman, Figart is said to have chased Mike Parnatis, another miner, but the latter escaped, going to the office of Justice of the Peace Phillip Hillen at Heidelberg, and swearing out informations against the officers. Bierman was taken to the Carnegie police station by Schwitzer and the two policemen arrested by a constable from Justice Hillen's office. They were later released on $1,000 bail each.

CAWLEY MUST SHOW RECORD OF FINES

Alderman Patrick Cawley, charged with failure to make returns to the County Controller of fines collected from milk dealers arrested by his constables, was held over last night by Justice of the Peace Thomas E. Mallisee of Unity, until he produces certified records from the State Treasurer's office detailing payments.

Testimony was to the effect that Cawley's constables stopped the wagons of several milk dealers, searched them without warrants and fined them on the spot without benefit of a hearing. It was brought out that a search of the Controller's records failed to reveal returns from Cawley in these cases. The defendant branded the action against him as "political."

BOILING WATER KAYOS HUBBY

Mrs. Victoria Tuskin, 34, of 2734 Shelly street, defended herself with a pot of boiling water when her husband, John Tuskin, 35, is said to have wielded a milk bottle in their home this morning.

Police summoned by neighbors found Tuskin suffering from severe burns of the neck and body. He was taken to the Southside Hospital. Mrs. Tuskin was arrested charged with being a suspicious person pending the outcome of her husband's injuries.

HELD IN RAID AT MORROWFIELD

Joseph Peck, 40, 317 Gettysburg street, alleged lessee of the suite in the Morrowfield Apartment hotel raided by the police Wednesday night, was held for court in $1,000 bail on the charge of keeping a gambling house, by Magistrate John Orie at the Frankstown avenue police station this morning. Peck was arrested on a warrant sworn out by Inspector Bernard J. Kirley.

The Plays Stage and Screen And Players

THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH
SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1927

Significant, Yes? -:- Going Abroad -:- Living Neckpiece -:- Lured Back

COINCIDENT with announcement that James Cruze will direct "On to Reno," comes word from Hollywood he and his wife, Betty Compson, may separate.

RAYMOND GRIFFITH, it has been announced, will go to England this month to make a couple of pictures over there.

LELIA HYAMS, Warner Brothers player, has a Madagascar cat, which keeps her neck warm. Sometimes it is called a lemur. It's ferocious in its native wilderness, but she has it tamed.

GEORGE ARLISS, it is stated, plans to make another motion picture; "The Darling of the Gods." He has been in a couple of films.

Vilma Banky and Ronald Colman Will Bow Out As Screen Team in Blaze of Glory—Niblo to Direct

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Vilma Banky and Ronald Colman will bow out of the motion picture horizon as co-stars in a blaze of glory. Leave it to Samuel Goldwyn to make their swam song as a team as spectacular as is humanly possible. He has borrowed Fred Niblo from Joseph Schenck to direct them in "Leatherface," Baroness D'Orczy's novel, their final photodrama together.

This "Leatherface," my readers will remember, was suggested to Mr. Goldwyn by Mrs. Winifred Osborne of Milwaukee who won a prize of $2,500 for her efforts. The contest was conducted through these columns and nearly a million replies were received at the Goldwyn office.

The choice of Fred Niblo seems to me to be a particularly happy one. He shines in dramas of this type, and when Henry King and Samuel Goldwyn parted company every one was wondering who would direct Miss Banky and Mr. Colman. Work will be started immediately, after which a search will be made for individual starring vehicles for these two popular players.

Most motion picture stars are exceedingly chary about introducing relatives into the business. Too many relatives have been accepted on sufferance. However, Olive Borden need no longer refuse to admit that Natalie Joyce is her cousin. Olive introduced Miss Joyce to the Fox Company hoping she might get work as an extra girl. Buck Jones saw her and asked for her as his leading lady; then along came Tom Mix on the lookout for a new face in his Westerns. It was a lucky day for Miss Joyce, for within 24 hours she had been signed to play his leading lady in "Wildcat Law," an original by John Stone, destined for the next Mix special.

Tom told me when I saw him lunching at the Montmartre just before I left Hollywood that Victoria was returning home this month. She has been gone three months—long enough to have all the tongues wagging, that divorce was her purpose. But she can deny that when she lands here, the middle of September.

I do not suppose it makes a nickel's worth of difference to the average picture audience whether there are too many backgrounds or too few. Yet, here we have Harry Oliver, art director, taking the rostrum to say that backgrounds detract from the action. Mr. Oliver, who was art director for Douglas Fairbanks' "Gaucho" and for "Seventh Heaven," says he has a new camera angle which he will use when he directs a picture for the Fox company some time within the next month. He believes a background can be fogged until it is almost invisible, leaving only the characters to carry on the action. Well, we'll wait and see. Germany did some camera angles and got away with it, why not a bright young American?

The most popular question in New York today is, have you seen Ruth Taylor, what does she look like, will she be good in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes?" There is a vast diversity of opinion on Miss Taylor's fitness for the role of Lorelei, the little blonde gold-digger in Anita Loos' story. Some people maintain that it is too great a risk to take an unknown for a part that is of such universal interest. Others think "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" is a big enough story to carry an unknown. Certainly it is that an unknown usually gets the big plums in these pictures. Take Betty Bronson in "Peter Pan" and Janet Gaynor in "Seventh Heaven." Some day I'm going to discuss this in a Sunday feature for there is much to be said for and against raising an unknown into prominence without proper preparation.

McGOWAN ORCHESTRA IN KENNYWOOD PARK

There will be dancing this afternoon and evening in Kennywood Park to music furnished by Bob McGowan and his orchestra. Tomorrow afternoon and evening there will be concerts by Danny Nirella and his band of red coats. Their selections will consist of popular and classical numbers. All of the amusements will be in full swing.

The highway leading to Kennywood Park has been open all season. There is trolley service throughout the entire day.

SPECIAL EXCURSIONS FOR HOMER SMITH

A special moonlight and matinee excursions will be held on the steamer Homer Smith, Labor Day. There will be dancing on both trips, with music by Everett Merrill's seven-piece orchestra. The afternoon trip goes down the Ohio River. This affords an opportunity for viewing the scenic beauties of the Sewickley Valley by daylight. The usual two trips will run on Sundays.

Snow Storm Delights Director But Star Not So Pleased

Snow is not an easy thing to find in Hollywood, especially in the spring or early summer. So when Director Rupert Julian needed snow scenes for "The Country Doctor," he was forced to take his company, headed by Rudolph Schildkraut and Junior Coghlan, on quite a jaunt.

After considering a number of locations, Mr. Julian decided that Mt. Rainier, which lies just south of Seattle, would be best. He not only found plenty of snow, for Mt. Rainier is snowcapped the year round, but he also ran into a heavy storm, which was necessary for some of the thrilling sequences of the picture.

Mr. Julian considered this a stroke of luck, but Rudolph Schildkraut, who plays the title role and who drove an old horse, hitched to a sleigh, up a mountain road through a blinding storm, did not agree with him with any great amount of enthusiasm.

Nearly Hundred Years Later "Hesperus" Wrecked Again

Rain and wind whistling through her canvas—spars snapping, cracking and crashing from aloft—her crew crazed by the fury of the storm—her mainmast toppling to the deck—and she pounding herself to pieces on the menacing rocks of Norman's Woe.

Such was "The Wreck of the Hesperus," immortalized by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow in his famous ballad, and to be brought to the screen as a Pathe-De Mille special. Elmer Clifton is now directing the production.

Stark realism is the goal of the producers, since the storm about which Longfellow's poem was written was one of the most terrific of maritime record. This storm, which occurred December 15, 1839, witnessed the loss of countless vessels, among them the "Hesperus."

Featured in the leading romantic roles of "The Wreck of the Hesperus" are Frank Marion and Virginia Bradford, a junior "team" of screen lovers. Alan Hale, Sam DeGrasse, Slim Summerville, Ethel Wales, Josephine Norman and Milton Holmes are others of the cast.

MARIE SAXON STARS IN "RAMBLER" CAST

Clark and McCullough, in "The Ramblers," will give zest to the reopening of the Alvin Monday afternoon, Labor Day. Running second to Clark and McCullough in the billing is Marie Saxon, who appeared for two years in New York as the head of "Merry Merry" and "My Girl." Georgia O'Ramey also is prominent in "The Ramblers."

Elizabeth Hines, who is featured in George White's new musical comedy, "Manhattan Mary," coming to the Nixon next Monday night, has played in the title parts of George M. Cohan's "The Rise of Rosie O'Reilly" and "The O'Brien Girl."

What happens when youth, sunshine and laughter is suddenly dropped into the lives of three crusty old bachelors is disclosed in "Three Wise Fools," the attraction in the Pitt next week. The engagement will open with a special holiday matinee Monday.

The Keith-Albee vaudeville in the comfortable Davis, beginning Monday, presents Ned Wayburn, introducing his dancers and singers. The comedy drama, "Is Zat So?" will be on the screen. Edmund Lowe and George O'Brien are starred.

Jerry Goff, baritone, a New Brighton boy, will return home as a member of the "Manhattan Mary" cast, after two years in New York. Following a tour with a road company of "The Student Prince" he organized the Embassy Trio and worked with it in vaudeville.

WEBSTER HALL OPENS SEASON LABOR DAY

Dewey Bergman and his orchestra will return to Webster Hall for the opening of the fall season on Labor Day. The orchestra will play for the dance Labor Day night in the Georgian room. It will be heard nightly for dinner dancing and for the regular Friday and Saturday night dances.

Among those who have reserved tables for the Labor Day dance is Miss Alfhild Larson, National Queen of Fashion, who is entertaining a group of her friends.

"ALMOST HUMAN" TITLE OF VERA REYNOLDS' FILM

The title of Vera Reynolds' latest DeMille picture has been changed from "Beautiful But Dumb" to "Almost Human." Frank Urson directed and Kenneth Thomson, former Pittsburgher, appears opposite the star.

HIGH DIVER COMES TO WEST VIEW PARK

West View Park has booked Capt. "Smiles" O'Timmons, Eightieth Division war veteran, who has but one arm and one leg. "Smiles" will leap from 116-foot ladder into a tank containing four feet of water after setting himself afire. He is known as "the human flame." He will appear today, Sunday and Labor Day.

Dancing and band concerts are on the card for Sunday and the holiday. The Grand Army Band will give two concerts Sunday afternoon and evening. Danny Nirella and his orchestra will play for dancing tonight and on Labor Day and Nirella's band will give concerts Monday afternoon and night.

Miss Ethel Seaver Tonight Will Wed James Verner at Woodland Lodge Home

AT 6:30 o'clock tonight on the lawn of Woodland Lodge, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Seaver in Hulton road, Oakmont, the marriage of their daughter, Miss Ethel Seaver, and James Verner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Scott Verner, of Hulton road, will be solemnized by the Rev. Dr. Stuart Nye Hutchison, pastor of the East Liberty Presbyterian Church, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Edgar Jones, rector of St. Thomas' Memorial Episcopal Church, Oakmont. The bride will wear white georgette velvet embroidered with crystals, with a veil of real Venise lace, and she will carry a shower of white roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Virginia Seaver will be her sister's maid of honor, wearing a period gown of taffeta shading from yellow to brown, and carrying yellow dahlias. Similarly fashioned frocks will be worn by the bridesmaids, Miss Priscilla J. Verner, sister of the bridegroom, in green; Miss Marie D. Chalfant, in sky blue, and Miss Mary Seaver, sister of the bride, in pink touched with orchid. Their flowers will be orchid dahlias. Eyvind M. Verner is to be his brother's best man and the ushers will include Lynford A. Keating, Etienne C. Perenyi, Wilson S. Bailey and Morris Scott Verner, Jr. A Dinner and reception will follow the ceremony, with covers laid for 12 at the bridal table. Mr. and Mrs. Verner will be at home in Springdale after October 1.

WOMEN VOTERS' LEAGUE PLANS FOR BUSY SEASON

With the approach of fall the many units of the Allegheny County League of Women Voters are busily preparing for a new season, and the majority of these will open the season next week. The mother organization—the County League—will begin with nightly radio talks over KQV, in which the listeners-in will be urged to vote on September 20.

The Penn Township League will hold its first meeting Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Thad Stephens School. This is to be a "get together meeting." A full discussion of the fall primaries, in the form of a nonpartisan talk, will be given by Mrs. Elizabeth B. Motz.

The North Side Federation of the County League will hold a candidates' meeting Tuesday and 12:30 o'clock luncheon in the North Side Community House, Union avenue. Mrs. Harry C. Miller, chairman of the North Side Federation, will preside. Assisting her with arrangements are Mrs. T. C. VanKirk, chairman of the Twenty-first Ward League; Miss Anna T. Law, of the Twenty-second Ward League; Mrs. A. L. Fillmore, Twenty-fifth Ward League; Mrs. Elmer Kenneweg, Twenty-sixth Ward League, and Mrs. Homer N. Young, of the Twenty-seventh Ward League. Reservations for luncheon may be made through Mrs. Miller or through any local chairman and non-members have been invited as well.

All candidates for county offices have been invited to attend a candidates' meeting in the Knoxville School, Knox and Rochelle avenues, Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. The meeting is being held by the Twenty-ninth and Thirtieth Ward leagues. Mrs. Charles Moffatt and Mrs. Ellsworth Trott are in charge of the arrangements.

The Eighth Ward League will meet in the parlor of the Athalia Daly Home, Gross street, Wednesday night, when a discussion of the primaries will be given.

Mrs. E. F. White will be hostess to the Thirteenth Ward League at her home in Hamilton avenue Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. An interesting program has been arranged. At this time plans will be made for a large open meeting to be held the following Thursday evening in the Homewood Library, with Mrs. John O. Miller, state chairman, as the speaker. The Thirteenth Ward League will take up its work this fall under a new regime. Instead of a chairman as its head, a committee of five will act as a governmental body. The members of this committee are Mrs. W. H. Dosey, Mrs. Margaret Hugus, Mrs. S. J. Russell, Mrs. E. F. White and Mrs. Charles Wise.

The Stowe Township League will hold an open candidates' meeting Thursday evening in the Stowe Township High School. Mrs. John M. Roth is in charge.

Mrs. Norah Greenfield will be hostess to the Oakdale League on Friday evening, when Mrs. Motz will speak.

The Edgewood League has sent invitations to all candidates to attend a public meeting in the Edgewood High School Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

The September quarterly tea will take place at the Congress of Clubs on the afternoon of September 19.

The first fall meeting of the Allegheny County Council, American Legion Auxiliary, will be held in the Congress clubhouse, Wednesday afternoon. An executive board meeting has been called for 1:30 o'clock.

A picnic will be held in the shelter house at Highland Park next Saturday by members of the Ohio State Woman's Club. The committee in charge consists of Miss Ada Staub, Mrs. G. E. Stolz, Mrs. J. L. McClellan and Miss Marion Hindman.

The department of fine arts of Carnegie Institute announces that it again will provide gallery guidance for women's clubs desirous of visiting the international art exhibit, which opens October 13. Miss Margaret M. Lee, director of educational work, again is looking after the club groups.

Mrs. George J. Campbell, treasurer of the Sarah Sloan Scholarship Club, who will be hostess at a bridge benefit for the club on September 17, will entertain the benefit committees at luncheon in her home, "Maple Lane," Wildwood, next Thursday.

The Ladies Auxiliary of Zoar Home will give a bazar and supper Thursday at the home in Allison Park. The bazar opens at 2 o'clock and supper will be served from 5 until 7 o'clock. Mrs. S. F. Gordon is executive chairman of the affair.

Hadassah Chapter of Pittsburgh will hold the first board meeting of the year Wednesday afternoon at the Y. M. & W. H. A. on Bellefield street. Important business will be discussed and the report of the annual convention of Hadassah chapters held in Atlantic City last June will be presented.

Tiolene
MOTOR OIL
Why Tiolene Gives More Miles Per Fill

THE Tiolene films of lubrication are tissue-thin but tough. They will spread between your motor's closest-fitting bearing surfaces, yet they can withstand the gruelling attack of heat and grinding friction.

The films of Tiolene are tough because they are "full-bodied." Tiolene resists "thinning-out" under heat.

The remarkable heat resistance which enables Tiolene to give such long-lived service, is inherited from the famous amber-colored Cabin Creek crude. This super-Pennsylvania crude is the highest grade, highest priced, petroleum found on this continent. Tiolene is the only motor oil made from Cabin Creek crude.

And in refining—no care is spared, no cost is stinted, to better the natural goodness of this premium crude.

The finished Tiolene is 100% Super-Pennsylvania Motor Oil. Its tough films lubricate and protect long after ordinary oils have thinned out and broken down. Try a crank-case full of Tiolene! You will discover a smoother glide in your motor's operation. You will find, too, that Tiolene gives more miles of safe lubrication per fill.

ELINOR GLYN tells the TRUTH about

Good Luck

PEOPLE are always talking about "chance" and "luck". But just stop a moment to think and you will realize that every action, every thought grows out of the one which preceded it; so it is quite simple to see that if intense care is used to direct the actions wisely, their follow-on must be good, and will bring automatically "good luck."

ELINOR GLYN

"Chance" is produced by a conglomeration of circumstances, which if we could see plainly enough we would realize we have attracted to ourselves. The wise man or woman—boy or girl—is he or she who cultivates a strong will and a discerning mind which can look ahead and prepare its own good luck. And when a turn of bad luck seems to be on, can analyze every aspect of it and come to some conclusions as to what caused it. And if at the end of the process no explanation is forthcoming, at least the strong will and discerning mind will make the best of every chance to get out of the vicious circle, and into a good one.

The unhappy people in life are the drifters who never fight circumstance or resist temptations. There are some people who seem to have been born with the golden spoon in their mouth, and others who seem to be doomed to misfortune, in neither case by their personal actions—but we do not know what their spirits drew in ages past, nor what experience the Creator of all things may be giving them. All we do know is that will and intelligence can and do carve fortune, and so we had better try to acquire these qualities instead of trusting to luck!

Dorothy Dix Says:

LESS MONEY ON HER BACK, MORE IN THE BANK FOR HER WOULD MAKE DAUGHTER HAPPY AFTER MARRIAGE.

THERE is one foreign custom that we would do well to adopt and that is, giving dowries to our daughters when they marry.

We are virtually the only civilized people that send a girl empty handed to her husband. In Continental Europe as soon as a girl baby is born her parents religiously begin to put aside whatever they can afford toward her marriage portion, and they regard this as a sacred fund, not to be touched except in cases of dire necessity. But American parents spend all their money in dressing their daughters up in order to help them catch husbands, and then leave George to do the rest.

Of course, we flamboyantly boast that American men are not fortune-hunters and that they marry a girl for what she is herself and not for what she has. Also, that our girls are so attractive that parents do not have to offer a bonus with them to get husbands for them, and we point with pride to the fact that poor girls generally have more beaux than rich girls and generally make better matches.

All of which is true, so far as it goes.

Whatever their other faults, our men do not sell themselves in marriage. Statistics show that the percentage of old maids among millionairesses is far greater than it is among shop girls, and the American girl can truly say that her face is her fortune and that her father's rate in Bradstreet does not affect her rating with young men.

But, while money does not materially help a girl to get a husband—indeed, if she has too much, it handicaps her in getting the right sort of husband—it affects her status after marriage. For husbands are, after all, human, and it is not in human nature for any of us not to have a little bit more respect for the one who has money and is financially independent of us than we have for the pauper who has not a cent of his or her own and who is utterly dependent upon us.

It is not a lovely characteristic, but it is a universal one.

So, human nature being what it is, the girl who has a dowry, even if it is a small one, can be very sure that she will be treated by her husband with a little more consideration than she would be if she had nothing at all of her own. He will never look upon her as a domestic slave, as so many men do their wives, because the possession of even a little money will enable her to leave him if he abuses her. And if a wife's private income enables her to contribute to the family support, he is bound to regard her as his equal and as a business partner.

Many a man is rude and insolent and overbearing toward his wife simply because he knows that she has to stick it out, no matter how badly he treats her, because she hasn't a penny of her own. She has nowhere to go if she left him and she would starve except for the bitter bread that he gives her. But the man who has a wife who is financially independent of him and who can pack her trunk and leave if he doesn't make things pleasant for her, minds his p's and q's if he wants to keep her. So parents can do nothing better for their daughters than to make it worth while for their husbands to be polite to them.

Furthermore, it adds immeasurably to any woman's happiness to have a little money of her own that she can spend as she pleases without giving an account of it to her husband. Perhaps no man ever really understands what a humiliation it is to a woman to have to ask her husband for every cent and to have to submit to him every bill.

This is true even when the husband is generous; but when the husband is close-fisted, as only too often he is, it becomes a horror that poisons a woman's whole married life and engenders in her a rankling resentment that in time makes her come to hate the man she is bound to.

Many a woman who now finds marriage a failure would find it a success if only she had enough money of her own to dress on or to take an occasional trip or to indulge herself now and then in some little foolish fancy.

Moreover, giving girls dowries is a mere act of justice toward the husband, among a people who pamper and spoil their daughters inordinately as we do. Certainly the fathers and mothers who cultivate in their girls chiffon-silk-stocking and imported-finery tastes owe it not only to the girls themselves, but to the young men they marry to provide them with the money to supply these luxuries.

It is asking too much of any poor young chap working on a small salary and ambitious to get ahead in the world to support his bride in the way to which her father has accustomed her and to provide her with the cars and dinner dances and servants to which she is used.

Therefore, if parents wish their petted darlings to continue to be dolled up like Solomon in all his glory and spend their lives amusing themselves, it is certainly up to father and mother to apply the wherewithal and not expect a poor young man to work himself to death to furnish the money for her extravagance.

Of course, there are parents who are unable to do more than support their families and who can never lay aside anything for their daughters' dowries. In lieu of this they can have their girls taught some trade whereby they may support themselves, and this is a good substitute for the dowry. For the girl who can make her own living has the equivalent of money in the bank. She is never the helpless sport of chance, nor is she ever wholly dependent on her husband, as the untrained woman is.

But there are thousands upon thousands of families that could give their daughters dowries if they only realized its importance and the factor it is in the girl's happiness. And I hope the time will come when some of the big insurance and trust companies will take up this subject and work out some sort of a dowry policy through which, by means of small monthly payments started when she was in the cradle, every girl could be assured of having something of her own when she got married.

It would be a lot better for our daughters if we put less on their backs and more into the bank for them.

Dad's Girl -:- What a Difference a Generation Makes -:- Drawn by Dorothy Flack

WASN'T she the sweetest thing—Dad's girl of yesterday? Modest, obedient, retiring, lovely little thing she was. To her, Dad and Mother were the most wonderful people in the world. She wouldn't dream of doing a single thing of which they didn't approve. Their word was law to her in everything.

But today! Oh, how different! Dad's girl has a daughter, and what a difference just a few years have made!

She's just as sweet and just as lovely as Mother, but there the similarity ends. She has her own ideas and ideals, and she clings to them. Mother and Dad are "sweet, old things, but SO old-fashioned, you know!" Sometimes they feel about Daughter as they would if some kind friend suddenly sent them a caged lion.

But they needn't worry, for down in her heart she's the same sweet girl that Mother was, only the modern times demand a different expression. But eventually she'll settle down to a life of love and happiness—and then history will repeat itself in her life, and she'll some day understand Mother and Dad's "Wonder-what-it's-all-about" attitude.

Quicksands of Love By ADELE GARRISON

Dicky Accuses Madge of Slowly Poisoning Him.

WITH a look at me which gathered into itself all the enmity and jealousy which had lain between us for years, Edith Fairfax hurried out of Dicky's office, and in another minute he and I, facing each other with tense savagery, heard the outer door slam and knew that we were alone on the floor.

"Now!" I exclaimed, catching my breath with the realization that I was to hear the terrible thing which Dicky believed of me, and which had changed his words and actions to those of an apparently insane person.

"Now!" Dicky echoed the word in horrible mockery. "You're all ready to play the injured innocence role, aren't you? But it won't do. I'm going to tell you this in words of one syllable or thereabouts, and I don't think you'll have the gall to utter a single yeep when I'm through."

He drew a deep breath, and I edged nearer the door. I had seen Dicky in a temper often, but this was something altogether foreign to my experience of him. I began to be afraid that his anger might change to a sudden burst of murderous rage.

"When I went to my physician at your father's urging," he began slowly, "although you tried to keep me from consulting one, he told me that I was being slowly poisoned——"

"Poisoned!" My lips formed the word, but no sound came from them. I was incapable of speech or movement. Dicky was no longer like a madman, but instead more like an implacable prosecuting attorney summing up his evidence. What nightmare was this which was oppressing me?

"Of course I scoffed at his finding, but he insisted and made me recount everything I ate and drank. He finally decided that the only thing I took which was unshared by others was that fruit juice dope. I nearly knocked him down when he told me that I must pretend to drink it each night, must go on just as I had done, breathing no word to anyone, but that I must throw away all of it except enough to bring him for analysis each day. I don't need to tell you the poison he found in it the very first time he tested it, although it took me quite a while to dope out where you could have gotten it. But I fancy great dramatic producers have——"

"Stop!" My voice was a shriek, so anguished that even Dicky, self-centered in his narrative, obeyed it.

"Do you mean to tell me that because a physician found poison in that drink—something that might be explained by an accident—you believed that of me?"

But Dicky only laughed sneeringly.

"I thought you'd hand that out" he said. "No, my angel of light, I didn't believe it of you until after weeks of analyzing that stuff every day, we found that at intervals varying from two days to almost a week, the poison kept recurring. Oh! it was well planned, so that I might not get ill too quickly. If it hadn't been for your father's insistence I would have been too far gone by the time I got hep."

The bitter contempt of his tone was like the thrust of a jagged knife. But the very awfulness of the accusation had steeled me. I advanced a step toward him.

"I am asking you nothing for myself," I said. "If for a single instant you could think that of me, then the end indeed has come for both of us. But I happen to be Junior's mother, and he shall not be permitted to have a thing like this shadowing his life. For his sake, you've got to watch with me up at the apartment until I get at the bottom of this thing."

Dicky laughed sneeringly.

"Trying to shift the blame to some other shoulders?" he asked.

But I was detached, outside of all sneers, all my faculties focused upon one thing.

"I would not accuse a dog upon such evidence as that you say you have," I said steadily. "I simply demand that for Junior's sake, you watch with me every night before and after I make that drink, for which you, yourself must purchase the materials, until we find out the truth of this. Will you do it?"

He stared at me for a long minute, then he struck one fist into the other.

"Yes, I will, look here——"

"Tonight, then," I said. "Buy the fruit, the sugar, the ginger ale and bring them home with you."

I turned and fairly ran for the stairs. I was afraid that I might break down, and that to me now would have been unthinkable. I stumbled down the stairs, signaled the first taxicab I saw, directed the chauffeur to drive to the nearest telegraph station. And there I sent a wire to Hugh Grantland:

"Am in terrible trouble. Please come at once."

SAYINGS OF MRS. SOLOMON

By HELEN ROWLAND

GETTING A MAN'S NUMBER.

Verily, my Daughter, if thou wouldst know MEN, their ways and their byways, their sins and their idiosyncrasies, I charge thee, get thee to a Country House, and study them in the RAW!

For, lo, in one week-end party thou shalt learn more of the secret workings and inner tubes of a man's nature, than in ten years of "companionship" in a Great City.

HELEN ROWLAND

Go to. By the gifts which a man bringeth, when he cometh, thou canst not measure his generosity. But by the look in the eyes of the servants, when he departeth, thou shalt know his tightness. And a Scotch-tip leaveth no smile upon the face of the cook!

Behold, he that ariseth with the lark and singeth as the bobolink in his bath, may be a Merry Sunshine in the home. Yet life with such an one might seem as life beside a merry-go-'round or a steam-drill. And even the voices of angels and Carusos are not welcome before dawn!

But he that tiptoeth softly down the stairs and getteth his own coffee is filled with sweetness and light and consideration and will never wreck a woman's dreams.

Lo, a man may be covered with polish and courtliness when he weareth his evening coat; but in a bathing suit he is au-naturel! And he that tracketh wet sand across the floors would peradventure tread carelessly upon a woman's nerves all the days of his life. But he that stoppeth at the portal to remove the sand from his feet, and leaveth his bathing sandals beside the kitchen door hath a heart full of tenderness.

He that sitteth before the open fire and maketh ardent love may be thrilling. But he that bringeth in the kindling and luggeth up the logs from the cellar is more comforting.

He that eateth with frank relish and heartiness, and praiseth the cook within her hearing, is a joy to the spirit of an hostess. For his stomach is in the right place, and his heart also.

But he that "picketh" delicately at the food and calleth for many relishes and sauces, is not to be taken seriously. For a little epicure is a deadly thing!

He that hangeth up his own clothes and splasheth not the bath-room mirror is rarer than rubies. But he that leaveth the bath-room looking as though struck by flood and tornado and lightning is a potential Sultan, who regardeth all women as his natural "slaves."

He that is gallant to all the women within thine house, and divideth his attentions equally amongst them is a delight to the heart and an ideal guest. But beware of him that seeketh a secret "date" with each damsel! For, he is "every woman's darling!" And chivalry is not IN him.

Verily, verily, for nine months of the year a man may shine as a gallant, a charmer, and a sheik. But in the good old Summer time, he relaxeth and is HIMSELF! And only his wife and his week-end hostess knoweth ANY man!

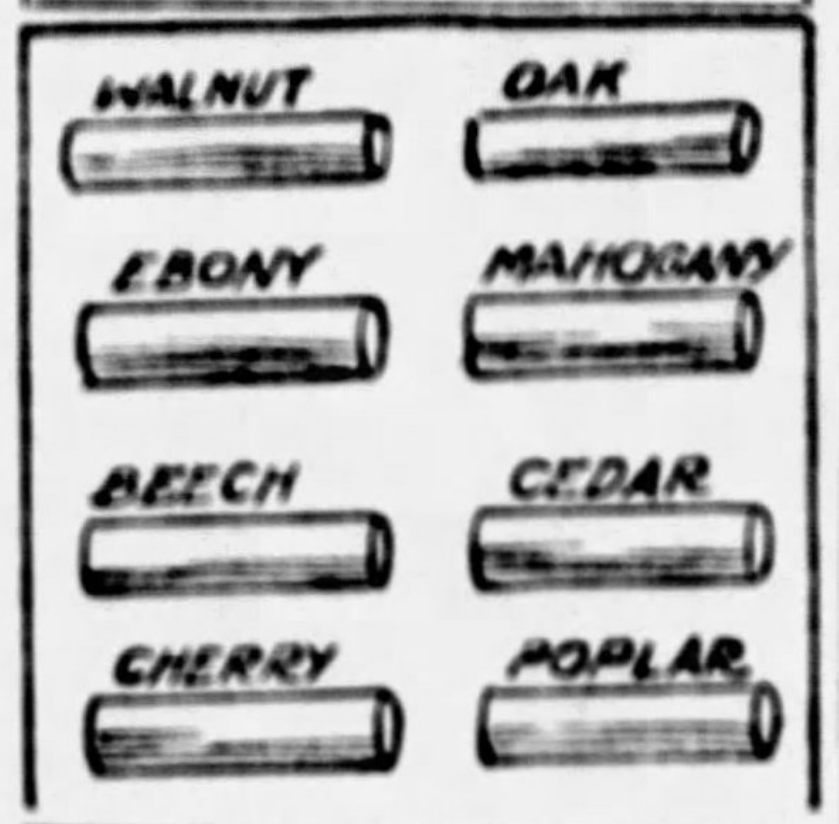
TEASERS



WOODS

The names of eight kinds of wood are given here.

Look them over and try to pick out the wood which is the heaviest.

Monday's "check-up" will give the correct answer.

YESTERDAY'S TEASER

To draw all 9 signal flags correctly, exceptional; 8, very good; 7, good; 6, average; less than 5, poor.

(Copyright by Public Ledger.)

WHAT'S the ANSWER?

1. What is Mons Meg?
2. Why does wood shrink when it is wet?
3. Where do we get the names of the notes in the scale used in singing?
4. Why are white clothes cooler than black ones?
5. What are the Lost Arts?
6. What is a palindrome?
7. Why do water pipes burst when they freeze?
8. Why do we call an insane asylum a bedlam?
9. What three generals were never defeated?
10. Who was the Ayrshire Ploughman?

The answers to these questions may be found in tomorrow's paper.

Here are the answers to yesterday's questions:

1. An Auto da Fe was an act of faith. It was the burning of the victims condemned by the Inquisition. They were burned because the church was forbidden to "shed blood."

2. R. D. Blackmore wrote "Lorna Doone."

3. There is a height above which an airplane cannot go, because as the plane rises the air finally gets too thin to hold up the wings.

4. The Iron Crown is so called because of a narrow band of iron on the inside, which is said to have been made from one of the nails used at the Crucifixion. Napoleon was crowned with this crown.

5. The walls of the inside of a shell cause many small echoes. When one holds the shell to his ear some sounds from the street or room get into the shell, and these echo inside and make a rumble that sounds like waves.

6. Charing Cross, a center of life and activity in London, is supposed to be a corruption if "La Chere Reine" (The Dear Queen), which was inscribed on a cross erected at this spot by Edward I, King of England, to the memory of his beloved wife Queen Eleanor.

7. A Papal Bull is a decree of the Pope having a leaden seal attached by a cord. This seal is a "bulla" in Latin, and the decree takes its name from it.

8. Delaware is named for Thomas West, Lord de La War, who was the first to enter the bay in 1610, and the first governor of the Virginia colony.

9. We get our word "tantalize" from Tantalus, who after his death was condemned to external hunger and thirst, although he stood in water to his chin, with delicious fruits overhead.

10. The Rialto is the largest and finest bridge in Venice. It connects the island of Rialto with the isle of St. Mark, across the Grand Canal. It dates from 1588.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland M.D. U.S. Senator from New York

OVER REFINEMENTS BAD FOR DIGESTION.

IN a previous article I told you all about the small intestine and what it does for us. The food was traced from the stomach where it is liquefied to the small intestine where the process of digestion is absorbed into the blood.

DR COPELAND

The last portion of the small intestine is called the "ileum." This is the division connecting the "jejunum" with the large intestine.

The first part of the large intestine is the "cecum." Into one side of this enters the ileum. Guarding this passageway is a gate, called the "ileocecal valve." I shall say a word about this in a moment.

The two intestines, the small and the large, work together, not unlike the parts of a threshing machine. The chaff is separated from the wheat—the valuable food substances are separated from the indigestible and useless waste material. The small intestine abstracts the wheat. The large intestine receives and disposes of the waste.

If we could find perfect food, free from all impurities and indigestible substances, there would be no use for the large intestine. It has nothing to do with digestion. It is really the garbage receptacle of the digestive household.

But I must not give you an idea that the indigestible things have no useful part in the process. They really do have. There must be something to stimulate and excite the muscular movements of the intestinal walls. The fibre of a vegetable like celery, the tendon of meat, the skin of fruits and the seeds of berries—all these substances act like brushes to cleanse the lining of the canal and to stimulate the necessary muscle action.

The stripping and constricting action of the intestinal walls causes the intestinal contents to move forward and downward. When this action is regular and dependable, there are regular bowel movements and freedom from constipation.

Unfortunately, the habits of civilization, together with neglect of such manner of living as guarantees perfect muscles in every part of the body, result in intestinal stagnation and all the evils of constipation.

To this state of affairs, bad as it is, is added another hazard. The bowel contents ferment, producing gas and poisonous products which may be absorbed by the body.

To guard against the backing up of these putrefying substances and the infection of the small intestine, the ileo-cecal valve is provided. Unfortunately, that does not succeed always in guarding the super bowel.

Constipation is a symptom only, but when it is long continued, there are results which damage the entire body. Headache, lassitude, backache, sleeplessness, bad dreams, nervousness and loss of appetite are a few of the effects.

The vitality is lowered and the system is ready to yield to the germs of disease. Sore throat, tonsilitis and other ailments are invited if constipation is permitted to continue.

The large intestine should be kept clear by natural methods. Pills, powders, laxatives and cathartics are makeshifts. They serve only to perpetuate the tendency to constipation.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

L. E. D. Q.—What can I do to get rid of blackheads?

2.—What causes a red nose?

A.—This requires special treatment.

2.—Poor circulation, indigestion and constipation are usually at fault for this trouble. Sometimes it is associated with stoppage of the nose from catarrh. In the cure, first consideration must be given to the removal of the cause.

Blaw Knox Common Moves Higher

A three-point bulge in Blaw Knox Steel common was the only noteworthy incident in the short session of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today. While only a few shares of the stock changed hands, the tone was exceptionally strong and there were very few offers at near the prevailing price level. The upturn in Blaw Knox today follows a four-point rise in the issue yesterday when it came into the trading for the first time in about three weeks. Improvement noted in several branches of the steel industry yesterday together with the fact that some of the Blaw Knox specialties have a good round the year market regardless of general conditions, were contributory factors to the rise yesterday and today. The stock opened today at 85, up three points from yesterdays close. This constitutes a new high record and exceeds the previous maximum, recorded early in the year, by two points.

Miscellaneous stocks were rather quiet. Lone Star was quiet around the previous closing price of 48¼. Arkansas Gas dropped back a small fraction after opening at 9 15-16. Devonian Oil was unchanged. American Window Glass Machine changed hands at 35, the price at which it has been selling for a month or more. In the bank section a block of 11 shares Peoples Savings & Trust came out at 525, comparing with the last previous sale at 520.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Picture Capital Passes Dividend.

Motion Picture Capital Corporation has passed the quarterly dividend of 25 cents on the common stock, due at this time. The corporation reports for seven months ended July 31, 1927, net income as $161,742 after taxes and all other charges. The corporation declared the regular dividend on the preferred stock.

Imperial Buys Canadian Galena.

Explanation of the recent rise in Imperial Oil, Ltd., on the Curb is had in the announcement that the company has purchased the Galena Signal Company of Canada, formerly owned by Galena Signal Oil. The deal is seen as an indication of further changes in the organization and policies of Standard Oil of New Jersey which controls Imperial. The price at which the latter took over the Canadian Galena company was not stated.

Splitdorf Expanding.

Walter Rautenstrauch, president of the Splitdorf-Bethlehem Electrical Company, announces the purchase by the company of the Perfection Appliance Company of Detroit, manufacturers of electric ironing machines for household use. This marks the introductory step of Splitdorf in the electrical household equipment field.

Seminole Works Higher.

Production of crude oil in the Seminole area for 24 hours ended 7 a. m. Friday totaled 419,693 barrels from 135 wells, as against 412,494 barrels from 133 wells Thursday.

Steel Scrap Lower.

Heavy melting steel scrap is 25 cents a ton lower in the Pittsburgh district, a sale having been made at $15 a ton. Not long ago a sale was made at $15.50, but at present $15.25 seems to be the highest price that can be realized.

McCrory Sales Increase.

August sales of McCrory Stores rose to $2,662,723 from $2,505,761 in August last year and for the eight months of 1927 to $20,008,974 from $18,163,032, an increase of 10.5 per cent.

Motion Picture Omits Dividend.

Motion Picture Capital omitted the quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share on the common stock. The regular quarterly of 50 cents a share on the preferred was declared.

H. C. Bohack Net Jumps.

H. C. Bohack Company earned $6.51 a share on the common stock after preferred dividends, in the first half of 1927, against $1.08 a share in the first half of 1926. Net profit jumped to 239,054 from $84,677. Profit and loss surplus was $916,146 on June 30.

311 Commercial Failures.

R. G. Dun & Co. puts commercial failures in the United States this week at 311, which is 25 less than the week before and 33 below the same week last year.

Electrical Outlook Good.

Central station buying of new equipment is keeping up with the estimated budget, which is above that of 1926. Industrial plant purchases of electrical equipment have fallen off somewhat, but with the various industries themselves active, the outlook for fall business is good, Electrical World reports. In New England a steady demand for power distribution equipment is noted.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Extreme dullness gripped the bond market today, and easing prices prevailed in most lists as week-end realizing made itself felt. Easy money conditions, however, averted any really sharp reactions.

High grade bonds were almost absent from the trading. Union Pacific refunding 4s declined nearly a point. Chicago & Alton 3½s fell 1½ on a single sale, and Delaware & Hudson convertible 5s sagged fractionally.

Industrials also eased downward, small fractions being clipped from the quotations for Bethlehem Steel 5½s, U. S. Rubber 5s, and one or two others. Brooklyn Edison 6s and Toledo Edison 7s were among the public utilities which were subjected to profit-taking pressure.

Foreign bonds attracted meager attention. French issues which have been buoyant in reflection of the improved financial condition of the republic, as well as reported progress in plans to refund a large portion of the French debt, were inactive in the earlier trading. German 7s were soft.

United States government obligations were quiet.

New offerings for the week totaled nearly $110,000,000, making the week the second since spring in which the aggregate of new issues reached nine figures.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, not omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

STOCKS FIRM; BIG BLOCKS TRADED

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—The stock market opened firm today, with fractional gains well distributed between railroads and industrials. Some large blocks of stocks changed hands, notably Chrysler, Postum, U. S. Steel and American Can. Baldwin, National Biscuit and Postum achieved new peak prices.

More varied buying came into the market during the first half-hour, and new tops were achieved by a sizeable list of industrials and specialties. The usual week-end profit-taking was negligible in early dealings. There was little in the news to explain bullish enthusiasm, which probably was based again on the low money rates and hope for improving business during the remaining months of the year.

A number of substantial gains was recorded soon after the opening, notably International Harvester, which sold at 200, a new high peak and up 2½ points. Allis Chalmers, American Snuff and Woolworth also reached new peak prices, gains running from 2½ to 2¾. Gains of 1 to 2 points were numerous, including Pressed Steel Car, American Linseed, Kresge and others. Rails were dull with the exception of an early jump of 2½ points in Texas & Pacific.

Foreign exchanges opened steady, demand sterling ruling slightly lower around $4.85 21-32 and French francs below 3.92 cents.

THE PRODUCE MARKET

Demands were fairly active for vegetables and fruit at the local wholesale produce district today. The changes in the prices were trifling. Potatoes were in liberal supply, but sold about unchanged prices. The fruit market was active without change in quotations.

The butter market held steady without change in quotations. The egg and cheese markets were very firm and held the same prices.

Poultry was in nominal supply. Trading was moderate and the prices were unchanged.

Circuit supplies were heavy, a total of 400 cars being on track. Arrivals included two cars of apples, 1 cabbage, 25 cantaloupes, 1 celery, 42 grapes, 2 lemons, 4 lettuce, 7 onions, 12 oranges, 24 peaches, 25 pears, 30 potatoes, 1 sweet potatoes, 6 tomatoes, 2 plums and 1 cauliflower.

Hay was in very light receipts. The grain market held steady.

MACNIDER DENIES REPORT HE HAS RESIGNED

HOOVER CHANCE RESTS UPON EARLY START

By FRASER EDWARDS,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Herbert Hoover now is getting his "run" for the Republican presidential nomination. Capital politicians who keep their ears to the ground are giving the "run" more attention than any other development in the political world.

For this "run," as they call it, is a try-out similar to that given to any formidable candidate in a national convention in which the strength is divided, in order to determine where the majorities lie.

The significant thing about the "run," according to the politicians, is that Hoover is "lost" unless he can demonstrate his strength in a comparatively short time. If he falls short of the mark, they say that the G. O. P. will turn to some other man. And Charles E. Hughes is the one mentioned most by the Republican leaders.

But because of his strength, growing out of his position and his multifarious activities, Hoover is regarded generally as one of the leading candidates for the coveted prize to be bestowed by the next Republican national convention.

It is certain that at least four states—Tennessee, Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana—which suffered from the flood and benefited by the supervision of Hoover in the relief work, are "in the bag" for Hoover whenever he wants them.

But even if Hoover captured all of the Southern delegates, they could not give him the nomination unless he got a sizable majority of the states west of the Mississippi. The Pacific coast states are reported to be swinging to Hoover, but he must "talk turkey" to Hiram Johnson before he can claim California for his own.

Although Hoover is regarded as a "business man's" candidate and "business" with a big "B" is situated in New York, there are indications that the Empire State delegation will go to the convention instructed for Hughes, whether he says he is "too old" or not.

Whether Hoover can gather a flock of delegates large enough to tip the scales at the crucial moment is doubtful—therefore, the politicians are watching his "run."

U. S. TURNS BACK 'PROXY' BRIDE

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—A young Spanish woman, married by "proxy" in order that she might enter the United States as the wife of an American citizen, was turned back today by immigration officials who refused to recognize the marriage, which Spanish custom sanctions.

Max Muniz, an American citizen of Martins Ferry, O., was forced to postpone the homecoming of Senorita Flora Sariego, who has been his bride by proxy since June of 1925, when Muniz' own father repeated the wedding vows in the province of Oveida, Spain. So the new home Muniz had bought in Martins Ferry must wait for its mistress while he appeals the case to the Secretary of Labor.

Soon after the "proxy" wedding Muniz applied for admission of his wife, but found that Spanish immigration quotas were filled. As soon as he became an American citizen—on April 14, 1927—he obtained a "non-quota" visa for her, but a special board of inquiry today ruled against his "proxy" wedding.

W. L. KING TO BE SPEAKER AT WILKINSBURG CHURCH

William L. King, director of the Citizens' League of Pittsburgh and Allegheny County, will be the speaker Sunday night at a union service held in Wilkinsburg under the auspices of the Wilkinsburg Church Federation.

The congregations of 20 churches will unite in the services which are to be held at South avenue and Mulberry street. Mr. King will tell of the work of the league.

He will speak on "A Dissatisfied Servant" at the morning service and at night he will speak on "The First Gospel Message." There will be a program of music at each service.

FEAR CORN BORER HAS INVADED FAYETTE AREA

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Sept. 3.—C. R. Rumberger, Fayette county farm agent, said today that tests made by Federal authorities disclose that the European corn borer has made its appearance in this county. Strict quarantine measures will be taken, he said.

TWO TRACKMEN HIT BY AUTO

Two employes of the Pittsburgh Railways company engaged in track repair work at Penn and Negley avenues, were run down by an automobile at 2:30 o'clock this morning. Police say the car did not stop, but a taxicab driver who took the injured men to the Homeopathic hospital, learned the license number of the fleeing machine.

The injured men are James Petrella, 35, of Ella street, who suffered a probable fracture of the skull, and Wallace Fair, 46, of 225 Lavinia street, cut about the face and chest. The car was registered in the name of Mrs. Lillian M. Feath, of 2078 Beechwood boulevard. Her son, Harry Feath, 23, said to have operated the car this morning, was arrested on a charge of reckless driving. He denied knowledge of the accident.

250 DELEGATES TO NEW CASTLE

Allegheny county has been allotted 250 delegates to attend the convention of the Pennsylvania State Sabbath School Association to be held in New Castle October 12, 13 and 14. A strong emphasis will be given leadership training, vacation schools, week day religious instruction and improved Sunday school methods at the convention.

In Allegheny county alone there are 868 Sunday schools with 15,958 teachers. Pennsylvania has more than 10,000 Protestant Sunday schools with nearly 200,000 volunteer teachers and officers. At the present time less than one-third of the superintendents and teachers are said to have had adequate training for their task.

WILL NOT TRY FOR SENATE, HE SAYS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Declaring that he had no intention of giving up his post as Assistant Secretary of War, Hanford MacNider has authorized a categorical denial of a statement appearing in today's issue of the Army and Navy Journal that he has tendered his resignation to take effect December 1.

The Assistant Secretary also denied that he had any intention of running for the Republican senatorial nomination in Iowa, his home state.

"I have not resigned," declared MacNider's terse denial of the Army and Navy Journal story. He added "my stay in Washington will probably be regulated by my superiors."

MacNider's statement said, "this was the second time within a month this rumor has appeared," declaring that he had "no knowledge of its source or authority." He was in New York at the time the Journal's story was made public and issued his denial through his secretary here.

GOOD HUNTING ON THE NORTH SIDE

DISASTROUS FOR THE 'COON

The late Annie Oakley's successor loomed today in the person of Miss Nora Conley of 717 Ridge avenue. A dozen chickens disappeared mysteriously from the Conley coop and for two weeks Miss Conley sat by her bedroom window with patience and a .22 caliber rifle. Last night she saw "it" and fired. Result: One very dead 18-pound raccoon. Now "Pheasant," 11-year-old hen and pet of the Conleys, breathes easier. Mrs. Helen Conley is seen with "Pheasant."

PLANE MAKERS OPPOSE 'SOLO' SEAFLIGHTS

By Universal Service.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 3.—Eddie Stinson, president of the Stinson Aircraft Corporation, expressed concern over the reaction of the public towards the future of aviation as a result of the mounting loss of life in trans-oceanic flights.

As his share in making long distance flight conditions safe, Stinson said his company would henceforth refuse to accept orders for planes in which "solo" trans-oceanic flights were to be made.

"It is asking too much of an airplane motor to run continuously for 30 to 50 hours under adverse weather conditions," Stinson said. "The success of Col. Lindbergh should not be accepted as a standard for the capabilities of modern airplane motors. Lindbergh was unusually fortunate in the performance of his motor and the weather conditions he encountered.

"All the gain in public confidence resulting from the Lindbergh and other successful trans-oceanic flights is likely to be lost by repeated failures of similar attempts."

Above all, Stinson said every pilot proposing a flight across the ocean should either be an expert navigator himself or engage the services of one.

RESIGNS OFFICE UNDER FIRE

By Universal Service.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 3.—The McHenry county clerk and Board of Supervisors were notified by Gov. Len Small that he had received the resignation of State's Attorney Alfred H. Pouse of that county, now sought in connection with alleged liquor irregularities.

The Governor has no authority to accept the resignation, his secretary, George Sutton, explained.

Pouse's resignation should have been given to the board, which is authorized to appoint a temporary successor pending the fixing of a date for an election.

$550,000 GIFTS MADE CHICAGO MEDICAL SCHOOL

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—Two gifts totaling $550,000 have been received by the University of Chicago for the use of the new medical school, according to an announcement by Vice President Frederick C. Woodward. One gift, $300,000, came from Mrs. Gertrude Dunn Hicks for the Gertrude Dunn Hicks memorial, to be operated as an orthopedic hospital. Louis B. Kuppenheimer, Chicago, provides $250,000, to establish the Louis B. and Emma M. Kuppenheimer foundation. The income is to be used for a study of the structure and diseases of the eye and to support teaching and research in the department of ophthalmology.

Packing New Clothes Irks Beauty Queen

It is a day of packing trunks and grips. And the baggage must be ready this afternoon to be shipped to Atlantic City for the pageant next week. So it is readily seen how busy I'll be for some hours to come.

With my wardrobe being assembled one thing at a time, it never seemed so much to me. But late last night as I started to lay out the many dresses, shoes, hats and necessary things to go with each outfit, I found there certainly has been a rich award for me in the clothes alone. Even if my title of "Miss Pittsburgh, 1927," doesn't bring me another return, it has certainly been worth while.

But packing the things is entirely another matter. I've had to send out a call for assistance. It is new experience for me, and where to put everything would be a problem certain to defeat me if trying to do the job myself. I have often read the jokes about packing trunks. The troubles always amused me. Now I know what it is all about because the joke is on me this time.

ST. PAUL'S ORGANIST AT NEW CASTLE SERVICES

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Sept. 3.—Cyril I. Guthoerl, organist of St. Paul's cathedral, Pittsburgh, was the organist at the pre-dedicatory recital last night in the new $500,000 church of St. Mary's parish. The Catholic Men's double quartet, of Pittsburgh, also took part. Dedicatory services will be held Monday

YOUTH OF '27 OK., BUT NEED RESPONSIBILITY

RACINE, Wis., Sept. 3.—The youths of 1927 need more responsibility—they shouldn't be treated like children, young Episcopalians of the Chicago diocese were told by Bishop Charles P. Anderson, of Chicago. "I am not one of those who are discouraged with modern youth," the Bishop continued. "I expect conventions to change, and youth to change with the conventions. But I am in favor of loading the young people with responsibilities. I have found that they make good in their decisions when they are made responsible."

U. S. CRUISER TO TAKE FLIER TO ITALY

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—The fast cruiser Trenton will carry Lieutenant "Al" Williams to Italy in time to compete in the Schneider Cup races late this month. The Navy definitely decided to place the cruiser at Williams' disposal when word was received from the Summer White House in the Black Hills that President Coolidge approves the plan.

Williams is the lone American entrant and officials here are especially desirous to have him compete because a win this year will give the United States permanent possession of the coveted trophy.

In addition to providing the cruiser, the Navy is expected to send a high ranking officer to Italy with the flier and a corps of mechanicians to help him maintain his plane in the best possible shape.

The United States now holds about one-third of all available seaplane records and Navy officials are anxious to have Williams establish a new speed record, if possible. To do this he will have to fly at better than 275 miles per hour.

The Trenton is a sister ship of the Memphis which carried Col. Lindbergh home from Europe.

JOHNNY "JIGGS" RAY BELIEVED NEAR DEATH

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 3.—Little hope is held out for Johnny "Jiggs" Ray, veteran stage comedian. Ray has been on the stage for 54 years, he and his wife making up a team for nearly half a century. He played "Jiggs" in a comedy series based on the McManus cartoons several years ago. Ray has been ill for four years.

Mabel and Beau Spoil Visit of John Nye; Sally Takes the Blame For Millie

What Has Gone Before

SALLY JEROME, pretty and clever, is the prop and mainstay of her family which consists of MRS. JEROME; the twins, BEAU and MILLIE; and Sally herself. Mrs. Jerome enjoys poor health, so Sally does the housework mornings and office work for Mr. Peevey downtown afternoons. In the flat below the Jeromes lives young TED SLOAN, an automobile salesman who wants her to marry him and keep on working. But the only man in whom she is interested is JOHN NYE, whose real estate offices are across the hall from Mr. Peevey's. Nye hires Millie as his secretary, upon Sally's recommendation, and Millie instantly begins to "shine up" to him. He becomes blindly infatuated with her and Sally is heart sick and jealous.

Beau raises a check given him by Ted Sloan from $10 to $100, and then repays Ted with a bad check of his own. Ted tells Sally about it one night when he is angry with her, and she barrows $100 from Mr. Peevey, and turns it over to Beau so that he may give it to Ted. But Beau keeps it and elopes with his fiancee, MABEL WILMOT. Millie moves all her things into Beau's room, so that there will be no room in the flat for him and Mabel. While she spends the whole day, which happens to be Sunday, doing this, Sally prepares supper for John Nye, who is coming, and for Ted with whom she is on friendly terms once more. Just as the four are sitting down to a dainty, well-served meal, Beau and Mabel burst into the room, and Mabel begins a long slangly speech to John Nye whom she never has seen before.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.)

"WELL, I must say this is a nice trick!" declared the bride when she could find her voice, "to pack Beau up like this!—You might, at least, have given him a chance to put his own things into his trunk!—Why, we were planning to stay here for a while!—" She stared at the room before her in astonished silence for a minute more before she went on:

"Well, Miss Millie will just have to move all her things out again, that's all! Because Beau and I have decided to stay here until we find a place of our own. It's all settled—I'll just go out and speak to Millie now!" She turned to go, her small face grim with determination.

But Sally caught her by the arm. "No, no, don't say a word now, dear," she pleaded gently; "just go back with me and have a nice supper. And when John Nye is gone, you can have this all out with Millie." She simply couldn't let Mabel spoil Millie's evening by starting a quarrel with her about the bedroom now! Not before John Nye.

But back in the dining room Millie was doing anything but enjoying herself.

Sally saw that at a glance, as she opened the door of the dining room to usher Mabel in before her.

For Beau had produced a pint bottle of Bourbon whisky and was filling five small glasses that stood before him on the tablecloth.

"None for Sally. She doesn't indulge," he was saying solemnly as he poured the clear amber fluid. "She'll drink to our health in water. Eh, wot, Sally?"

Mabel reached out eagerly to pick up her glass. Mabel liked liquor and did not care who knew it.

"Hey! Don't grab—You'll break your wrist!" Beau said sharply to her, but his eyes were full of admiration as he looked up at his dashing bride.

Sally saw then that he had had far too much to drink already. His eyes were glazed, and his face was unnaturally flushed.

Her quick glance darted to John Nye's face . . . Would he see that the pair had been drinking? And if he did, what would he think of them? Of Millie? Of her?

He was smiling as he raised the glass that Beau pushed towards him across the gleaming white cloth. But he barely touched it to his lips.

Beau turned to Mabel unsteadily and threw an arm around her, looking down at her as if she were the most beautiful and precious bit of human flesh that ever had held the spark of life.

"Isn't she wonderful?" he asked proudly. "Isn't she the sweetest, loveliest li'l wife that ever was?"

"Oh, Beau!" sighed Mabel, grinning up at him with her head thrown back against her shoulder. "You're so F. O. B.—full of boloney, what I mean."

She laughed wildly, and Beau laughed with her. They stood there, side by side, swaying back and forth dizzily.

Millie was looking daggers at them from her side of the table. Her small face, usually so adorably and softly feminine, was as hard as flint. Her little hands were clenched before her so tightly that the knuckles showed white and shiny.

"Will you please sit down and eat your supper?" she asked them coldly. She sent Sally a look of frantic appeal.

"Oh, can't you get them out of here?" that look said to Sally, as plainly as any words.

But Sally was helpless, and she knew it. She knew, besides, that the only thing to do was to pass the whole affair off as naturally as possible. To act as if it were quite ordinary for a bride and groom to take three or four drinks too many on their nuptial day, and come bursting in on a supper table, full of slang and boisterousness. She never forgot that awful meal, and yet it was all confusion in her mind at the time. The only clear thing to her was John Nye's dark handsome face across the table. His face, puzzled, amused, and yet curiously gentle whenever he met her eyes.

At 18 o'clock Mabel collapsed, either from excitement or drink. Sally put her to bed in the room that had belonged to Beau, and did her best to make Beau go to bed, too.

But, as Millie said afterward, Beau was "wound up" for the evening and refused to budge. He stayed in the living room that Sally had made attractive with flowers and lamplight, and had a long heart-to-heart talk with John Nye.

"Glad to have sawn you," he said cheerfully to him as he finally rose to go to bed. "I'll come up and see you some day in your office, if you don't mind."

He laughed thickly. "Probably borrow a little money from you," he added. "I'm a great li'l borrower, I am. Never seem to have enough money to go round somehow—you know how it is—and I figure that there's no use having friends unless you can borrow from them every now and then—" He would have gone on talking endlessly, but Sally linked her arm in his and carried him off with her.

"You're thick-tongued, old boy, and talking through your

RECKLESS WITH PLANE?

ON TRIAL

Lieut. Thomas B. William, navy flier (shown arriving at trial with father) is on trial in Washington before a courtmartial board, charged with flying low over the city in defiance of Federal air rules. As low as eighth floor of apartment building and nose-diving and climbing at altitudes between 100 and 1,000 feet, civilian witnesses testify, while army officer-witness says flying was done properly. The trial is the first of its kind.

Seating Goal Reached As Schools Open

Practically every one of the 250,000 school children in Allegheny county is assured a seat when the fall term begins next Tuesday, according to officials of the city, county and parochial school systems.

Pittsburgh has long sought the goal of "a seat for every pupil" and, as a result of its strenuous building program of the last several years, this goal is now assured, this city being the first to attain such a position, according to G. W. Gerwig, secretary of the board of education. There are nearly 100,000 pupils in the city, and to aid in taking care of them, additions have been built at Langley High school, Woods Run school and the Morningside School, while a 19-room addition is under construction at the Regent Square school.

The county's school population, exclusive of independent districts, totals about 80,000 and to handle these pupils additions have been erected at the Hill Crest school, Bethel township; Fairmount school, Brackenridge; Highland school, Castle Shannon; Bunola school, Forward township; Leetsdale Junior and Senior High school; Millvale High school; Tenth Street school, Oakmont; high school at Sewickley; Colfax school, Springdale, and Stowe Junior High school.

Among the parochial schools recently erected to care for the 62,500 Catholic pupils, are the St. Joseph school, Everson; Holy Trinity school, Duquesne; Boys' Catholic High school, Fifth avenue and Clyde street; St. Mary's school, Pine Creek; St. Mathias' school, Natrona, and St. Brendan school, Braddock.

CLAIM RECORD OUTPUT FOR NEMACOLIN MINE

RICE'S LANDING, Pa., Sept. 3.—All previous local production records were broken, according to officials of the Buckeye Coal Company, who announced that 147,358 tons of coal had been produced at the Nemacolin mine of the company during the four-week period just ended. About 1,100 miners are employed, officials said.

OLD GLORY AGAIN HELD BACK

GARDEN CITY, N. Y., Sept. 3—(INS.)—Unfavorable weather today again deferred the hop-off of the Fokker monoplane Old Glory on its projected flight to Rome.

A heavy rain yesterday which drenched Roosevelt Field, coupled with the lack of a favorable wind, caused the flight to be deferred.

The plan of Lloyd Bertaud and J. D. Hill, pilot and navigator of the plane, to fly to Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, to aid in the search for the missing British plane, St. Raphael, was abandoned when J. E. Wilson, civilian director of aviation for Canada, informed the fliers that a land plane would be useless in such a search.

BLAME TRAMP, MATCH FOR $12,000 FARM FIRE

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Sept. 3.—A tramp and a carelessly lighted match are blamed for a fire which destroyed a barn on the Hoover farm, east of here, along with 600 bushel of oats, 50 tons of hay and farm machinery. The loss is placed at $12,000.

He stepped into the dining room long enough to empty the glasses that neither she nor John Nye had touched and then staggered off to his room.

"Oh, wasn't it terrible! Those two people! [illegible] the way they did! Ah, did you ever hear anybody talk as Mabel before in your life? Why, she talks like a street Arab! [illegible] what will John Nye think of us? And I did so want him to see us at our best, and instead of that—" Words failed her and she gave a deep, long groan of utter despair.

"I wouldn't worry so much about it, dear," Sally said to her, doing her best to be comforting. "John Nye looks as if he had pretty good sense and he probably realizes that Mabel's just a little smart-aleck and that Beau isn't used to drink, and couldn't stand what he had on his wedding day."

"Decent people don't drink on their wedding day," snapped her sister, "and you know it! And so does John Nye. I could just howl, I tell you, when I think of what happened tonight."

But it was Sally who cried.

All at once she dropped down beside the old dresser, laid her head on the marble top and sobbed as if her heart would break. The tears ran down on the old green-and-white [illegible] scarf, staining it. But she did not know or care.

"Well, I'm sure I don't know what you're crying about!" said Millie, watching her. "Anybody would think that it was you who had the case on Johnny Nye, instead of me!—Why, do you care what he thinks of us? He's nothing to you."

No answer from Sally.

"You weren't so wonderful, yourself, tonight," Millie went on, complainingly, "you hardly said a word to Johnny, and you didn't even shake hands with him when he left. Just sat in your chair and mumbled something at him. What in the world was the matter with you?"

Sally said nothing in her defense. She couldn't tell Millie that in some mysterious way, John Nye had become the biggest and most real fact in her life? . . . And that it was hard for her to speak to him, almost impossible for her to meet his eyes. How could she say anything? . . . and certainly impossible for her to shake hands with him as if he were some ordinary mortal man?

CHAPTER XXIV.

MRS. JEROME stayed the night with Aunt Emily. And Sally was deeply thankful that she did, and was not at home when the newly-weds left the next morning.

For their departure was anything but pleasant.

They were furious at the way Beau had been turned out of his bedroom, now that they were sober and had had time to think things over.

Sally had risen early to make Beau's favorite [illegible] pancakes and a pan of rich cocoa. But neither he nor Mabel would touch a bite of breakfast, although they cast longing and hungry eyes at the table.

"No thanks, we won't eat a bite here, where we're not wanted," snapped Mabel, answering for the pair of them. "And we're going just as soon as the man comes for our trunk, too! We'll never give the Jerome family a second chance to ask us to close the door on the outside, believe you me!"

Sally could have cried as she looked at them. They seemed so young, so pathetic, as they stood with their arms around each other against the background of white curtains and red geraniums, looking from her to the steaming dishes on the table.

"Oh, don't be silly, please!" she begged them. "Do sit down and have something to eat!—You know you're perfectly welcome to stay here until you've found a place of your own!"

Mabel sneered. "Yes, it looks as if we were welcome here with Millie's things all over Beau's room!" she said, bluntly. "With his trunk all packed the minute he was out of the house! It was a pretty rotten trick you pulled on him, if you ask me! You know it yourself, too, Sally Jerome!"

Sally did know it. And she went straight to the room at the back of the flat where Millie was brushing her bright, fluffy hair before the toilet glass.

"Millie," she faltered, as her troubled eyes met her sister's in the mirror. "Don't you think we ought to go and ask Beau and Mabel to stay here for a few days until they find a place of their own? They're so hurt because you packed up Beau's things. They think we don't want them here."

"Well, we don't!" replied Millie, who was as hard-headed as she was soft-eyed. "You know that if we ever let them get a foothold here they'll stay forever. You know that's what they're looking for—for us to ask them to stay on for a while. Wait! I'll go and tell them a thing or two."

"Oh, don't!"—Sally flung out an arm to stop her. But like a flash Millie was down the narrow hall that led to the dining room.

"What's the matter with you two?" Sally heard her ask the honeymooners, and her voice was as soft as usual. "Aren't you satisfied with disgracing me the way you did last night before John Nye without kicking up another rumpus this morning? What is it you want, anyway?"

Instead of answering her question Mabel looked her up and down slowly and insolently.

Horoscopes

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 4.

Astrologers read this as a day unfavorable in planetary direction, a time to proceed with caution in all important matters.

Under this rule of the stars a critical and exacting mood may develop and for this reason the utmost self-control should be exercised.

It is wise to avoid arguments, domestic or religious, while this configuration lasts.

The clergy may experience a sense of indifference or lack of interest in serious subjects, on the part of parishioners.

The sway is supposed to encourage wandering thoughts and to interfere with concentration. Sermons may fall on dull ears.

It is encouraging, however, to learn from the seers that there is to be a revival of intense interest in spiritual things.

New teachers, occidental as well as oriental, are to gain a great vogue in the next few months, it is foretold.

Peace movements of many sorts are to be launched in the winter and certain of them are to be greatly misinterpreted.

Women's organizations are to contend over world problems that present old issues in new guise, it is prophesied.

Fashions are to change sharply, astrologers predict, and there is to be a revolt against anything masculine for women.

Because of a scandal that will uncover moral degeneracy, there will be a reaction toward extreme masculinity for men and extreme femininity for women, a London prophet foretells.

Airplane development is to cause some sort of contention among various departments of the government, it is prognosticated.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have rather a stiff pull against competition in the coming year. This applies to love as well as to business.

Children born on this day probably will make money easily. They may be exceedingly clever, but too much inclined toward pleasure.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 5.

Good and evil planetary influences conflict today, according to astrology. It is a time to watch the mental as well as the physical step.

While all conditions may appear promising, the rule of the stars is not auspicious for constructive work.

There may be a sense of futile effort in whatever is accomplished under this direction of the stars and delay is wise in important matters.

Under this direction of the stars planning should be much more satisfactory than doing and outlines for the future should occupy attention.

Again the question concerning the development and exploitation of oil interests is likely to come to the front.

The stars will smile on those who possess the oil properties and control production, it is forecast.

This should be a fairly favorable day for starting on long sea voyages.

Good fortune will attend international alliances connected with educational aims, if the seers are to be believed, and interchange of writers as well as students will be fortunate.

For London a sensational case of blackmail is prophesied by foreign astrologers.

Race prejudice is to disappear rapidly in many quarters, it is foretold, and co-operation between persons formerly antagonistic is prognosticated.

New York and San Francisco are to be drawn closely together through the efforts of groups not identified with early American struggles, if the stars are rightly read.

Commercial interests are to join the Atlantic and the Pacific Coast in new ties, it is prophesied.

Persons whose birthdate it is should be exceedingly wise in the coming year, which will bring many temptations.

Children born on this day probably will succeed in distinctly constructive work. Girls should be good executives.

Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl

Story by Lloyd Mayer

NOISY, DEAR! YOU DO LOVE ME, DONT YOU?
I AM YOUR TRUE LOVE, YOUR HEARTS DESIRE, ARENT I?
YOU CANT LIVE WITHOUT ME, CAN YOU, NOISY?
A FAT LOT OF GOOD IT IS TO TRY AND MAKE LOVE TO A MAN WHO IS LEARNING TO SMOKE A PIPE!

"My dear, I'm a WRECK—I mean I couldn't BE more utterly BAFFled and conFUSED at this point because this odd soul NOIsy SIMply SLAYS me no less! I mean I have actually exHAUSted all the wiles of CleOPatra (or whatever the name of that odd queen of Egypt was who committed suicide by gargling an ASPrin) on this NOIsy, my dear, without making the SLIGHTEST imPRESsion because, my dear, my most PASsionate aVOWals of afFECtion simply run like WATer off a duck's QUACK, because NOIsy simply CONsecrates on this FOUL old PIPE effect which will practicably NEver stay LIT because I mean he is practically ALways in the act of FILLing it, or knocking it OUT, or trying to LIGHT it, but practicably NEver SMOKing it, because, I mean it is a POker pipe and I s'pose it is sort of inconVEnient to carry a POker around with you—can you BEAR it, my dear? Well, ANYways, my dear, I have actually sworn OFF smoking because I think it is an awfully bad THING to become a SLAVE to any HABit like that, don't you really think it is? And I mean I HONestly think practicably EVerybody smokes too MUCH. But to get back to the subject of this NOIsy person, my dear, I ACtually think he is the MOST unsusCEPtible youth I have ever enCOUNtered—I mean I ACtually DO! . . . Have you got a cigarETTE, my dear? . . . Thanks . . . I simply aDORE this kind."

The Married Life of Helen and Warren

HELEN SUMMONS THE DOCTOR, BUT WARREN REACTS TO A DRUGLESS CURE.

By Mabel Herbert Urner

"BUT dear, everyone feels a little feverish with a cold!"

"Women may [illegible]," grumbled Warren. "More like the flu. Better take my temperature. Here, I don't want all these."

Picking up the cushions he had hurled to the floor, Helen spread over him the couch cover.

"What's the idea?" kicking it off. "Burning up now."

"Why, dear, you haven't any fever," feeling his forehead.

"Haven't, eh? All you know about [illegible] toward fever. Get that thermometer!"

In the bathroom a hasty rummaging of the medicine chest. But the small black case not there.

Where could it be? Months since she had seen it.

The box on top of the cabinet? Standing on the edge of the tub, she dragged it down. Ugh, how dusty! An ear syringe, an eye-dropper, a spool of dental floss, a sample package of shampoo, and underneath—yes, the thermometer!

Rinsing it off. Running back. Vigorously shaking the slender tube.

"Throat's sore, too," feeling it gingerly. "Now I'm not takin' any chances. Better have the doctor 'fore I go to bed. Ring him up now."

"Wait, dear; let's take your temperature first."

His alarm over his slightest symptom! She might have a cold, sore throat, fever — and throw it off. But Warren must have the doctor for the most trivial ailment.

Sitting up now, sucking the thermometer with ludicrous solemnity.

Twice she started to take it, but was scowlingly elbowed away.

"Bet it's 102," when at last he yielded the tube.

Holding it to the light, Helen traced the elusive silvery thread.

"Why, no, dear, it's just over 99. That's hardly more than normal."

"Huh, darn thing doesn't register! Been knockin' around here for ages. Guess I know when I got a temperature."

"Is that half-past? Oh, Senator Spread-eagle was to speak at eight-fifteen!" trying the distraction of the radio. "He'll be on now."

". . . glorious destiny of future generations! Paving an unparalleled epoch of achievement, adding fresh luster to American traditions, to our indomitable national—"

"Shut off that blab!" savagely. "Who wants to hear his hot air? Thought I told you to call the doctor."

"You really think you need him, dear?" cutting off the grandiloquent harangue.

"What're you tryin' to do? Save 10 bucks and have me down with pneumonia?"

"Warren, you know it's not that! But he was really cross last time—when you called him out at night just for a cold."

"Was, eh? Well, he comes when I want him or I get another doctor," flopping over on the couch. "You ring him up now!"

At the telephone, Helen turned to the B's in their index. B such a full letter. The page overcrowded.

Dr. Bennett—Murray Hill 5015[illegible].

A maid's voice answered.

"The doctor in? . . . Well, when he comes, tell him Mr. Curtis wants to see him at once . . . C-U-R-T-I-S. He knows the address.

"When do they expect him?" demanded Warren.

"In about half an hour. She'll send him right over."

"Come take a look at my throat. See if it's inflamed."

"Turn to the light, dear. Open wider," tilting back his head. "Not a bit."

"Huh, you couldn't tell. Sore as the devil! How about a hot lemonade?"

"Why, yes, that can't hurt you. I'll fix it right away."

Out in the kitchen. Only one lemon in the ice-box. But one freshly cut in the soap-dish over the sink.

So that was where the lemons went! At six cents apiece—an expensive bleach for Katie's hands. [illegible]ed! How could she have done it? Dropped it?

Trying not to look around as she waited for the water to heat. Sure to discover more proofs of Katie's carelessness.

Back to the library with the steaming lemonade.

"Be careful, dear, it's awfully hot," drawing a small table to the couch.

"Wow, that's sour!" he grumbled. "Here, get away—scat!"

"Why, I put lots of sugar in. [illegible], you wouldn't like that," lifting down Pussy Purr-Mew. "Just sip it up."

The lemonade dispatched, Warren was discovering further alarming symptoms when the bell rang.

"There's the doctor now! How prompt!" hastily, drawing up a chair.

Switching on the hall lights as she went to the door.

Her "Good evening, doctor"—checked. Not the suave Dr. Bennett—no formidable black case!

"Oh, Mr. Bender!" her surprise ill-concealed. "Why, good evening!"

"Rushed right over. Hope nothing's wrong?"

"Nothing wrong?" she repeated blankly.

"Why, you sent for me—"

"Why—why, no—"

"That's funny! The maid said Mr. Curtis wanted me to come soon as I got in."

"Oh, how stupid! I must've called your number instead of Dr. Bennett's! The B's are so crowded in our index. But I asked for the doctor!" still puzzled.

"Some of my friends insist on calling me Doctor—Ph. D., not M. D.," he laughs. "What's wrong with Curtis?"

"Just a cold—but he takes it so seriously. He always does." Then, inspirationally, "Oh, Mr. Bender, I've an idea! Pretend you just happened to call! Talk to him—divert him—and he'll forget the doctor. Will you?"

"Glad to!" dropping his hat on the hall table. "Most sickness only imagination, anyway."

"Yes, I know—but you can't make him believe that. Better not mention it—talk about anything else."

"Just leave it to me, Mrs. Curtis. I'll pep him up."

"Oh, you're a dear!" in a fluttered undertone.

"Hello, Curtis!" as she ushered him into the library. "Right in the neighborhood — thought I'd drop in."

"Glad you did. Feel rotten—touch of the flu. Waiting for the doctor now."

"You look fit!" taking the drawn-up chair. "Probably just a cold."

"Just a cold?" bristling. "Got a temperature and my throat's like a nutmeg grater."

Helen, straightening the magazines on the table, signaled Mr. Bender. Arguments only aggravated Warren's obstinacy.

"Was up in Gordon's new office today. Peach of a place—twentieth floor."

"Thinking of moving, myself," Warren punched his pillow. "Been looking around. Need more room."

"How about that Tower Trust Building?"

"Don't like the location. Best thing I've seen is that new Wall street building—one Johnson's in. I can get 800 feet there on the twenty-sixth floor. Fine light—great view of the harbor."

"That's a good building—one of the best. Can't cut off that light."

Helen joyous. Warren launched on office buildings—just now a vital topic. Good for an hour.

Free to finish the lampshade she was making for Carrie's birthday. Mauve taffeta — old gold lining. All done but the fringe.

"Have a cigar, Bender? Where's that box Stevens brought me from Cuba?"

Smoking? With a sore throat! But his easy puffs dispelled her qualms.

Silvery chimes from the hall clock. Half past nine.

Quarter of ten. Half past.

The room thick with smoke. Warren sitting up now, his feet on a chair. Early-to-bed intentions forgotten.

Almost eleven when Mr. Bender finally rose.

"Drop in the office some day—lunch time," urged Warren. "We'll go over to the Lawyers' Club. Get Harris, too—asking about you the other day."

"No idea it was so late!" Mr. Bender glanced at his watch. "Ten of eleven!"

"That's not late. Mighty glad you stopped in."

Helen nervously putting away her sewing. Fearing Mr. Bender would ask Warren if he didn't feel better.

But his not-a-word wink reassuring.

She wanted to thank him. No chance. Warren seeing him to the elevator.

"Hear what he said about that Wall street building?" when he strode back. "That's what everybody says—one of the best. Four dollars a foot's not too much. Think I'd better nail that."

"Will you have much more room?" anxious to prolong the diverting topic.

"Only 200 feet. But better arranged. Better light, too. I'll see the agent tomorrow," with a yawning stretch. "Foster and Brooks next door keen to take over my lease—Great guns, what about that doctor?"

"Why, I—I perhaps she forgot to tell him," faltered Helen. "You don't want him now, do you, dear?"

"No, feel a whole lot better. That hot lemonade—nipped it right at the start. But you'll have to phone—he may come yet."

"Why, I hardly think so," she evaded. "Not this late."

"Why not? May not be back. You call him up. What's that? Then I will. No sense of his coming now."

"Oh, I will, dear," hastily. "Right away! You get to bed."

At the telephone now. A quick over-her-shoulder glance. Warren closing the windows.

Holding down the hook as she took off the receiver.

Then calling the number into the unconnected instrument.

"Hello! Is Dr. Bennett in yet? . . . This is Mrs. Curtis. I called earlier in the evening. . . . But he needn't come now—Mr. Curtis is better."

"What'd they say?" Warren switched off the reading lamp.

"He's not in yet," flushing at her glib untruth. "But I canceled the message. Next time, dear, let's not call till we're sure we need him."

"Wait till I'm down with pneumonia—ready to check out!" he snorted. "That's your idea of when I need a doctor. Got any of that hoarhound syrup? Well, put it by the bed. Throat's better now—but may get worse in the night!"

Peach Pie.

One and one-half cups pastry flour, 1 teaspoon salt and ½ teaspoon baking powder sifted together. Heaping tablespoon lard rubbed in. Mix to stiff dough with ice or very cold water. This crust will make two medium-sized pies. Roll out and line plates. For each pie use ½ doz. large peaches peeled, stoned and sliced. Fill pie; add ½ cup or more sugar, dust of nutmeg, dots butter over sugar, tablespoon water and cover with top crust. Bake until peaches are very soft. Serve with mild cheese.

Rabbit Maranville, former Pirate star infielder, and later manager of the Chicago Cubs, and also a member in his time of the Miracle Boston Braves and the Brooklyn Dodgers, returned to the big show yesterday as a member of the St. Louis Cardinals against the Pirates at Forbes Field. He was picked up from the Rochester club of the International League to fill the gap left by the loss of Tommy Thevenow, who has a broken ankle, and is expected to keep the world's champions in the hot race for the National League pennant the remainder of the way down the stretch. The Rabbit's return to the majors was especially pleasing to his many local friends, who joyfully celebrated the occasion. Staff Photographer D. E. Benjamin of the Sun-Telegraph made the above picture record of Maranville's first day back in the big time.

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1927 — ELEVEN

THROUGH the SPORT LENS

by HAVEY BOYLE

IN a world where all sorts of championships are awarded, ranging from the man who can sit longest on top of a flagpole to the man who can walk the longest distance on stilts, Donie Bush, Pirate manager, is entitled to serious consideration as the champion "Nervous Nordic."

HAVEY BOYLE.

No one excels the energetic little Corsair leader in sitting on the edge of a volcano, perpetually. The dizzy race in the National, the numerous things that have befallen the Pirates, plus the ordinary run of tense situations which crop up in baseball have made of the little Pirate manager the most fluttering jell of nerves in the big league.

If you only observe him on the coaching lines and on the bench during the course of a game you get only half the picture. Before the game ever starts he slides, jumps and fusses around in the dugout, in the clubhouse; and after the game the reaction from all this takes the form of quick, jerky steps, constant moving of hands to within and without the trousers' pockets, and a hasty form of speech.

NOW the ordinary fellow showing such strain might collapse, but Donie thrives on his extreme nervousness. He does not worry about it, in fact he kids himself about it.

It was after the game with the Cubs here the other day that Bush, in a light gray cap, which somehow makes him more like a boy than a grizzled baseball veteran of many a campaign, gave an index to this perpetual motion he shows, motion which is the child of his nervous temperament.

"It looks pretty good for us now," he says, "but I'm not counting any chickens until they're walking around even after they're hatched. If I just manage to stay out of the booby hatch until after the race is over I'll count myself lucky. Gee, but we have been through tough things in the East. But the worst is over, I hope, and with the pitchers in good shape I am extremely hopeful. I may have to overwork one or two of them for a short time. If we get by the next couple of days I'll be content."

DONIE has as a visitor here a brother. Keeping both the Bushes company is Mr. Chick Fraser, shrewd old Pirate scout, who along with Bill Hinchman and other Dreyfuss purchasing agents, send reinforcements to the Pirates from year to year. Mr. Fraser, a great admirer of Bush and his baseball ways, does

KI, SMITH DICKERS DREAMS

THE officials of the Pittsburgh club today branded as absolutely without foundation the latest rumors in the baseball trade market to the effect that the Pittsburgh club was not only planning to exchange Outfielder Hazen Cuyler to Cincinnati for Second Baseman Hughey Critz but would also swap Catcher Earl Smith to the Philadelphia Nationals for Catcher Jimmy Wilson.

"Just some more hokum written by some one who is trying merely to fill space," said Treasurer Sam Dreyfuss of the Pittsburgh club when informed of the rumors. "There is absolutely not a word of truth in either story. We have not made a trade offer of any kind to any club, and will not give a thought to any deal before winter, and I can also assure you that no other club has offered or suggested any trade to us. Of course, every one knows that no trade could be made at this time anyhow, but in addition to that you can make it as strong as you like that no deal has even been sug-

Lloyd Waner Joins Select Five In Senior Loop

Lloyd Waner, young Pirate centerfielder, yesterday replaced Clyde Barnhart, his teammate, as the fifth leading batter in the National League, his three hits at the expense of Alexander giving him an average of .339 for the season.

GEORGE GODFREY TO BE TEST FOR MUNN

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(INS.)—Monte Munn, former Nebraska legislator, has been matched for a 12-round bout in Brooklyn on September 14, against George Godfrey, the Philadelphia Negro heavyweight, who knocked out Jim Maloney recently.

Pete Reilly, manager of Jack Delaney, former light-heavyweight champion, has closed two matches for his man and expects to sign for another one in a few days. Delaney will meet Johnny Risko at Cleveland, September 13, and Otto Von Porat at Chicago, September 20, two days before the Dempsey-Tunney fight.

Negotiations are pending for a match in Madison Square Garden between Delaney and Jack Sharkey of Boston. Reilly already has accepted terms for the Sharkey battle.

7 KNOCKOUTS FEATURE BOXING SHOW AT ARMORY

Seven knockouts featured the boxing show staged in the armory of the One Hundred and Seventy-sixth Field Artillery last night. Sergt. Al Balish, reigning champion for several years, was defeated by Sergt. Tom Goodwin.

"Red" Crouse, Battery C's entry in the bantam class, showed the best wallop of the night, dropping Nick Marinox eight times in the first round before Referee Joe Keally halted the one-sided affair. Red Bradle scored a one-round K. O. over Lou Noble.

George Belk, winning the featherweight title, also of Battery B, stopped Henry Williams after two rounds of toe-to-toe slugging. Battery A, through Patsy Pascerrelli, won the middleweight title when Harry Stubbins, Battery C, played himself out and was forced to quit in the second.

GIANTS BEAT RED SOX

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept. 3.—The New York Giants defeated the Boston Red Sox in an exhibition game here yesterday, 8 to 1. Cantwell pitched for the Giants and Wiltse and Lundgren for the Red Sox.

BUCS GAIN, GIANTS IN ADVANCE

By Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH'S dash for the elusive lead in the National League scramble had become sufficiently bolstered today for the Pirate cohorts to take a nap without danger of awakening to find their entry knocked off the pinnacle.

But even so, the Buccaneers had only time to grab an extra wink. The jaunty world champions fell victims at the Pittsburgh rendezvous yesterday by 5 to 3 while the Reds were adding to the woes of the Cubs with a 5-to-0 whitewashing.

That gave the Corsairs a full game lead on Chicago, enabling them to end the week in the lead regardless of today's games.

While Pilot Bush of the Pirates and Pilot McCarthy of the Cubs seem to have decided that the championship will be purely a family affair, betwixt Pittsburgh and Chicago, the fourth-place New Yorkers are only two and one-half games from the crest and one percentage point from the third-place St. Louis gang. The Giants, who have won seven straight, had an open date yesterday.

BUCS' FIFTH IN ROW

Pittsburgh has won five straight while Chicago had as many losses in a row.

Alexander the Great could not stop the Pirates and was biffed for 15 hits although he tightened up at critical times, preventing heavy scoring. Ray Kremer stopped the champions with nine safe raps.

Sun-Tele Scores Beat On Rabbit's Return

The SUN-TELEGRAPH yesterday scored a clean beat of hours on the news of Rabbit Maranville's return to the major leagues as a member of the St. Louis Cardinals against the Pirates.

The day before the SUN-TELEGRAPH exclusively printed the news that Frank Moran, former local heavyweight contender, was back in town for a visit of several days, and also exclusively told of the failure of Cuddy DeMarco to appear to be weighed in for his bout with Johnny Mellow at Duquesne, thereby losing his weight forfeit.

The SUN-TELEGRAPH is creating unusual interest by its stories of the football prospects of the leading colleges in this section—James J. Long's series of interviews with the coaches.

PITT'S COACH IS FACING SEASON WITH HOPE

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Sutherland More Optimistic This Year Than in Past—Says Team Is Better By Reason of Added Experience, New Material Of Promise and Stronger Replacements — "Beat Carnegie," Is Slogan.

[Note—This is the fourth and final interview of a series with the coaches of the college football teams of Pittsburgh on their prospects for the 1927 season.]

EVEN Coach Jock Sutherland himself, who never permits his feelings to run away with him, and whose calm exterior gives no hint of any unusual confidence or optimism that may lie underneath, is clearly pretty well satisfied with the football situation and prospects at the University of Pittsburgh this fall, as described in the Sun-Telegraph yesterday.

"WHAT are your tentative plans for the makeup of your first team, and whom do you consider your best players, old and new?" Coach Sutherland was asked.

"Well, starting with the backfield, Welch is the outstanding man and is, of course, a fixture at halfback," he replied. "An exceptional player, that boy. I was forced to pile a lot of extra work on his shoulders last year in addition to the regular duties of a man in his position, but he handled it all in great style.

"WELCH is the hardest-running halfback I ever had, and a powerful boy physically. He is a real athlete all around, has broken a couple of varsity records on the track team and is going to be a candidate for the American Olympic team, as a discus thrower. His football is all that any coach could ask, and he is, of course, sure of his place.

"At the other halfback post Hagan is practically a fixture, as he is a good man all around and a fine kicker. He will do the kicking for the team this year.

"Incidentally, I am going to miss Jimmy Rooney in the kicking department this year. He was a great boy at goal-kicking, and his loss will be felt until he becomes eligible again in 1928.

"WE ARE doubly fortified at fullback, for in addition to Booth we have a fine prospect coming up from the freshman team of last year in the person of Parkinson. Thus we have two fullbacks good enough for any team and a great pair when alternating is advisable. I have glowing reports about Parkinson, and he is a fullback of uncommon qualities. Apart

CRACK FIELD COMPETES IN OAK PARK HANDICAP

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—A field of seven was named in the overnight entries for the closing feature today of the Hawthorne meeting, the $5,000 Oak Park Handicap at a mile and a sixteenth.

The starters were to be Princess Doreen, winner of the big purse a week ago, from virtually the same field; Flat Iron, winner of the $15,000 Hawthorne Handicap, two weeks ago; Chicago, Barbara, Kentucky Cardinal, Bob Rogers and Runbank. Perfect weather with a dry fast track was indicated.

Ruth Still Leads Lou; Babe Swats One, Gehrig Two

By Universal Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 3.—Lou 2, Babe 1. That was the count today in the big home run derby being run by Lou Gehrig and Babe Ruth. Gehrig's brace of homers, his forty-second and forty-third, came in his first two trips to the plate against the Philadelphia Athletics and Ruth's forty-fourth also resulted from his initial trip to the plate.

MISS CAMPBELL, CRAWFORD COP TOURNEY

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

Almost 150 golfers of the district competed in the mixed foursome invitation tournament of the Stanton Heights Golf Club yesterday. Miss M. Campbell and Joseph L. Crawford led the field with a net 70 in the 18-hole medal play competition, under handicaps. The winning pair in the first division had a gross 77, with a 7 handicap.

Miss Anjeannette Hunter, who is one of the most promising of our younger women golfers of this district, and Charles A. Totten, another real comer among the juniors, were tied in the runnerup position, with a net 73, with Mrs. J. B. Crookston and Ray Totten, and Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Campbell. Miss Hunter and Totten had a gross of only 78, one stroke higher than the victors.

Mrs. Boschert and Vogel copped in the second flight with a score of 87-17-70, while Mrs. Dierks and N. Willock triumphed in the third division with 96-20-76.

It was one of the most successful events ever held on the East End links. The summary:

GENE, JACK PLAN TOIL MONDAY

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—(AP.) Quartered in million dollar properties 70 miles apart, Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey barred workouts in favor of relaxation today—the champion to rest from his journey from Speculator, N. Y., the challenger to attend a county fair. Monday they expect to resume sparring, to whittle themselves to keen edges for their championship fight at Soldier Field, September 22.

The myriad conveniences of Cedar Chest camp drew Tunney's attention, with visitors barred today while the champion looked over the boating, bathing, riding, and golfing possibilities of the former Deering estate.

Dempsey has promised to visit Watseka County Fair today. Paul Prehn of the Illinois State Athletic Commission, and Manager Flynn decreed a day off for the former champion from all but road work and calisthenics.

CAMP PLEASING TO GENE

A quarter of a million people paid their respects to Tunney yesterday in an uproarious welcome in the Loop, while Gov. Small of Illinois and Will Rodgers of Beverly Hills called upon Dempsey.

The surprising vigor of his reception still was reflected today in Tunney's smile, and the facilities at his camp were equally pleasing. Tunney arrived in time to get his books unpacked, change to golfing togs and look over the training quarters about half a mile from the old Deering mansion, which is now the clubhouse.

Some road work today, and a complete rest tomorrow, Manager Billy Gibson said, will fit the champion for the resumption of bag punching and work with sparring partners on Monday. The champion is "only a week away" in his training, Gibson added, with nearly three weeks' time in which to shed a pound or two and polish up in his sharpshooting.

WILL CHARGE ADMISSION.

Tunney's original plans to charge no admission to his training session were revised today because it was feared that a free gate would result in crowds too large to be accommodated. An admission of $1.10 will be charged, the same as that in effect at Dempsey's camp. What disposition will be made of the receipts has not been determined. At his Speculator, N. Y., camp Tunney gave the money to two churches and an amateur athletic club.

The two rings, one outdoors and one inside the former horse show building of the Deering estate, would both need police protection to handle big crowds.

SUMMONS SERVED ON TEX

The Circuit Court injunction suit brought by B. E. Clements and the Coliseum Club seeking to enjoin Dempsey is likely to have a hearing next Wednesday. Summons were served on Rickard, the boxing commission, and George F. Getz, Rickard's Illinois sponsor, but neither Dempsey nor Floyd Fitzsimmons, Michigan promoter, had been reached early today.

CHILLY SAUCE

By CHILLY DOYLE

With the freshness of dew, like a breath of the Spring,
A heart that's as light as a bird on the wing
And laughter enough to make anyone sing—
He came back!

O, where have you been all the days that were drab,
With your vest-pocket catch and your one-handed stab?
'Twas lonesome without you—get back in it,
Rab—
And stay there!

A PHYSICAL marvel in many ways, Rabbit Maranville astonished his home friends of Pittsburgh by his general makeup as he made his dramatic appearance in the city yesterday. The news had not yet leaked out about Maranville when I encountered him soon after his arrival in the [illegible] district. Almost at the same time, Rabbit was met by a flock of Pirates who were plainly baffled. Some of the Bucs apparently thought that Maranville was here to join up with the Freebooters, but Rabbit laughed this off as his Pirate friends quizzed him. The [illegible] landers soon learned that Rab was a Redbird.

MARANVILLE was close to the best form he has ever shown as he handled the shortfield job for the World Champions. Rabbit came within a hairline of making two remarkable double plays after knocking down balls that had base-hit tickets. His play was the subject of very favorable comment in the camp of the Redbirds last night.

THE Cardinals will be extremely dangerous right down the line, especially if Lester Bell, Douthit and Blades revert back to their customary form. It is true that Aleck the Great was solved frequently, but if you analyze the 11 hits credited the Pirates you will find many that were of the tainted infield variety.

FRANK FRISCH was a bit downcast last night. The Flash held the opinion that yesterday was one of the worst days of his career in the game. He openly charged himself with at least two of the runs made by the Pirates, and in a general way, he panned Frankie of Fordham. His mood may be a bit ominous, so it would be best for the Pirates to work carefully on Frisch today in the last meeting of the season between the two teams.

IN THE event that Joe Harris continues to gain in physical strength the chances of the Pirates will be enhanced. The Coulter slugger went through the seige of doubleheaders in Philadelphia, although he was "down" much of the time. "If Joe can hold a little reserve until after the strenuous Labor Day period is passed he should be in good shape for the drive against the Eastern clubs, for Joe will be where he can get home cooking and good rest.

THE Waner Act was enjoyed by another crowd of holiday proportions. Brother Paul combed Aleck the Great for four hits, while Sprout made three. The speed of the centerfielder dazzled fans and players alike.

"HE'S the fastest boy I ever saw going down that line," exclaimed Frank Frisch last night. Praise of this sort is praise. Frisch is not exactly a slow-motion exhibit as he tears down the line [illegible] the plate to first base.

[illegible] speaking of speed, don't [illegible]rlook the Paddock antics of [illegible]is Grantham in the past two [illegible] Grantham's two triples of [illegible]day and yesterday had to be [illegible]panied by sprints.

EBENSBURG RACE TRACK OPENS

EBENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 3.—Everything is in readiness for the opening of the Cambria county fair track here today with as evenly a balanced card of six races as can possibly be provided. The Inaugural Handicap, the fifth event of the day, brings to the barrier a field of six, from which it is hard to select a winner judged solely from past performances of the entries.

The Ebensburg Purse, the sixth race, is the second feature of the day and contains five horses that will go over the mile and 70 yards distance, and here again the field is so evenly balanced that it will be hard to select a winner. Starter Thomas Brown will be at the barrier with Sidney S. Bender as presiding judge.

WHEELING OPENS

WHEELING, W. Va., Sept. 3.—Eight races featured the opening of the forty-seventh annual West Virginia Exposition and State Fair here today. The race meeting will continue the duration of the fair, September 10. More than 300 thoroughbreds are stabled here.

WATER STARS TO COMPETE AT KENNYWOOD TODAY

The annual water carnival at Kennywood Park today gives promise of being one of the best since its inception. A number of stars are to compete in a galaxy of events, which get under way at 2 o'clock.

Among the more prominent of the athletes are Robert Cannon, of the Cleveland Y. M. C. A., and John Law, of Pittsburgh Natatorium.

PLAN MARATHON RACE

Entries are being received at A. A. U. headquarters for the marathon race which is being staged by the Pittsburgh Stewards Club. It will start at the City-County Building at noon September 15.

Yankee Final Now Assured

BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—The assurance of an all-American national doubles championship team cheered tennis followers today as two combinations of veterans prepared to defend their laurels against aspiring youth in the semifinals of the forty-sixth annual tournament at the Longwood Cricket Club here.

The striking elimination of the redoubtable Frenchmen, Henri Cochet and Jacques Brugnon, and Jean Borotra and Rene Lacoste, continued to dominate interest today, long after yesterday's sensational quarter final round had passed into history.

The former were swept to defeat by America's young alternates of the Davis Cup squad, John Doeg of Santa Monica, Cal., and George M. Lott, Jr., of Chicago, in five hard sets. Borotra and La Coste met more decisive disaster at the hands of John Hennessey of Indianapolis and Lucien Williams of Chicago.

Today the heretofore invincible William T. Tilden II and Francis T. Hunter of New Rochelle, N. Y., must face the national clay court champions while the youthful Doeg and Lott will have their hands full with Richard N. Williams of Philadelphia and William ("Little Bill") Johnston of San Francisco.

HOMESTEAD GRAYS PLAY THREE DOUBLE-HEADERS

The opposition which the Homestead Grays will face during the next few days is strong. The Grays and Homewood meet in a double today at Braddock, the first game starting at 2 o'clock, and the nightcap at the Homewood playgrounds at 6:15 o'clock.

Grays meet Celoron, N. Y., in a pair of struggles tomorrow afternoon. On Monday they play morning and afternoon games with the Beaver Falls Elks at Beaver Falls.

FOOTBALL GAME WANTED

The high school team of Wellsville, O., wishes to schedule a game with a Class B high school for Saturday, September 24. It prefers home game. Write in care of Faculty Manager.

NOTES of the BOXERS

TOMMY CROWLEY, local junior lightweight, scored a victory over Reddy Blanchard of St. Paul in a 10-round bout at Akron last night. Crowley claimed a foul in the eighth round, but it was not allowed. Frankie Genaro, former flyweight champion, bested Tommy Hughes of Cleveland in the other 10-rounder.

Rudy Ceder of Tarentum, returning to the ring after a layoff, signalized the event by scoring a three-round knockout victory over Jack Dewey of Salamanca, N. Y., at Erie last night. Referee Finneran stopped the battle. Dewey was down twice for the count of eight in the second round. George Perutto of New Castle knocked out Charley Nashert of Jersey City in the sixth round.

Pete Zivic, local bantamweight, boxes Kid Francis, Spanish champion, in one of the 10-round bouts at the Queensboro Club, New York, next Tuesday night. Johnny Grosso and Jack DeMave, heavyweights meet in the main bout.

WEITZEL IS CANDIDATE FOR JUSTICE OF PEACE

Martin K. (Marty) Weitzel, well-known local basketball referee, has announced his candidacy for re-election to the office of justice of the peace in Dormont. Weitzel was the borough constable for four years and has served as justice of the peace for the last six years.

Weitzel, who has been a resident of Dormont for years, is regarded in local basketball circles as one of the most efficient handlers of the whistle in tri-state circles.

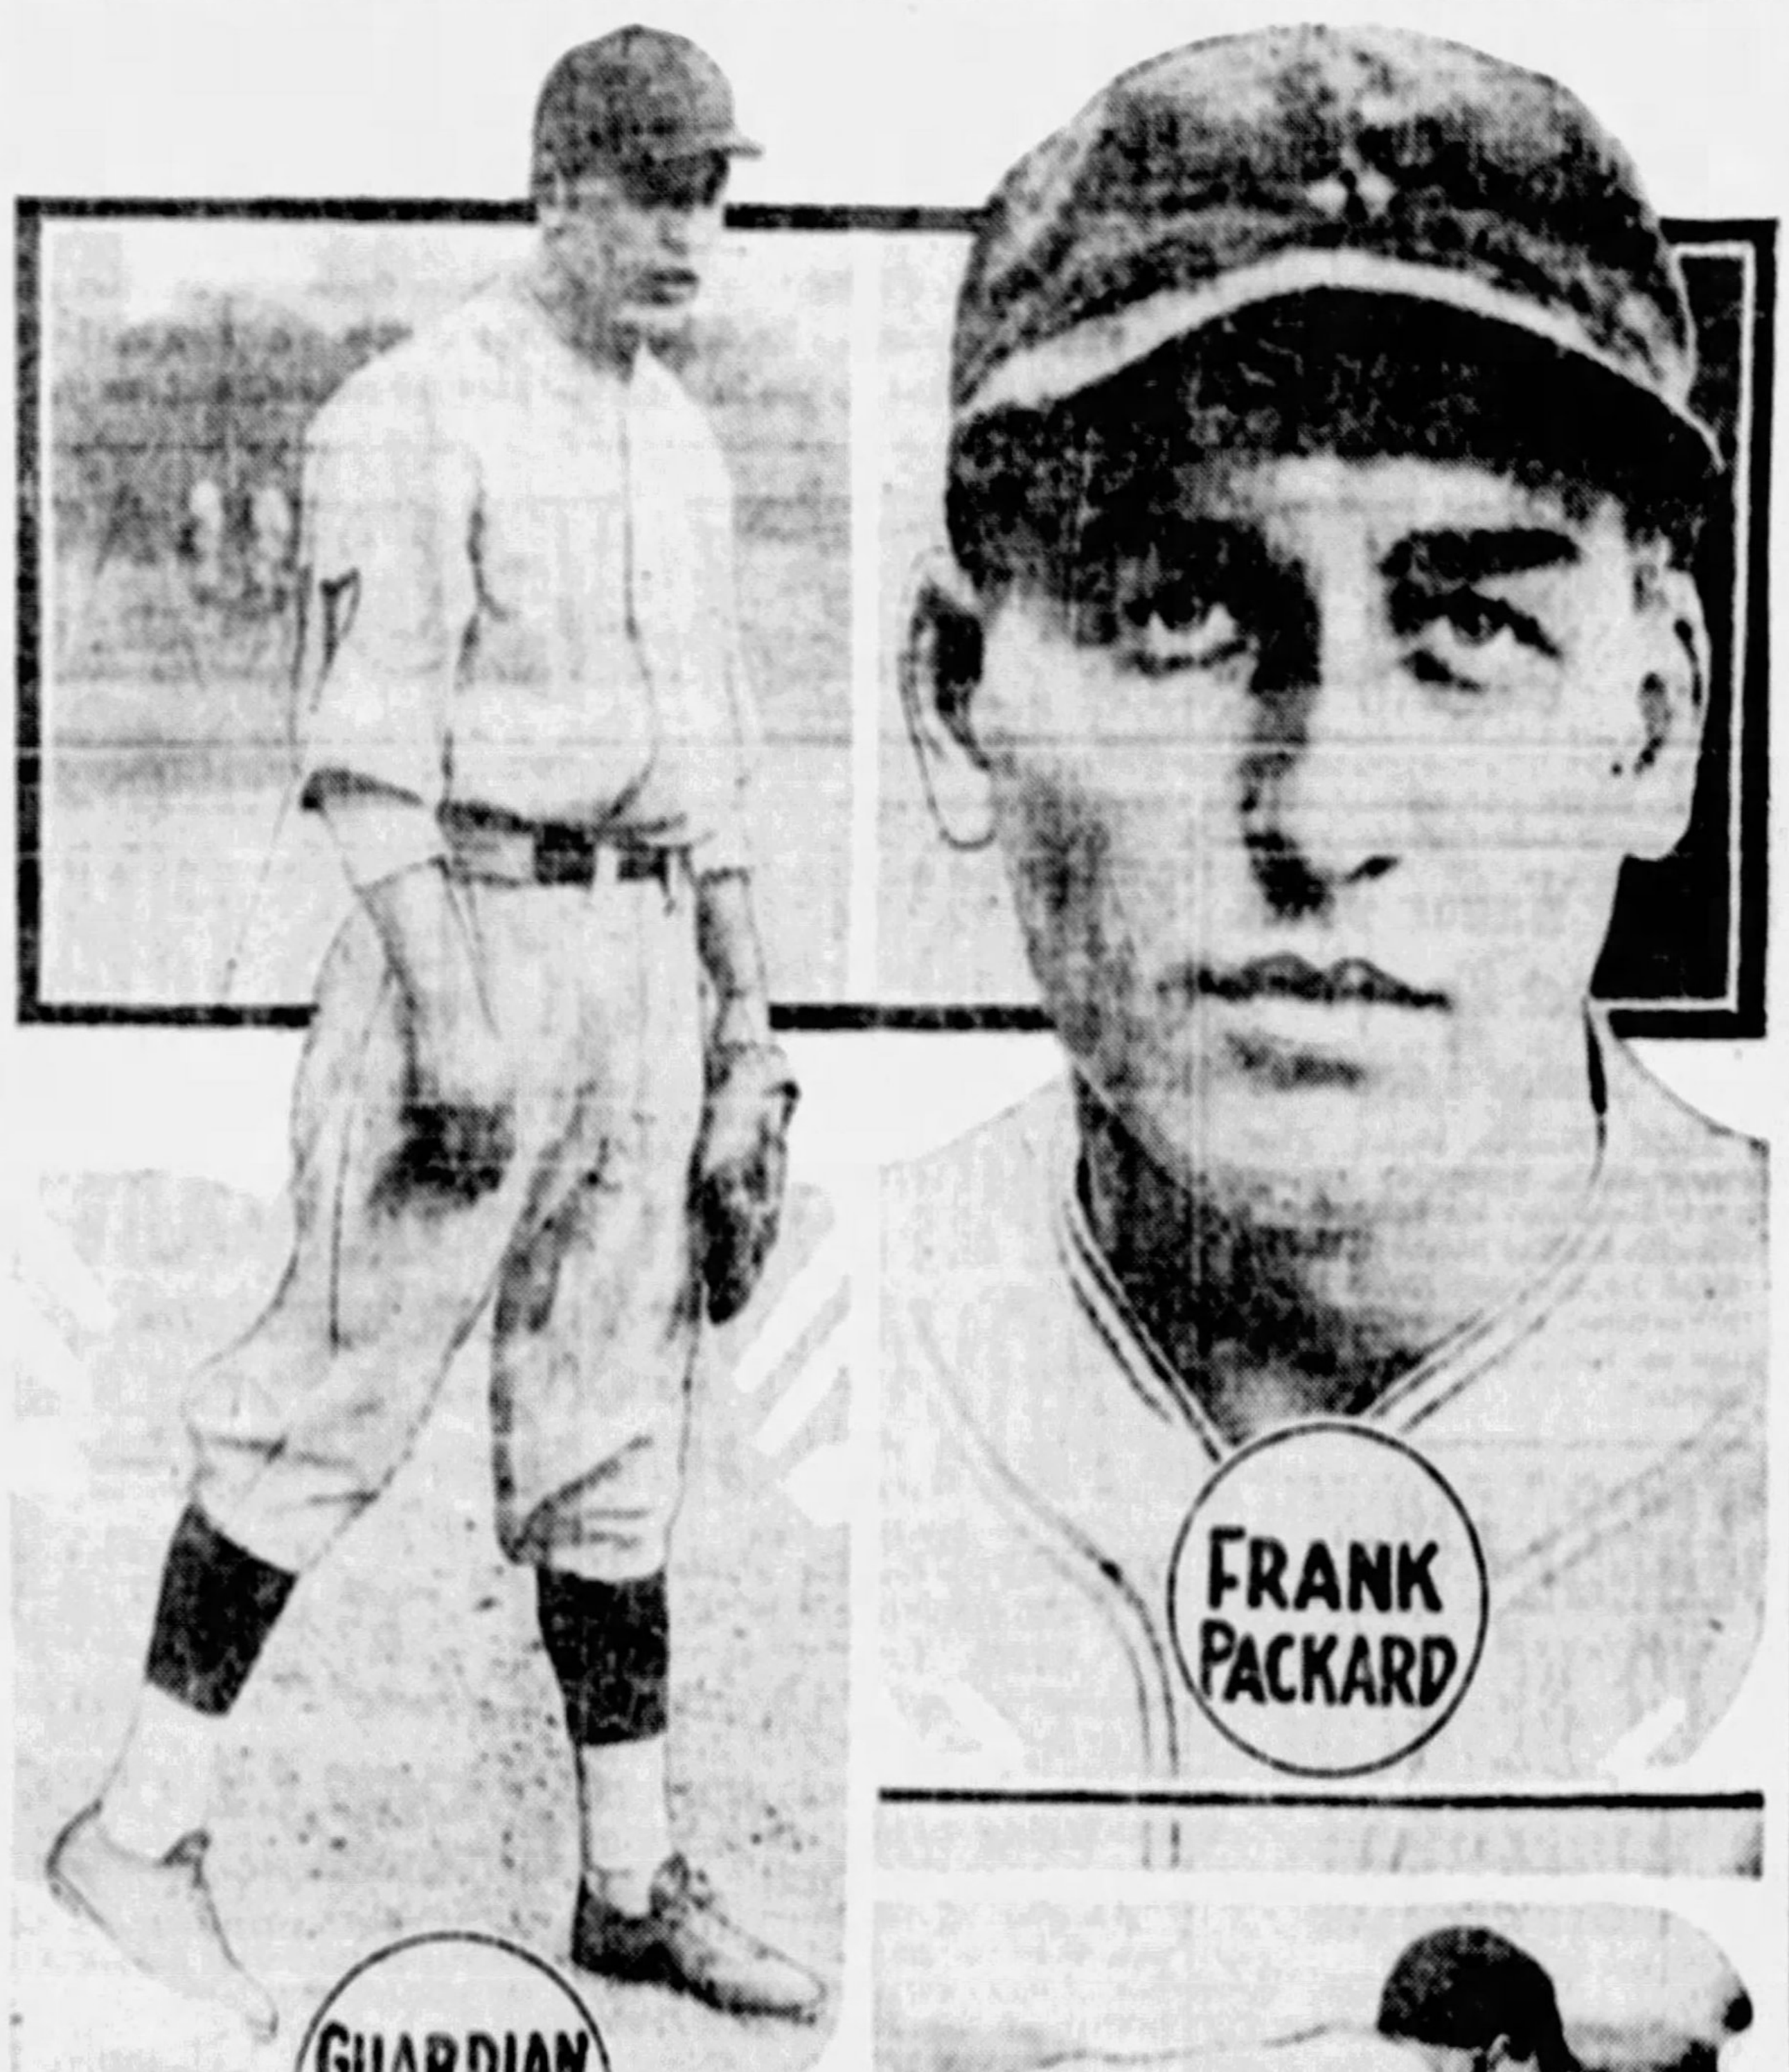
WILD LIFE CONFAB OPENS AT CONNEAUT

CONNEAUT LAKE PARK, Sept. 3.—Sportsmen are assembled here today for the thirteenth annual field meet and convention of the Wild Life League of Pennsylvania. Opening today, the confab will continue until next Wednesday. A registered A. K. C. bench show features today's program. President J. Fred McKean is directing the meet. Hunters, anglers and patrons of field trials are competing.

NET TITLE AT STAKE

Anna Wickert, of West Park, and Florence Schneider, of Schenley Park, will engage in the last set of their championship inter-park tennis match on the West Park course this evening, beginning at 7 o'clock. Darkness halted their first engagement after the second set.

HOMEWOOD LAD WITH PIRATES



FORMER GREENSBURG STAR

Packard joined the Pirates on their return from the Eastern trip Thursday. He is the third member of the Greensburg team of the Mid-Atlantic League, managed by Dick Guy, to go up to the big show at the close of the season in the new Pennsylvania League, the two others being Frank Wallace, shortstop, and Glenn Roph, pitcher, who have joined the Brooklyn Dodgers. Packard is only 19 years old and lives with his parents in Homewood. He was born in Greenville, Pa. He weighs 165 pounds and is 5 feet 11 inches tall. He attended Westinghouse High school, but did not play baseball there. He first took up the game two years ago and played with Edgewood last season, going from that club to Greensburg. He can play the outfield as well as third base and is a long-distance hitter. His batting average was .384, which included 29 triples and many home runs.

FIELD TRIALS MARK EVENT AT DORMONT

Trials of the Pittsburgh Field Trial Club started at 10 o'clock this morning on its course at Dormont. Included in the event is an all-day bench show. H. H. Cahoon and Walter J. Wilson are the judges. Three stakes are to be run, puppy, all-age and derby.

DOYLE AFTER RECORD

Larry Doyle, holder of the hill record, will attempt to better his mark in the Greater Pittsburgh Motorcycle Club tomorrow at the Wittmer farm on the Perry highway. A number of star riders have entered and the event is expected to be filled with thrills.

GIANTS PURCHASE SALLY LEAGUE HOME-RUN KING

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(INS.)—The New York Giants have purchased Bill Barrett, home run king of the South Atlantic League. Barrett, a catcher, is now with the Knoxville club but belongs to Memphis. He is batting .350 and has established a new league record by hitting 39 homers this season.

Tempus Does Fugit and Football's Here

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor

JUST three weeks from today the curtain will be lifted on the collegiate football season. How time flies! Many of the squads already are in training. Carnegie Tech, Duquesne University, West Virginia Wesleyan, Penn State and others have got in their first licks and Pitt departs tomorrow for Camp Hamilton, near Windber, while Wash-Jeff will get into action on Monday, and Grove City and other colleges in the Pittsburgh district will follow within a few days.

THAT'S a reminder that baseball and football threaten to clash seriously here, with the Pirates leading the pack and promising to get into the World Series again. The Giants will be here for a crucial series the day of Pitt's opener, September 24, and the West Virginia-Pitt game is booked for the stadium on a World Series date.

A COMPLETE composite schedule of the college teams of this section will appear in tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph. It's in compact form and worth clipping and saving.

SPEAKING, or, rather, writing of football, how about adding the Davis-Elkins team of Elkins, W. Va., to the list of colleges playing tough schedules? Elkins opens with Geneva and then plays the following "setups," in the order named: Navy, Georgetown, Army, Fairmont College, West Virginia Wesleyan, Salem, West Virginia University, Louisville and John Carroll. Only the Wesleyan and Salem games will be played at home.

MORE letters from readers on the Dempsey-Tunney situation will appear in tomorrow's issue, which will contain a complete page of boxing news. James J. Long also resumes his popular sports review of the week, illustrated by a cartoon, in this issue. This will be a regular Sunday feature henceforth.

SPORT LENS

nothing to alleviate Donie's proneness of nervousness. In fact, to help out Chick thinks of some of the most horrible things which he casually suggests to Bush, who threatens to have done with Chick and all his works.

A SPY was asked what were the present relations between Bush and Cuyler. There still remains an impasse. Here is an unusual situation to be sure, a situation which must cause curiosity in every big league camp. Here is a ball player who can hit, run and throw with the best of them, riding the bench for a club in the heat of the greatest pennant fight in 10 years. Here is a player who does not drink, smoke, nor chew, impeccable abstinences that keep him strong, fast and energetic. Do you know what he is doing? Well, he pitches to the batters in practice for once he was a hurler and he still owns a powerful arm; in fact, as one spy reported, Cuyler is doing everything but sweeping out the clubhouse.

WITHOUT going again into the various sides of the case, which has almost as many ramifications as the case of Sacco and Vanzetti, although not nearly so serious, it remains one of the most unusual in the history of the game. Cuyler, it may be added, in doing little odds and ends, is not being forced into the menial work. He is restless, seeking an outlet for the boundless energy of his youth. It's just too bad that some deft diplomat cannot step in and negotiate a treaty of peace, which would allow both sides in the argument to come out of the little war with honors easy. But it would take a man long versed in the oiliness of statecraft to arrange a cordial feeling between, incidentally, two of the most cordial men to be found in all baseball.

SO THE Rabbit comes back. Hurrah for the Rabbit. He outlived his usefulness here. We got too accustomed to Maranville and he never was one to compromise with staid old convention. He would be happy in a jungle, playing with the lions and tigers, if banished to such a dangerous sphere. He was the cause of many a stormy scene here, yet when he left his employer had the graciousness to say of him: "I always liked the Rabbit." Now he is back in a big league pennant fight with St. Louis, arch-enemy of the Pirates.

His return will be good news to countless kids who visit the parks of the National League. Condemned by stern critics who like not byplay in the serious business of baseball, Rabbit anyway always has owned an appeal with the mob, and especially with the kids of the game. He always has seemed to be one of them, in spite of his whiskers. A little like Peter Pan, the Rabbit; he never grows up.

As a loyal Pittsburgher, we trust the curse and trials of the Cardinals will be many between now and October, but for the Rabbit, we wish him the best of luck.

MR. SPROUT WANER, sensational young center fielder of the Pirates, likes games where everybody is "bearing down" and where about 35,000 persons yell over every pitched ball. "That makes you feel like playing ball," said the kid, who is playing the outfield like a master, hitting like a fiend, running like a deer. "This is easier, so far, than the minors," he says, "but I'm not boasting." He is stronger now, he says, than he was at the start of the campaign. He weighs less than 150 pounds, but his health is good. Fiction says youngsters like Lloyd should be nervous in the face of the strain of a pennant grind; reality shows Lloyd is less worried than some seasoned veterans. That is a characteristic of the Waner strain. His brother Paul always has been calm as an oyster, as unperturbed as a cow in the shade.

PARKS WINS TITLE

Highland's premiere junior player, Samuel M. Parks, Jr., captured the junior championship of his club yesterday when he set down Knox M. Young, Jr., runner-up in the West Penn tourney a year ago, by 8 and 6, in the 36-hole final round of the title fight. While Young shot excellent golf, with the exception of his putting, and was out in 73 for the first 18 holes, he was 5 down to Parks, who made the first round in a superb 69.

Charles Royston defeated A. S. Burgoyne, 7 and 6, in their second division 18-hole finals and Charles Wolfe met defeat at the hands of his brother, Regis, 1 up, in a bitter 20-hole struggle, in the consolation.

SPORTS COMMENT

from his own playing value, his presence will help in another way, because the competition for the position will make Booth work harder than ever. In fact, Booth is doing that already, as he is going to camp weighing 15 pounds less than he did at this time last year.

"At quarterback we have two good men in Edwards and Fisher and either is capable of running the team in smart fashion and attending to all the duties of the job.

"Fyock has been a fullback, but I am going to make a halfback of him this year, and he will be a good man to use as an alternate and send in for either Welch or Hagan when necessary. These seven men give us a very satisfactory backfield.

"IN THE line our chief problem will be to fill the place of Lynn at guard. That will not be easy of course, as he was a mighty good man last season, but we have a number of other boys of promise coming out and I am confident that among them we shall find a competent successor to Lynn.

"I am well satisfied with the material for the other line positions, with Cutler and Goldberg for center, Roberts as a hold-over guard, Kern, Wasmuth and Salata as experienced tackles and Montgomery, Klinger and Getto in addition.

"Though McMillan is lost at end we still have not only Guarino and Dennise, but a new boy of great possibilities in Donchess. This lad has everything to recommend him as a player and is of a fine type otherwise, and I have great hopes for him.

"INCIDENTALLY, I look for some of the boys to show up much better this fall than they did in the spring practice. It will not be the result of the work done then, but it is a fact that a boy often develops a better spirit between spring and fall practices or between school terms. As time passes he comes to like his surroundings more, to feel a greater love for his college and to become more eager to do something for it. The result is that he comes out in the fall with a new and better spirit, and this cannot fail to improve his playing. No amount of football ability can count for anything if it is not backed up by the right college spirit."

"BEAT Carnegie Tech" appears to be the slogan at Pitt. The hopes of students, players and alumni seem to be centered around breaking the Plaid's run of victories and turning the tables this season.

Even the Panther schedule looks as if it had been arranged with that end in view, as it will be observed that the first four games are to be with Thiel, Grove City, West Virginia and Drake, a program calculated to bring the Panthers along at the right pace and put them on the proper edge for the battle with Carnegie Tech on October 22. The remainder of the slate will be made up of games with Allegheny, W. & J., Nebraska and State.

ASKED if this did not look like a schedule unlikely to cause Pitt much trouble before the Tartan clash, Coach Sutherland said: "I am not at all sure about that. That Drake game in Des Moines looks like a troublesome spot. Drake had a sophomore team last year and will naturally be stronger this year, and from various sources in the Middle West I have been advised to be on the lookout for a tough game.

"We shall be able to get some sort of a line on Drake in advance, as that team is scheduled to play the Navy in Annapolis the Saturday before it meets us."

THE Pitt coach thinks the new rules will help the game and make it more attractive to the spectators.

"It will be more open and the lateral passing will furnish more thrills, though I don't look for such passes to count for much on a muddy field, when the receiver will not be able to run.

"I think it was a good move to prohibit a player on the kicking side from running with the ball after recovering a fumbled kick. The receiver of punts has a hard job at times. There may be a lot of English on the ball, he may be looking into the sun, and in general his task is often so difficult that it is only just to spare him and his team a second penalty in the form of a run if he fumbles.

"MOVING back the goal posts 10 feet will mean less goal kicking. Instead of kicking about seven yards for the ordinary goal after touchdown the kick will have to be made from a point 16 yards back. Instead of getting about three out of four points on such tries, we shall now get only one or two. It will be the same with field goal kicking. We used to maneuver in order to get the ball in front of the posts, but we won't do that now. We'll try a more promising play for distance on the down."

TRADE

gested or thought of for the future. Both stories are absolutely false."

"The Reds could hardly afford to let a player like Critz go even later, could they?" the Pirate treasurer was asked.

"I do not see how they could," he replied.

Manager Bob O'Farrell, of the Cardinals, who are making the final Pittsburgh appearance of the season today, was equally emphatic in denying another report from the East that Pitcher Flint Rhem would be traded to the Giants after the close of the season.

"That's all bunk," said O'Farrell, "and probably originated from the recent finding of Rhem by the St. Louis club, and the report he was dissatisfied. Rhem is wholly satisfied with his St. Louis connections and we are wholly satisfied with him," said the Cardinal manager. "He will not be traded to New York or to any other club."

GOOD LUCK RING GIVEN DRIVER

Jack Casey.

Jack Casey, the Steel City hard boiled pilot, has been sent a good luck charm in the shape of a peculiarly carved ring by Miss Alma Telling, of Cleveland, one of his fast admirers, who is hopeful that the talisman will spur him on to victory in either the 25-mile or the 75-mile race to be staged on the Bridgeville Board Speedway Labor Day afternoon, commencing at 1:30 o'clock daylight saving time.

Casey was presented to the donor of the charm after the inaugural Decoration Day 100-mile classic on the board bowl here. She had seen the way the jinx that has relentlessly followed him this year forced him out of the classic with mechanical trouble after he had been pushing Fred Harder, the winner, for the lead up until the time he met misfortune.

Miss Telling also was included among the onlookers at a recent race on the Akron board speedway and was thrilled by his sensational and spectacular driving and grieved when motor mishaps sent him limping out of the contest when he was within striking distance of Bill Chittum, the victor, who previously had come off triumphant in the August 13 Bridgeville race.

When Casey and Miss Telling renewed their pleasant acquaintanceship after the clash at Akron, he was attracted by the ring worn by Miss Telling and now in his possession. Remembering his admiration of the circlet, the Forest City girl decided to send it to him in the hope that it might change his luck or make him confident that it would. He was proudly displaying it to his rivals today at the track, where he and the others were tuning up their cars for the qualifications, scheduled to start at 10 o'clock Monday morning, and the speed spectacles scheduled for Labor Day afternoon.

FLYWEIGHT PAIRINGS

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(INS)—Pairing for the flyweight tournament starting here September 12 to establish the successor to Fidel La Barba, the retired champion, have been arranged as follows: Frankie Genaro vs. Eddie Flank, Billy Kelly vs. Izzy Schwartz, Blas Rodriguez vs. Joey Ross, Routier Parra vs. Davy Edelman.

PIRATES

whackers had trimmed Aleck the Great, but they turned the trick as they pulled a full game away from the Bruins.

The fact that the Pirates have outplayed the World Champions by a wide margin throughout the summer should give them an advantage in the finale. In the 21 battles fought in Pittsburgh and St. Louis victory has perched on the Pirate banners thirteen times.

RABBIT HELPS CARDS

The appearance of Rabbit Maranville at shortstop for the Redbirds should prove a boon to the club as the last month of the competition is reeled off. The Cards were not able to hit on all cylinders with Tommy Thevenow out, and in the past few weeks they have encountered many other misfortunes, not to mention the long layoff enforced on Manager O'Farrell, who suffered with a lame arm.

The Cardinals are two and one-half games behind the Pirates as they take on the pace-setters this afternoon. Needless to say, they will be out to contest every inch of the way, but Donie Bush's players are in fine shape and pepped up to a high degree.

BLUE RIDGE BOYS THERE

The festivities of the Eightieth Division gave yesterday's frolic a delightful touch. The Blue Ridge fighters, with Gen. Lloyd M. Brett taking an active part, assembled at the Oakland orchard to do honor to Joe Harris and John Miljus of the Pirates. Harris was presented with a beautiful gold watch, while Miljus received a costly traveling bag.

At the conclusion of today's game the Pirates will prepare for two nights in sleepers, they having to meet Cincinnati tomorrow at that place in a single game. Strain will be added to the situation owing to the fact that the club will have to hurry back to Pittsburgh to take on the Reds in two games on Labor Day.

BEAVER TOURNEY BEGINS

The Beaver county tennis tournament got under way on the Geneva College courts, under the auspices of the College Hill Tennis Club, this morning.

COLIMA STOPS PELKEY

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 3.—Bert Colima of Los Angeles won by a knockout over Ray Pelkey of Oakland in the sixth round of a scheduled 10-round bout here last night. Pelkey was badly outclassed, taking the nine count in the second round.

OFFICIAL—PITTSBURGH

NOTICE is hereby given that ordinances, copies of which are published herewith, were introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh on August 11, 1927, pursuant to the provisions of the several acts of assembly authorizing said city, without any petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys, or parts thereof, within its limits, viz:

BILL No. 1606
AN ORDINANCE

Authorizing and directing the grading and paving of Genesee way, from Oakwood street to Rosedale street, and the construction of a storm sewer from Creasey way 200 feet eastwardly for the drainage thereof, letting a contract therefor, and providing that the costs, damages and expenses of the same be assessed against and collected from property specially benefited thereby.

Section 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, that Genesee way, from Oakwood street to Rosedale street, be graded and paved, and a storm sewer constructed from Creasey way 200 feet eastwardly for the drainage thereof.

Section 2. The Mayor and the Director of the Department of Public Works are hereby authorized and directed to advertise in accordance with the acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and the ordinances of the said City of Pittsburgh relating thereto and regulating the same, for proposals for the grading and paving of said street between said points, and the construction of a storm sewer from Creasey way 200 feet eastwardly for the drainage thereof; the contract or contracts therefor to be let in the manner directed by the said Acts of Assembly and Ordinances; and the contract price or contract prices, if let in separate contracts, not to exceed the total sum of ten thousand one hundred ($10,100) dollars, which is the estimate of the whole costs as furnished by the Department of Public Works.

Section 3. The costs, damages and expenses of the same shall be assessed against and collected from properties specially benefited thereby, in accordance with the provisions of the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania relating thereto and regulating the same.

Section 4. That any ordinance or part of ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed so far as the same affects this ordinance.

IN the Court of Common Pleas of Allegheny County. No. 345, July Term, 1927. Docket "A." In re petition of the city of Pittsburgh for the appointment of viewers to ascertain the costs, damages and expenses, and assess the benefits arising from the widening of Irwin avenue from North avenue to Columbus avenue, including all damages due to the grade at which said highway is to be widened, Twenty-second and Twenty-fifth Wards. Notice is hereby given to all parties in interest that the undersigned viewers, duly appointed by the court in the foregoing matter, have prepared a schedule showing the damages, costs and expenses ascertained and allowed, and the benefits assessed for the foregoing improvement and that said viewers will meet and exhibit the same at their office, eighth floor, City-County Building, Grant street, Pittsburgh, on the 26th day of September, A. D. 1927, at 9:30 o'clock, a. m., and will then and there fix a time for hearing all exceptions thereto and evidence.

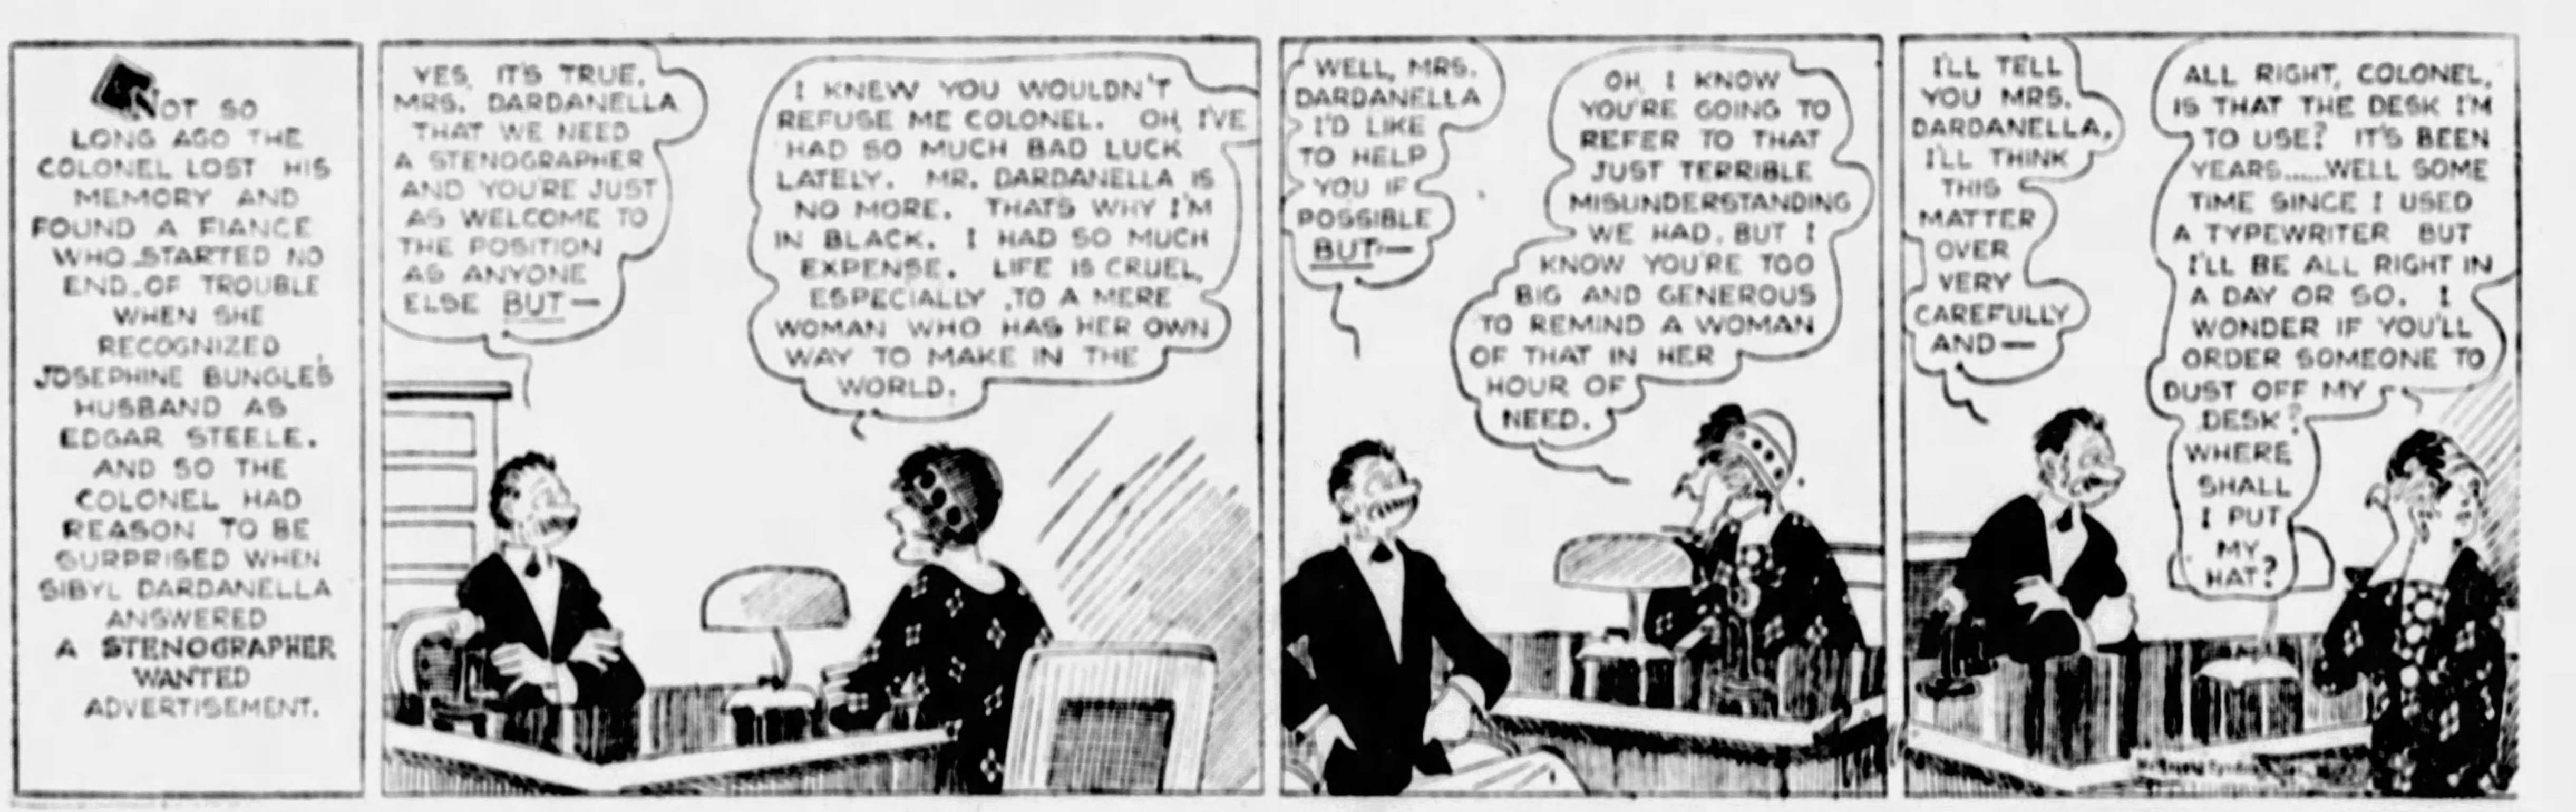
THE BUNGLE FAMILY . . . Hired



NOT SO LONG AGO THE COLONEL LOST HIS MEMORY AND FOUND A FIANCE WHO STARTED NO END OF TROUBLE WHEN SHE RECOGNIZED JOSEPHINE BUNGLE'S HUSBAND AS EDGAR STEELE. AND SO THE COLONEL HAD REASON TO BE SURPRISED WHEN SIBYL DARDANELLA ANSWERED A STENOGRAPHER WANTED ADVERTISEMENT.
YES, IT'S TRUE, MRS. DARDANELLA THAT WE NEED A STENOGRAPHER AND YOU'RE JUST AS WELCOME TO THE POSITION AS ANYONE ELSE BUT—I KNEW YOU WOULDN'T REFUSE ME COLONEL. OH, I'VE HAD SO MUCH BAD LUCK LATELY. MR. DARDANELLA IS NO MORE. THAT'S WHY I'M IN BLACK. I HAD SO MUCH EXPENSE. LIFE IS CRUEL, ESPECIALLY TO A MERE WOMAN WHO HAS HER OWN WAY TO MAKE IN THE WORLD.
WELL, MRS. DARDANELLA I'D LIKE TO HELP YOU IF POSSIBLE BUT—
OH, I KNOW YOU'RE GOING TO REFER TO THAT JUST TERRIBLE MISUNDERSTANDING WE HAD, BUT I KNOW YOU'RE TOO BIG AND GENEROUS TO REMIND A WOMAN OF THAT IN HER HOUR OF NEED.
I'LL TELL YOU MRS. DARDANELLA, I'LL THINK THIS MATTER OVER VERY CAREFULLY AND—
ALL RIGHT, COLONEL, IS THAT THE DESK I'M TO USE? IT'S BEEN YEARS.....WELL SOME TIME SINCE I USED A TYPEWRITER BUT I'LL BE ALL RIGHT IN A DAY OR SO. I WONDER IF YOU'LL ORDER SOMEONE TO DUST OFF MY DESK? WHERE SHALL I PUT MY HAT?

This evening take saw and make me three more book shelves, which with the book shelves I already have, will give me more book shelves than ever I have had in my life, and my new book shelves will rest on book shelf gadgets busked from Mister Avents (and these book shelf pins as neat a device as ever I see) and after I saw the book shelves and rest them on the book shelf pins (which fit into gimlet holes) I did laye to shifting of my books, first as to size and then as to color of the jacket, and I now have all the seven-inch books on seven-inch shelfs (by the rule) and eight-inch books on eight-inch shelfs, for which Heaven be praised!

"A wonderous picture. Waiting in my room.
Her whole face lit as by an inward flame
That shed its halo 'round her, Helen stood;
Her fair hands folded like a lily's leaves
Weighed down by happy dews of Summer eves.
Upon her cheek the color went and came,
And, like some slim young sapling of the wood,
Her slender form leaned slightly; and her hair
Fell 'round her loosely, in long curling strands
All unconfined, and as by loving hands
Tossed into bright confusion. Standing there,
Her starry eyes uplifted, she did seem Like some unearthly creature of a dream."

So—put two and two together. Helen's hair is mussed and the color comes and goes in her cheeks. What do you make of that, Watson? We shall see.

BUGS BAER Says

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

GETTING arrested is more or less personal business. It was a man's individual affair if he got nabbed in the old days, and was usually tossed into a cell where he could get plenty of privacy.

But now the gendarmes have a different system. If you get tossed into the cooler today the cops ask you questions on the theory that you must be insane.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Police experts are convinced that all evildoers are as batty as an old church belfry. So the first question a copper asks you is:

"A man has a five gallon jug and a three gallon jug. He fills them at a river until he has seven gallons. How can he be sure that he has seven gallons?"

That's what is known as a psychopathic test. It's a new way, and much preferable to the old precinct method of raising lumps on your head.

We know the answer but we didn't learn it in a police station. We studied in a sanitarium. It's not quite so simple as it looks.

If you cannot guess the answer then the police are certain that you belong in the laughing college.

If you do know the rebus then they are equally sure that you just escaped from the academy of paper hats.

The man fills his five gallon jug and pours the contents into the three gallon jug. That leaves two gallons in the big jug. He empties the little jug. Then he pours the remaining two gallons from the big jug into the three-gallon vase. He fills the five-gallon over again and is certain that he has seven gallons.

When the police ask you that rebus you naturally think the law is indulging in parlor games.

Instead of answering, it is your turn to ask one. You poke the desk sergeant among his fatty ribs and say:

"There are three men on the telephone at the same time. One is a vegetarian and the other two are superstitious. There is only one rowboat among the three. How can you divide the eleven apples among the twelve pupils?"

Then the desk sergeant asks you one. Even if you know the answer, it is not good diplomacy to be too smart. Remember that the law is going to win in the end.

It's a bum riddle, because if the man had a five and a three-gallon jug he wouldn't fill 'em with water.

However, the new system proves that you must be a smart guy to get arrested nowadays. And if you can't answer acrostics and rebuses there isn't a chance of going to jail.

All ATTRACTIVE WOMEN have at some time
In their lives had some MAN
CLAMORING
For their LOVE and telling them they are NECESSARY to his very existence.
THIS, to a woman, is sometimes
FUN, sometimes
FUNNY, and sometimes RIDICULOUS. It depends
On her feelings for the man. It may depend
Somewhat, too, on whether he is MARRIED.
One "CLAMORER" that practically all PRETTY WOMEN
Meet is the husband whose WIFE does not "UNDERSTAND"
Him. And oh! how he LONGS to be UNDERSTOOD
By a beautiful woman . . .
It's PATHETIC!
Many MEN seek SOLACE in the arms of BEAUTY. But
If a pretty LADY so comforted
ALL those who wished
"Understanding," though her

Such "CHARITY" would certainly be MISCONSTRUED.

Secretary Work's Vital Motion---Is It Seconded?

Not only the million-and-a-half owners of securities in America's eleven thousand million dollar oil industry, but also every living citizen and every unborn child are concerned in the present profligate waste of our petroleum resources.

Dr. Hubert Work, secretary of the interior and chairman of the Federal Oil Conservation Board, a body with power to study, protest and warn, but not act, likens this waste to the destructiveness of a civil war.

If we were in a war, either civil or foreign, our government would end the waste instanter by conscripting the machinery for production and distribution and rationing the supply in accordance with public needs.

Can a peril so great be allowed to persist in its destructiveness simply because no armed enemy is at the moment adding to our loss or confusing our power to act intelligently?

Have we not enough sense to anticipate in peace an action in the supreme public interest which all concede would be inevitable upon the near approach of war?

Secretary Work submits a concrete and most timely suggestion when he proposes the formation of a committee of nine, three selected by the American Bar Association, three practical engineers from the oil industry and three representatives of the government, to draft a remedial bill for submission to the next Congress after due study.

That reduces the issue from mere discussion without goal to a definite course. Is his motion seconded?

The Sin God of Yucatan Found in a Low Temple

A curious figure, recently discovered by the distinguished explorer, Dr. Gann, is a god or demon representing sin, in a strange low temple of Yucatan.

Recently the mysteries of Yucatan, of her strange ancient religion, and her present-day mixture of Christianity and Paganism, have been explored by Dr. Gann, and many strange things revealed.

There have been found temples with doors so low they are supposed to prove the existence of a pygmy race among the ancient Mayas, inhabitants of Central America.

Of course, it is not certain that a very low door and low roof prove the existence of pygmies.

In Russia, in the time of Ivan the Terrible, the Russians were tall enough, six feet, many of them. But they built doors that made it necessary to bend almost double to go through them. That was economy, and, once in the house, it may be that the ancient Mayas thought the time might as well be spent sitting down.

In any case, this particular god, or the demon of sin, was found in his particular temple with a very low roof.

Until Dr. Gann discovered it, nobody had even seen this temple or ever heard of this strange inhabitant. The Indians of Yucatan say it is a place accursed, and keep away from it.

They are afraid of the "Sin Devil" that lives inside of it.

Pagan, barbarous human races, inventing different kinds of religions, have always invented gods and demons more or less like themselves. They see good in men, so they invent some kind of strange god, very good, but often very sleepy. They see evil, sin, in themselves; usually it is very active, the most active thing about the savages. So they invent devils and demons to represent sin, and make them very busy.

Among savage peoples it was, and is, customary to pay much more attention to the devil than to the good but sleepy god. If you leave the good god alone he will not bother you, whereas the devil is always up to some mischief. Therefore, more sacrifices are offered to him.

You would be interested to know just what kind of sin this strange old figure represents. Perhaps he represented all the sins put together. The Yucatan Indians of today know little about him. They are more or less converted to the Christian religion, and in their temples they combine Christianity with the ancient Pagan worship, pure Christianity being a little above their heads.

Not For Men Only

How times do change! It hasn't been so many years that a gentleman would not smoke in a lady's presence. To accommodate them while traveling, the railroads set aside a gentlemen's smoking car and peace and quiet reigned.

But now! Not only do the ladies smoke, but they invade man's own domain in the smoking car, and an irate gentleman has beseeched the Long Island Railroad to turn them out for disturbing the peace. To all of which the railroad turns a deaf ear; the ladies can smoke there if they wish, and the gentlemen can ride on the cow-catcher if they don't like it.

Give the ladies a smoking car of their own? It would fill up with men in no time at all!

Plus Fours Put Up Front

The number of plus-fours and bags of golf sticks that wander bout any city during a week-end have roused the wits to extraordinary exertions. They claim that whole flocks of men jump to taxicabs in the morning clad in knicks and carrying golf ks who drive directly to their offices and who have never been ear a golf links in their lives.

Probably this is true. If all the plus-fours seen on the streets in the course of a day should gather at the neighboring golf links there would not be room to swing a club.

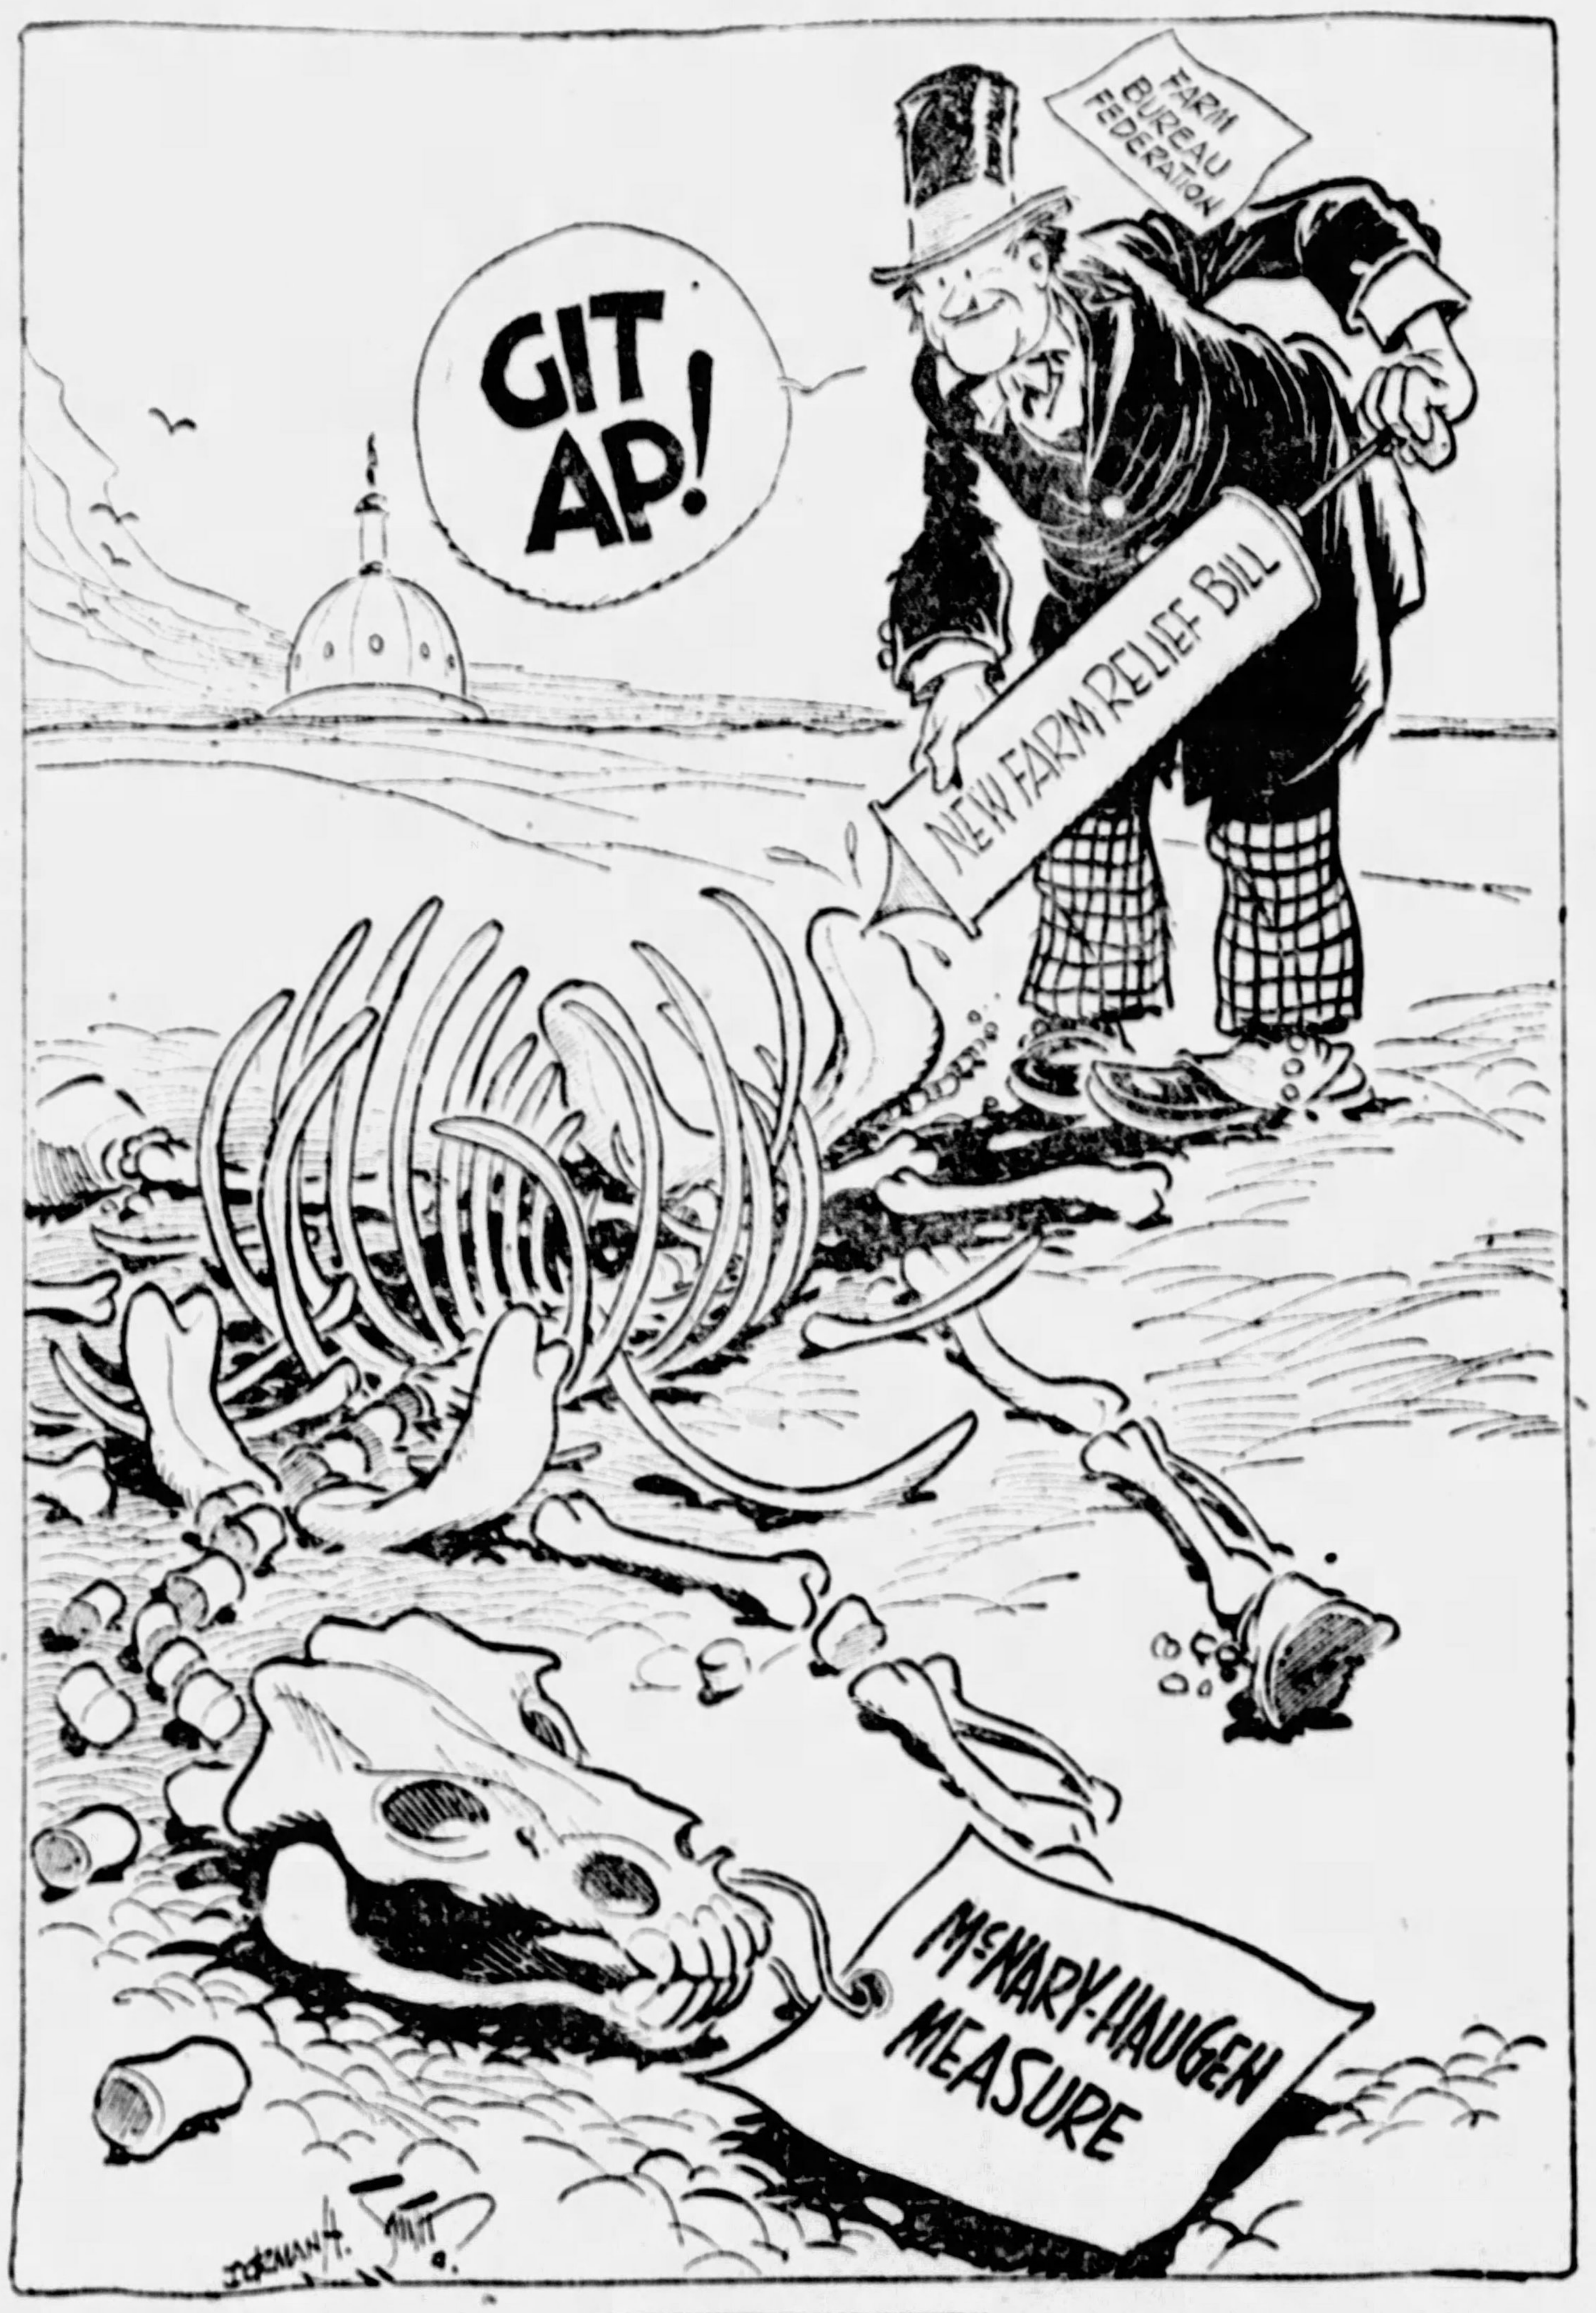
The deception, however, is harmless. A man disguising himself as a golf fan to fool the neighbors, we believe, is acting well within his rights. The neighbors no doubt fool him in ways just as silly. "Putting up a front" is a great American trait and one that, in this case, does little harm.

Sad Plight of Michael

Little King Michael of Rumania is the richest kid in the world. Under the will of the late King Ferdinand, he received property valued at $30,000,000, also $400,000 in cash, and all the crown jewels, valued at $35,000,000. The civil list and annuities bring his fortune up to $70,000,000, yet he sits in a ten-dollar American high chair and eats bread and jam and gets some of the latter on his nose.

The young king's greatest ambition at present is to get out-of-doors with some young American friends and play in the dirt, but Michael must remember that he is a King. It is a rather sad case, when you come to think it over.

TRYING TO REVIVE IT



Garrett P Serviss Says:

Keep Your Glasses Clean

GREAT is the multitude of men, women and children who, under the dispensation of modern civilization, "wear glasses." These are a token of impaired natural function, but civilization amply repays us for the self-inflicted damage; at least, most of us think it does. Since so many must have glasses all ought to learn how to keep them in the best of order. But many do not take that trouble.

You will see men peering through lenses that are almost as dull as the incrusted windows of a barn, persistently ignoring the fact that every hour they are further damaging their eyesight. Perhaps the most common cause of smirched glasses is the habit of handling and even rubbing them with the fingers or with handkerchiefs. Dust and grease are thus combined into a most effective agent of slow and, for a time, almost imperceptible abrasion—to say nothing of the direct blurring caused by the obscuring film.

Optical glass, unless pure quartz is employed (and even that cannot withstand continual abrasion), is easily scratched, and tarnished. It should never be touched with even the finest fabrics that have been used for the purposes of a handkerchief. Many think that they are treating their glasses with delicate consideration if they rub them with a silk handkerchief carried in the pocket.

A silk handkerchief is, perhaps, the most unsuitable of all material for such a purpose because it quickly becomes more or less greasy.

When, as too often occurs, the glasses are gummed around the edges and in corners with accumulated dirt, and streaked with belts and spots of dullness, serious injury may be caused to the eyes by the confused refraction of light, and the lack of clear definition.

A very simple way to keep your glasses clear is to wash them with warm water—a very little good soap may be used in case of necessity—rubbing gently with the ball of the fingers and wiping carefully with a perfectly clean, soft towel, or a soft cotton or linen handkerchief that has been kept away from dust and not previously used for wiping face or hands. I am in the habit of washing my glasses, in this way, every morning, as a part of my toilet, and I think it is not the least important part.

Wasted Effort

HOW long are you going to throw your best efforts up a blind alley?

How long are you going to try to give folk what they don't want and won't use, perhaps can't comprehend?

It is commendable that you desire to work hard.

You are industrious and thorough in what you do.

But are you getting anywhere with it all?

Is it that you are trying to make over folk into what they are not?

Is it that you yourself enjoy what you are devoting your life to furthering, or is it that you really are getting somewhere in the cause you espoused?

It is a matter of principle with you that you give without knowing or caring where it all leads?

Don't be foolish.

When you find that you are not making a dent in the surface of things, why not take up another point of contact for your efforts?

Don't waste yourself. Get results, or know why not.

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—The lower East Side is coming down in great half-block long chunks. Rattle-trap buildings are making way for the new in the metropolitan endeavor to wipe out its slums. Thousands of tenants have been ordered to vacate before snow flies.

"To Let" signs are everywhere to indicate the picturesque section is passing and its denizens are on the move. The melting pot bubble has become a mere simmer. To the young the transition is welcomed, but the old who have become orientated to its squalor shake their heads.

Restricted immigration, coupled with the fact that the prosperous trek northward, is largely responsible for the end of that little strip of old world clinging so tenaciously to the new. In the odd ganglia of Rivington and Kenmare streets the desolation is already noticeable.

Many shopkeepers have moved or are selling out. The small curb merchants are parroting their despair. They do not know where they will go. Neither do the grannies who sit in the doorways wearing their shoulder shawls. Many have never been out of the section.

Despite the noisy hub-bub, there has always been a brooding manner about the East Side. All it seemed to ask was to be left alone. They gaze upon invading uptowners in quiet contemplation, but tinged with a slight suspicion. Poverty is not a thing for sightseers.

The prediction has been made that in 10 years New York will have no more of the tenement catacombs that have characterized its slums. Philanthropists are showing enthusiastic interest in model tenements. It is only those too old and too poor to move who regret the change.

The newer generation has quickly caught the American spirit. School attendance on the East Side has dropped by 50 per cent. Night classes for adults where many of the "pupils" were bearded men have been almost abandoned. Boys wear campus clothes and girls bobs and flapper skirts.

Despite old-world customs, there is something intensely American about the East Side. On Rivington street, for instance, is "The Young Sports Barber Shop."

* * *

Every block has a half dozen or more venders of that sweetish, gamboge liquid known as "penny lemonade." Proprietors of these tiny stands have been able, so great is the East Side's thirst, to rear families on the slight profits of their sales. It comes in all colors.

* * *

New York restaurants seem to be conspiring against the meat eater. A few serve meat only twice a week, and one of the biggest chains of restaurants warns on its menu that this is an age of vegetables.

* * *

Then there is a restaurant serving only vegetables but as a sop to meat lovers soaks various vegetable dishes in meat juices. Another cafe refuses to serve pepper.

* * *

I'd like to see the reaction of some of the boys back in the hollow to this milksop diet. Amos Quinn, living north of Bull's Run, left his wife for three weeks because he found only two kinds of meat on the breakfast table one morning. Incidentally Amos was then in his seventy-fourth year and is still living, although that was 20 years ago. When he dies, he won't die of anything. It will just be his turn.

* * *

Lower Seventh avenue between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets offers a smalltown touch in a block of triple-storied frame houses with yards, trees, brick chimneys and latticed porches covered with creepers. They are a landmark out of the New York of other days of crinolines and high stepping bays. Some are rooming houses and boarders sit out front on pleasant evenings.

A few blocks northward is a Mills Hotel where shabby genteel patrons sit at windows. I have never seen them talk to each other—they seem only to sit like statues and stare.

Legs

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Time was in the days of our grandmothers when a perfect lady was not supposed to possess anything worth speaking of between the ankles and the chin.

Nowadays the average man is like the London bus driver. A lady was climbing up the rear stairway of a bus in London, a heavy wind was blowing, and she was trying to keep down her skirts properly. The conductor exhorted:

"Step along lively, Mum. Legs is no treat to me!"

Whatever they may have been, they are certainly now no treat to anybody.

Have the morals of the male section of the race deteriorated because females show more of their limbs?

No. Morals is a word which comes from mores, meaning manners, and morals therefore are largely what you are used to.

To a Turk the sight of a woman's face is immoral. To see a girl with the major part of her anatomy exposed on the sea beach does not particularly attract anybody, for the simple reason that we are used to it.

Women freely expose one portion of their person on the bathing beach in summer and the other portion in the winter ballroom. It is all a question of custom.

It is also a question whether women have gained much in attractiveness by exposing such a large length of stocking. A noted French costumer declares that flapper styles are disappearing and that he is glad of it. He said they were not beautiful and the sight of legs was not charming, for to be charming a woman must have mystery. The gown should hint and not display.

My private opinion is that the more a woman puts on in the way of clothes the less moral she is apt to be and also possibly the more attractive.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

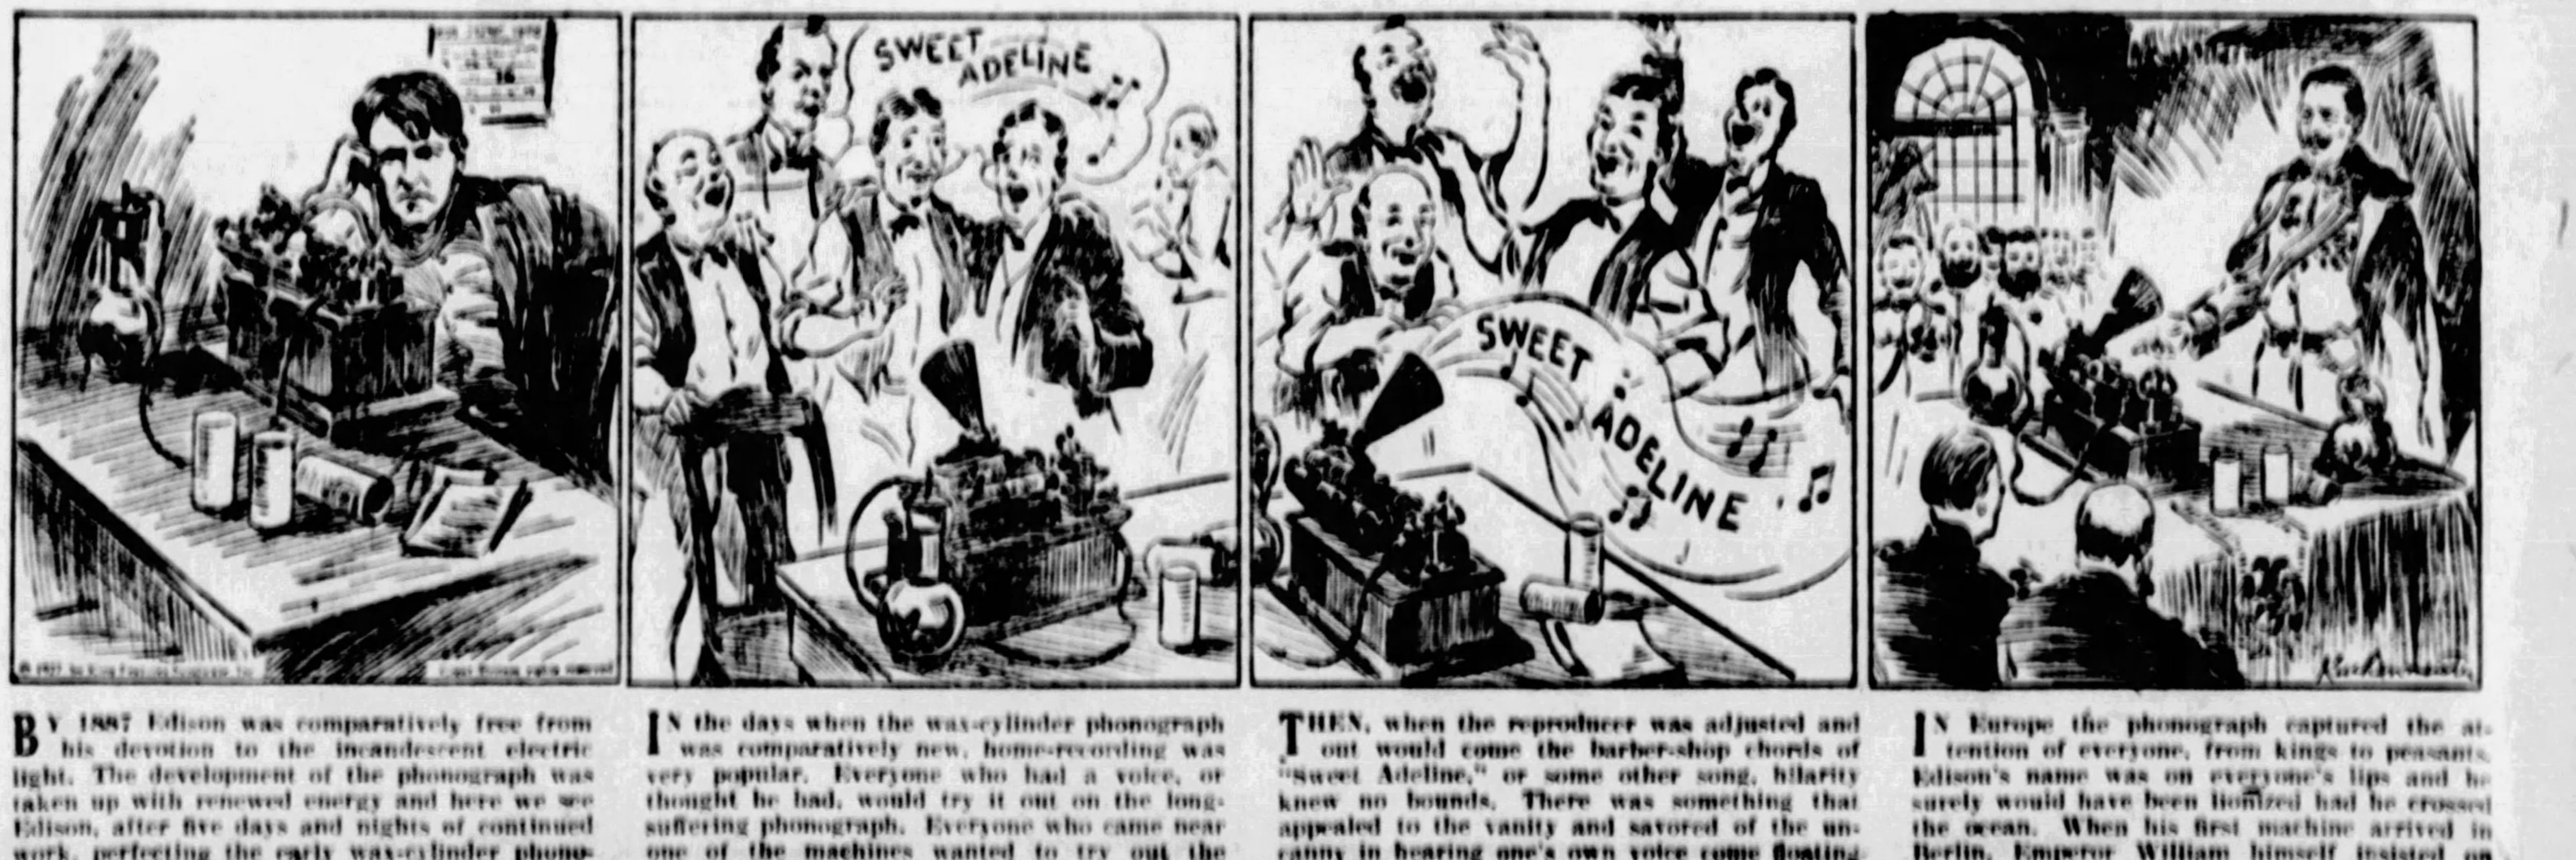
"September"

THE summer days have swiftly slipped away, the summer days of robin and of rose, and now September paints her colors gay on every falling leaf the fresh wind blows. There is no sorrow for the rose's bloom that lately dowered every breeze with sweets and shed the benison of its perfume down all the tranquil garden's cool retreats. September brings a beauty of her own as rare as any charm the year can show, though every rose and lily now have flown the autumn dyes the earth with richer glow. And even so in life's late afternoon a mellow radiance may softly shine; September hours, more fair than those of June, may lack the rose but bring the grape's sweet wine.

THE LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

(Authorized and Endorsed by Mr. Edison)

Text by Arthur J. Palmer
Drawings by Frank Kuchenmeister



BY 1887 Edison was comparatively free from his devotion to the incandescent electric light. The development of the phonograph was taken up with renewed energy and here we see Edison, after five days and nights of continued work, perfecting the early wax-cylinder phonograph. This occurred on June 16, 1888.

IN the days when the wax-cylinder phonograph was comparatively new, home-recording was very popular. Everyone who had a voice, or thought he had, would try it out on the long-suffering phonograph. Everyone who came near one of the machines wanted to try out the latest wrinkle in home entertainment.

THEN, when the reproducer was adjusted and out would come the barber-shop chords of "Sweet Adeline," or some other song, hilarity knew no bounds. There was something that appealed to the vanity and savored of the uncanny in hearing one's own voice come floating out of the mysterious little horn.

IN Europe the phonograph captured the attention of everyone, from kings to peasants. Edison's name was on everyone's lips and he surely would have been lionized had he crossed the ocean. When his first machine arrived in Berlin, Emperor William himself insisted on demonstrating it.
